TO THE FRINGED GENTIAN.

BY WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

Thou blossom bright with autumn dew,
And colored with the heaven's own blue,
That openest when the quiet light
Succeeds the keen and frosty night.

Thou comest not when violets lean
O'er wandering brooks and springs unseen,
Or columbines, in purple dressed,
Nod o'er the ground-bird's hidden nest.

Thou waitest late and comest alone,
When woods are bare and birds are flown,
And frosts and shortening days portend
The aged year is near his end.

Then doth thy sweet and quiet eye
Look through its fringes to the sky,
Blue—blue—as if that sky let fall
A flower from its cerulean wall.

I would that thus, when I shall see
The hour of death draw near to me
Hope blossoming within my heart,
May look to heaven as I depart.

ST. LOUIS FAIR PLANS ARE HUGE

As a Spectacle of Color and Increasing Motion It Promises to Surpass Chicago Affair.

GENERAL SCHEME IS GOOD

Airships and Submarine Navigation to Present Notable Novel Features of the Big Show.

[BY RAYMOND.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 12.—[Special.]—Whether or not the world's fair at St. Louis succeeds in reaching the mark set for it by Chicago is a matter about which experts are already disagreeing. No one can doubt, however, that as a spectacle, and in those features which appeal to the multitude from their color, their variety, and their constantly increasing motion, it will be a howling success. The plans already on foot are almost startling in their magnitude in this direction, and while the directors and various chiefs of division are naturally secretive as to detail, their general plans are, of course, a matter of ordinary inquiry.

I have referred already briefly to the great cascade scheme which is to be the central feature of the exposition, and to the exhibition of flying machines, which it is hoped will set the pace for the world. In both of these departments the fair will satisfy the showmen, and this will be none the less true of those peculiarly foreign and fantastic features which people have associated for ten years with the Midway plaisance in Chicago.

Buildings of Different Character.

So far as one can judge from the buildings at St. Louis at the present time, they will not outrank and probably will not equal by a considerable degree those at Chicago. There will be no large building of the same type as that of the Manufactures and Liberal Arts at the Chicago exposition. This has not been from inability to compete in the mere covering of ground with building material, but from a well defined belief on the part of the local managers here that the great building at Chicago, while a notable creation, was too big to be well adapted to exhibition purposes.

There are to be here in St. Louis fourteen great palaces, many of which exceed in area any of those at Chicago with the exception of the Liberal Arts. Four of the St. Louis buildings are to have distinctively a southern flavor, because they will be built around great central courts of various shapes, filled with flowers and walks and fountains, and furnishing an interior lounging place which will be particularly grateful in this semi-southern latitude. These courts are to be kept free for the public, and will not be disgraced with beer gardens, candy stands, or similar contrivances for making money and destroying good landscape effects. These interior courts are so spacious they give good opportunity for excellent lighting effects in the interior of the buildings.

Lack of Variety in Plans.

Seen from the brow of the hill, where the festival hall is to rise, the roof contours along the sky line are not as yet either novel or satisfying. A glance at the list of architects of the different buildings will show that the local board has fallen into the error which was so skillfully avoided at Chicago. Too many local St. Louis architects have been employed on the buildings, and the types of the great palaces therefore do not show the variety which would have been arrived at if a studied effort had been made to distribute the architectural work among the best men in the profession throughout the country. The St. Louis men employed have been all of high grade, but a preliminary survey of the buildings as far as they go, with the elevations and general outlines of the drawings, would seem to indicate that there is nothing new or novel in the architectural treatment.

It is also apparent that the location of the St. Louis fair is not nearly so good as that of Chicago. The loss of the beautiful lake effect is partially compensated for by the daring and artistic beauty of the cascade treatment, for which Mr. E. L. Masqueray, the chief of design of the St. Louis exposition, is individually responsible. It has been generally supposed that the hills which form so prominent a part of the St. Louis site would prove to be exceptionally beautiful. This is only partially true, however, because the buildings are themselves so vast and so dominant that the hill effects are almost lost sight of, and when viewed from a distance would seem to furnish difficulty of transportation to a much greater degree than beauty of setting.

Grounds Not Well Advanced.

While it is quite true that the buildings are well advanced, it is equally a matter of note that the condition of the grounds is not so satisfactory. I have received the impression in some way that a little more ginger in the mechanism of the local board of directors would be in every way a desirable thing. The people of St. Louis have taken hold of the world's fair as a duty and are proceeding methodically and without any surplus enthusiasm to carry it to a successful issue. That they will do so no one who knows the people of this city can doubt. They will supply the brains, the energy, and the money needed, but they are doing it in their own way, and with an excessive deliberation, which is in sharp contrast with the superabundant energy displayed by the managers of the Chicago fair. There is a vast amount of work to be done in the way of putting the grounds in order, finishing the lagoons, adjusting the water supply, asphalting the avenues of the fair, and in getting the approaches to the buildings in condition for the installation of exhibits.

Has Benefit of Chicago Study.

When the Chicago fair was in process of construction, however, everything was new and untried. No similar exposition of anything like such magnitude had ever been held in this country, so that men had to learn new tasks, strange methods had to be devised, and the Chicago exposition managers practically created the new profession of fair builders. St. Louis has had the benefit of all Chicago's experiments, and has, therefore, been able to avoid many blunders, much extravagance, and a vast amount of useless work. The St. Louis people have had the benefit of the expert knowledge of such men as F. J. V. Skiff, who is director of the division of exhibits; Halsey C. Ives, chief of the art department; Willard A. Smith, chief of transportation; Dr. Selim H. Peabody, the expert assistant to Director Skiff; and a dozen others who had practical exposition experience at Chicago, as well as at

'IDEAL CITIZEN A RABBIT.'

ROOSEVELT'S TALK OF RACE SUICIDE CALLED NONSENSE.

Hugh Pentecost in New York Lecture Takes Issue of the President's Recent Utterances on Large Families—Declares Child Bearing Is a Crime When Children Are Brought Into the World Only to Become Slaves in Mills and Mines.

New York, April 12.—[Special.]—"President Roosevelt's Nonsense About Race Suicide" was announced as the title of an address by Hugh O. Pentecost in Lyric hall today. Speaking of the president's recent utterances on "race suicide," Mr. Pentecost said:

"The rabbit seems to be his ideal citizen."

In part Mr. Pentecost said:

"The class of Roosevelt's ideal person is one who is ready to work, fight, suffer, and have children. He regards others as shirkers and criminals. This is the ideal man from the point of view of the ruling class. Such a man makes a good cousin. It alarms the ruling class when there appears an unwillingness on the part of the rest to do these things. But may not Mrs. Van Vorst and Theodore Roosevelt be mistaken in their judgment of these enemies of the race?

When Work Is Crime.

"To work is indeed a blessing, but only when you can do what you enjoy. To have to work as the Van Vorsts describe in their book is the crime of the universe. To fight for liberty and the advancement of the race is glorious, but to fight for conquest—to be drafted and made to fight—is a crime of magnitude. To suffer bravely if suffering cannot be avoided is fine, but to be made to suffer, or to regard it as a privilege to suffer, is degradation.

Crime Against the Race.

"To be married and have children if you are intelligent and are sure you are bringing your children into a desirable world is well, but marriage and childbearing as it now goes on among the poor and ignorant is a crime against the race. Most married people among the ignorant are unfit to be married and to have children, as animals have young, without thought or purpose.

"Think of bearing a child to live in a tenement or to work in the cotton mills. If this were all there were to hope for the race had better commit suicide. As people become more intelligent they have fewer children, and I venture to say that after many people have had children grown if they had the experience over again they would have none.

"I wouldn't take a million apiece for the children I have, but I wouldn't give 15 cents for another. See how the finger of scorn is pointed at France. She is the most advanced nation today.

Better No Children than Slaves.

"Young working men and women who are postponing or avoiding marriage are growing wise. They are showing that wisdom and judgment are becoming stronger than animal heat. The old slave owners used to encourage the birth of children among their slaves, for every child born increased their wealth. It is the same now, and as long as conditions remain as they are now it is foolish for working people to marry, and still more foolish for them to have children if they do marry, for every child born to them is a new little slave of mine or mill."

Mr. Pentecost, as evidence of his theory that the wisest men do not rear big families, cited these characters in history: Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton, Paine, Clay, Webster, Emerson, Whitman, Phillips Brooks, Plato, Aristotle, Shakspeare, Goethe, Carlyle, Spencer, Alexander, Cæsar, Napoleon, Confucius, Zoroaster, Buddha, Moses, Mohammed, Jesus Christ, Peter, Paul, and John.

RABID DOGS CAUSE TERROR ON STREETS OF AUSTIN.

Two or Three Persons Bitten and Patrol Wagon Chases Animals, Policemen Shooting, but Without Effect.

Several dogs, supposed to have been suffering from rabies, caused an afternoon of excitement in Austin yesterday. The first dog was seen near North Central avenue and Ohio street. It was chased several blocks by boys, but escaped. A little later James W. Kremer, 410 North Park avenue, was bitten by a dog.

The police were notified, and a patrol wagon filled with policemen gave chase. The dog ran south in Park avenue to Washington boulevard, then east to Pine avenue, across to Lake street, and down Lake street to Fifty-second avenue. The police fired several shots, but did not kill the dog, which finally escaped.

Still later, at Lake street and Fifty-second avenue, a dog bit Kirk Moses. Policemen pursued the animal, firing several shots, but this dog also escaped.

It was reported that Willie Hendricks, 1413 Chicago avenue, Oak Park, was bitten by the same dog at South boulevard and Central avenue, Austin.

FIRST CRUISE OF NEW MAINE A STORY OF MANY MISHAPS.

Battleship Returns from West Indian Waters—Seven Deaths at Sea—Chicago Officer a Victim.

Norfolk, Va., April 12.—[Special.]—The maiden cruise of the battleship Maine is a story of mishaps. There was trouble between the officers and crew before the warship left Newport News. It encountered storms immediately after sailing. There was a gun mount accident and defective boilers, together with seven deaths, all within two months. There is a scoop in the vessel's deck which is the result of structural weakness and was caused by practice firing off the Porto Rican coast, where the six inch guns were tried. The body of Lieut. A. C. Baker, who died of typhoid fever, was shipped to Chicago for burial and the bodies of six others were buried at sea.

LIGHTNING WRECKS A SALOON.

Strikes Building at 240 North Western Avenue When Crowded with People—No One Injured.

While many persons were in Steven McCarthy's saloon, 240 North Western avenue, yesterday afternoon to escape the rain the building was struck by lightning. Several were thrown from their feet by the shock. Mrs. McCarthy and her two children were in a front room on the second floor. They were stunned and rendered unconscious.

A portion of the roof was torn away and thrown to the pavement in front of the saloon and the building took fire. The rain, however, prevented the flames from gaining headway.

When McCarthy recovered from the shock he ran upstairs and assisted his wife and children to safety.

MASKED ROBBERS HOLD UP A CAR.

Grand Avenue Trolley Is Boarded and Nine Persons Lose Their Valuables.

MAKE THREATS TO KILL.

Pistol Placed at Woman's Temple While Eight Men Raise Their Hands.

With a woman screaming and with eight men holding their hands in the air three masked robbers took possession of a Grand avenue trolley car early yesterday morning and proceeded to relieve the passengers of their cash and valuables.

Each of the robbers carried a revolver, and threats of death brought the eight men under subjection. The woman, however, screamed for the police, and was not quieted till one of the highwaymen placed his pistol at her temple and told her he would fire unless she desisted.

The holdup of the car occurred at Grand avenue and Franklin boulevard, a lonely section which is sparsely settled. The only policeman who has been seen in that section recently lives out that way. The escape of the robbers was easy.

Victims of the Robbers.

Those who were in the car and who were relieved of their valuables were:

Motorman Michael Ruffell, robbed of $5.
Conductor Harry Purdon, robbed of $30 and a watch.
William H. Most, robbed of watch.
Otto H. Soeffling, 1530 West Division street, robbed of $2.
H. M. Hanson, 809 North Harding avenue; robbed of $10.
William Pigott, 1608 West Division street; robbed of $3 and a watch.
William Shea, 637 North Avers avenue; robbed of $8.
Max Crouse, 1863 Grand avenue, robbed of small change.
Unidentified woman, had no valuables, frightened into hysterics by threats of robbers and police; did not learn name.

Robbers Divide Their Work.

The street car was west bound in Grand avenue, and had proceeded into the lonely district for some distance when Motorman Ruffell saw three men beside the track ahead of his car. He brought the car to a stop, and one of the men stepped on to the platform beside him, while the other two boarded the rear platform, where Conductor Purdon was standing.

The conductor, not noticing the masks, gave the signal to proceed, and was about to enter the car to collect the fare from the man on the front platform when he was halted by a command to hold his hands up. He complied at the point of a revolver in the hands of one of the men on the rear platform.

In the meantime the man on the front platform had produced a revolver, and ordered Motorman Ruffell to shut off the electrical power and hold up his hands. He did as ordered, and in a moment the car was at a standstill.

Woman Threatened with Death.

While two of the robbers guarded the motorman and conductor the third robber entered the car and shouted "Hands up!" at the same time flourishing a revolver.

The woman began to scream and the men sank back in their seats, with their hands elevated. The woman, however, sprang to her feet and screamed.

"Sit down or I'll plug you," warned the robber. The woman obeyed, but she placed her hands before her eyes and continued her cries. Then it was that the robber placed his revolver against her head and told her to cease or he would kill her.

While the passengers were being robbed by the highwayman in the car, the robber on the front platform had taken Ruffell's money and the conductor had been robbed of $30 and his watch.

Finally the robber who had entered the car returned to the rear platform, conversed with the robber guarding Purdon for a moment, and then sprang from the car.

The robber on the front platform then ordered Ruffell to start his car. The speed was increased slowly, at the orders of the robber, until a block had been traversed, and then the two robbers sprang to the ground and disappeared.

Police Told of Losses.

A few moments later a car running in the opposite direction appeared. The passengers boarded it and returned to Milwaukee avenue, and then to the West Chicago avenue police station, where the story of the holdup was told.

Conductor Purdon furnished the police with descriptions of the men who boarded the rear platform, while the motorman was able to give a fair description of the man who guarded him.

The woman was so hysterical that she was unable to tell her name or give any version of the robbery. She left the police station shortly after arriving there.

KILLED BY FALL FROM CHAIR.

Mrs. Grace Hall of Oak Park Dies of Injuries Received While Dusting Her House.

Mrs. Grace A. Hall, wife of D. L. Hall, 315 South Scoville avenue, Oak Park, died at the Mary Thompson hospital yesterday as the result of injuries sustained at her home Saturday.

While standing on a chair dusting she lost her balance and fell. A physician was called and found that she had sustained a bruise and internal injuries. She was removed to the hospital, where an operation was performed, but she gradually grew weaker.

Mrs. Hall was born in Medford, Mass., in 1846. She was the mother of two sons and five daughters, all of whom and her husband survive her. The funeral will be held today at 2 o'clock at Grace Episcopal church, Oak Park.

WIDOW OF 81 COMMITS SUICIDE.

Mrs. Margaret Leber of Springfield Hangs Herself with Clothesline in Her Barn.

Springfield, Ill., April 12.—[Special.]—Mrs. Margaret Leber, aged 81 years, committed suicide at noon today by hanging herself with a clothes line in a barn on her premises. She was the widow of Joseph Leber, once prominent in politics here and a wealthy citizen.

BORAX EATERS TURN PINK

DR. WILEY'S BOARDERS THE ENVY OF WASHINGTON GIRLS.

Clerks in the Department of Agriculture Who for Several Months Have Eaten Food Preserved by Chemicals Are Taking on a Rosy Hue—All Are in Perfect Health and Their Suddenly Acquired Complexion Is Puzzling the Experts.

Washington, D. C., April 12.—[Special.]—The department clerks who for several months have submitted to Dr. Wiley's borax cured food experiments are turning pink. Their cheeks are slowly assuming a pink complexion, so delicately rosy as to excite the envious admiration of every girl in Washington.

Said one of the boarders last night, "We have all got rosy cheeks, and no mistake. Why, we're getting so we're ashamed to go on the streets. Girls turn around and look at us. It's embarrassing."

Dr. Wiley's food experiments are conducted with the strictest secrecy. A dozen or more young men connected with the department of agriculture have for several months been living on a diet prescribed by Dr. Wiley, who is seeking to determine the chemical effects of borax and other chemicals on prepared food.

Due to Some Chemical.

Nevertheless, as the young men are not kept indoors all the time it has been impossible to conceal the outward effects which the "poisoned" food may have upon the subjects. It has only developed within the last week that all who have been at the doctor's table are taking on the pink complexion. It is not thought that this is due to borax which has been given to the young men in their food, but to some chemical ingredient which has been mixed with the food unknown to the subjects.

The discovery that Dr. Wiley's boarders are turning pink at first caused some alarm, but a thorough examination was made of the young men and all were found to be in a perfectly healthy condition.

Claims Drugs Are Harmless.

The only admission that will be made at the department is that the drugs used in the food have, up to date, proved absolutely harmless. The pink complexion which some chemical evidently causes gives the men a healthy appearance, such as would result from good circulation of blood brought on by outdoor exercise. No one engaged in the experiments has been able to determine what chemical has produced this change, or if he has he will not tell.

REFUSES TO LEAVE PUPILS IN SPITE OF SCHOOL ORDER.

Mary T. Downey Resents Change That Would Separate Her from Children She Has Been Teaching.

Trouble has broken out at a new point in the public schools, and Mary T. Downey is the offender. Miss Downey's friends say she has sinned no more than to be loyal to her pupils, while Miss Downey's superiors declare her loyalty amounts to insubordination. The matter has been reported to Supt. Cooley, and probably will be taken before the school management committee this afternoon.

The trouble arose through the desire of Miss Mary T. Downey, then a teacher in the Polk street school, to remain with her pupils when the classes of that school were transferred to the Dante school.

Acting on her own responsibility Miss Downey took charge of the third grade class in room 6 in the Dante school. According to District Superintendent Delano she was told to take charge of a second grade class in room 9, but not wishing to be separated from her pupils she did not make the change.

Miss Downey claims justification for her actions. On April 3 the teachers of the old Polk street school were called together by Miss Harriet F. Hayward, the principal, for their orders preparatory to their moving into new quarters. Miss Downey did not attend the meeting, and on that ground says she did not receive any orders in regard to the removal.

Last week the classes in the Dante school were in a turmoil. It was rumored that Miss Downey locked her charges and herself in the room, but this she denied.

WANT REST ROOMS IN YARDS.

Workers in the Packing Houses Demand Suitable Places to Eat Their Noonday Meals.

Workers in the packing houses at the stockyards want lunch and rest rooms provided where they can eat their noonday meals. The women who have organized in alliance with the Packing Trades council have requested the packing companies to do something in the matter, and the need of adequate facilities for the men is said to be even greater than for the women.

"The girls," said one of them last evening, "work chiefly painting and labeling, and, with a few exceptions, have to eat where they are employed. Often they can taste the paint in their lunches. They do not get away from their work all day and their health suffers."

The men are said to work in more uninviting surroundings than the women. They have only half an hour's rest at noon, and few can endure to open their lunches and eat in the rooms where they toil. They crawl out on sheds and box cars, sit in the shade of the yards buildings in fair weather, or go over to Ashland avenue and sit in the saloons.

The women have made big progress with their union since it was organized last year. It now has 1,200 members, which, Mollie M. Daly, the president, estimates to be more than half the number of women in the packing houses. Since the formation of the union it has received an increase of 10 per cent in wages.

ARRESTED FOR SUNDAY ACTING.

Charles D. Herman and His "Romeo and Juliet" Company Charged with Sabbath Breaking.

RAIN UNCOVERS STREET PAVING.

Washes Dirt from Downtown District, but Aggravates Conditions in Other Sections.

EXPECT MUCH OF MAYOR.

Citizens Hope for as Vigorous Cleaning Crusade as Municipal Finances Will Permit.

Chicago people who ventured downtown after yesterday's hard rain caught a glimpse of some clean city streets—clean, at least, for Chicago. The downpour had swept the asphalt and partly unearthed the granite blocks from their winter covering of dirt.

In other parts of the city, however, the rain emphasized the wretched condition of the roadways, turning them into a succession of puddles or seas of mud, through which pedestrians and horses floundered.

Sunday is Mayor Harrison's day of rest, consequently he declined to outline any plans for cleaning up Chicago that he may have in mind. He declined to discuss the action of the Merchants' club Saturday night, but his friends believe he will soon take such action as the state of the city's finances will permit to give the streets the thorough spring cleaning they have not had but have needed for so many years.

Increases Cost of Teaming.

Merchants whose business demands much teaming declare that present street conditions are costing business men large sums of money every year. Their wagons, they say, cannot carry full loads because the bad pavements and mud coated streets make the task of hauling wagons far greater than it would be over well paved streets.

Another heavy item of loss to merchants is the clouds of dust that every passing wind drives through the unswept streets. This refuse is carried into every store and costly window displays suffer severely despite every effort to shut out the clouds of dirt.

Piles of Dirt Unmoved.

Bad as are these conditions in the business center, where an effort is made to sweep the streets, they are as nothing compared with the state of affairs found in the outlying wards and the principal business thoroughfares of the three divisions of the city.

There the piles of dirt and refuse still lie as they did when the last of the winter snow melted and uncovered them weeks ago. And under present financial conditions the city authorities see little hope of bettering matters.

The suggestion that the "street cleaning patrol" be revived met with much commendation yesterday. It was declared that such a move would be a long step toward securing clean streets in many districts where present conditions are causing bitter protests.

Complaints from Twenty-first.

In the mayor's ward, the Twenty-first, the citizens who are not satisfied with the city's work in cleaning the streets have the asphalt in front of their residences cleaned and the garbage and ashes removed from their alleys by contractors. The same thing is done in many other parts of the city, especially in the boulevard sections. It is expensive for the property owners, but they prefer to submit to the extra outlay than to the mud and dust.

Citizen Advances Some Ideas.

The following communication to THE TRIBUNE sets forth some south side conditions:

"Mayor Harrison is right when he says that dirty streets largely result from the opposition of property owners. If any one will go to the intersection of Thirty-ninth street and Vincennes avenue, look north, and view the mudholes, and then look south, he will recognize the truth of this. The difference arises from the fact that the avenue is paved with asphalt from Thirty-ninth to Forty-seventh street.

"Prairie and Indiana avenues are in a desperate condition from Thirty-ninth street north. Wabash, Cottage Grove, and Michigan avenues being paved are more or less dirty from the mud brought to them from the unpaved cross streets. Let all the streets from Thirty-ninth north be paved, as well as the cross streets, and a vast district will be as clean as the streets of any great city.

Require Police to Enforce Law.

"The police force should be required to see that the city ordinances are enforced, as required of police in other cities. I have frequently seen the sweepings from the stores swept into the gutters in the central retail district at different hours of the day, and no one interfering. Today great quantities of paper were flying along Indiana avenue, from Thirty-ninth street north and south, presumably by indifference of the van employés when removing household goods.

"It has often been a source of wonder that the gas mains are laid in the streets instead of in the alleys. If the latter policy was the rule the streets would not be torn up, the sidewalks and grass plats destroyed, and the shade trees lining the streets be ruined by escaping gas.

"Ride south from Van Buren street for miles, and at a glance to either right or left the filthy condition of the cross streets from Clark to the lake is apparent. The disgraceful condition of these streets detracts greatly from the appearance of the north and south paved streets by their contrast, as well as by the filth brought on to the latter by the wheels of vehicles.

"Note the vacant lots along the avenues and boulevards, overgrown with weeds and dotted over with papers and debris of various kinds. The great billboards are a nuisance, as well as dangerous to life and limb in case of high winds. It would add to the value of vacant lots on desirable streets to fence them with pickets four inches wide, spaced two or three inches and six feet high."

Minwegen Wants Alleys Paved.

Ald. John Minwegen, chairman of the council committee on streets and alleys north, agreed with many of the suggestions in the foregoing communication.

"Chicago people can best improve the condition of the streets by not opposing special assessments for pavement," said the alderman. "That is the key to the whole situation. Pave the streets and alleys, and there will be no mud to foul the streets. Property owners should pave their alleys without assessment proceedings.

"Voluntary inspectors working under the direction of improvement clubs have been tried and found wanting. The police should be instructed to keep a strict watch on violators of the law which forbids throwing debris in the streets. Bonfires should not be allowed in streets—even on election night."

for they ruin the asphalt or cedar block pavement. As to vacant lots, they can be greatly improved by being graded and sown with grass seed in the spring."

Wants Children to Help.

Emmons J. Alden, ward superintendent of the Twenty-first, the ward in which the mayor lives, suggested that organizations be formed among school children for keeping the streets free from paper and other débris.

"The youngsters will take a great deal of interest in the work," said Mr. Alden, "and through them it will be possible to secure the coöperation of their parents. Prof. David Swing once said 'that a man's home extended from the middle of the street in front of his premises to the middle of the alley at the rear.' That is the idea which should prevail in cleaning the city.

"In Boston property owners are required to clean the snow from the space in front of their property for several feet beyond the curb line, but in Illinois the Supreme court has decided that municipalities may be required to clean the walks. Pavement of alleys is as important as the pavement of streets. In my ward there are ten miles of broken and unpaved alleys."

Blames Property Owners.

Corporation Counsel Charles M. Walker also said the property owners were partly to blame.

"It is true that the failure of property owners to pave their streets is largely responsible for the filthy condition of those streets that are paved," said Mr. Walker. "A section of Elm street, near my house at 392 La Salle avenue, was unpaved for several years owing to the opposition of a few of the property owners. Certain of the downtown streets which are paved with granite blocks should be recovered with asphalt, where the traffic is not too heavy, that experient having been declared practical by asphalt pavement contractors.

"But if the streets of New York are cleaner than those of Chicago," concluded Mr. Walker, "it is because there is only half the mileage in the eastern city, and the appropriation for cleaning them per mile is about ten times as large as it is in Chicago."

WORK ON COUNCIL COMMITTEES

Preparation of the Slate Will Be Completed at a Meeting to Be Held Next Thursday.

The subcommittee named to select the standing committees of the council is well along with its work, and will meet next Thursday to complete it. What remains to do is merely to fill the vacancies on committees caused by the dropping out of aldermen.

Ald. Honoré Palmer has been picked out for the vacant place on the committee on local transportation caused by the retirement of Ald. Connery. This selection has been made on account of the identification of Mr. Palmer with the work of the committee through the resolutions he had passed last year inviting the street car companies to submit their cases to the council; and also for geographical reasons, the north side having but three places on the committee.

Either Ald. Finn or Ald. Dever will be named as chairman of the committee on streets and alleys west, presumably Ald. Finn. There will be more changes on this committee than any other, because of the large number of vacancies. The aldermen who were on this committee last year but will not sit in the present one are Fowler, Leininger, Smulski, Roach, Keeney, Connery, Rector, and Foucek; and if Finn takes Patterson's place on the committee from the Twentieth ward, this will mean nine new members added to the committee. The make-up of this committee promises to be: Finn, Bellfuss, Joswiakowski, Dever, Conlon, Powers, Leachman, Larson, Hunter, Fick, Sindelar, Moertel, Zimmer, Scully.

The committee on streets and alleys north remains intact, and the one for the south side has only lost Ald. Doubek, Litzinger, and Hart. Ald. Dailey or Stuckart will take the place of Doubek, and Ald. Sloan will succeed Litzinger, while Ald. Junk will take Hart's place.

The only important chairmanship to be filled is that of the committee on elections, caused by the retirement of Ald. Connery. Ordinarily this committee does not amount to much, but it may this year on account of the number of contests promised. Ald. Dever is spoken of for the place.

MISSING PASSENGER TRAIN FOUND HELD UP BY FLOOD.

Tracks Were Destroyed by Waters and Officials Search for Accommodation for Hours Before They Get a Trace.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 13, 2 a. m.—[Special.]—For several hours tonight officials of the Montour railroad searched for an accommodation train, heavily loaded with passengers, which it was feared was lost between Coraopolis and Imperial, in flood-swept country.

At 2 o'clock this morning the train was reported at Montour junction. The track was washed away, and the crew had decided not to move from where they were. All of the passengers are safe.

A heavy storm burst over the district this evening, and the rain began falling in torrents.

In a short time the Montour valley, which point is extremely narrow, was a foaming mass of water, and timber from nearby lumber yards filled and obstructed it. The tracks of the Montour railroad, which runs parallel with the valley, were carried away in many places.

A thunder storm this evening crashed over Pittsburg, pouring miniature rivers through the streets, flooding cellars, and inflicting damage that will reach thousands of dollars. One man was killed by lightning and many buildings were struck. Irvin T. Wilson of Dubois, Pa., employed at the Dixmont insane asylum, was killed by lightning.

The congregation of Christ Methodist Episcopal church in Center avenue was storm bound. The street for blocks was flooded. Street car traffic was almost entirely suspended in the eastern portion of the city. In Wilkinsburg the cloudburst poured through the valley. People were driven into the second stories of their homes. A house in Coal street was almost swept from its foundation. Piles of lumber were carried away from a Pitt street yard on the Pennsylvania railroad. A signal tower of the Pennsylvania railroad was struck by lightning, and the adjoining passenger station was fired.

Fatal Cyclone in Illinois.

Springfield, Ill., April 12.—[Special.]—Logan, De Witt, and Piatt counties were visited by a violent cyclone between 3 and 4 o'clock this afternoon that spread damage and destruction for fifty miles. At Halsadarzer settlement, three miles north of Atwood, Piatt county, an infant child of Clifford Halsadarzer was killed in the arms of its mother and the woman was fatally injured.

Safety in Cellars.

Several persons were injured and grain and machinery were blown away today by a tornado which swept over the country four miles east of Lincoln. The homes of Samuel V. Baldwin, Adam E. Schananuer, and Gustave Knecht were wrecked, and the families and visitors escaped by rushing to the cellars.

Cloudburst in Indiana.

Henryville, Ind., April 12.—A cloudburst at noon today flooded this part of Clark county and did great damage. County Commissioner Raymond and wife were drowned while crossing Blue Lick creek. The waters had risen so rapidly that the buggy was swept away.

Town Flooded, Has No Rain.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 12.—[Special.]—A cloudburst north of Portland, in Jay county, at midnight last night inundated the town an hour later. No rain fell in Portland after dark, but a heavy cloud hung over the north, and about midnight the water began to flow through the streets. Many of the citizens, awakened by the ringing of bells, found the water already covering the first floors of their homes.

Indorses Redmond's Land Bill Policy.

LONDON, April 12.—William O'Brien, the nationalist member of parliament for Cork, has written a letter indorsing John Redmond's attitude toward the Irish land bill and deprecating "mere mouthing and petulant denunciation" when the bill comes up before the national convention in Dublin.

LIFE STORY OF GEN. MACDONALD.

T. P. O'Connor Writes of the Notable Career of Britain's Greatest Soldier.

KNEW NOTHING OF FEAR.

[BY T. P. O'CONNOR.]

LONDON, April 4.—Other generals were more powerful, more respected, regarded more as the men to hold large ideas and conduct huge operations, but the popular favorite of the army was undoubtedly Hector Macdonald. There were several causes for this preference. The fact that he rose from the ranks of the people, that he was, as a great Scotch nobleman said, "a son of the soil," that he was a soldier by choice and by instinct, that he had made his way upwards from the lowest to the highest ranks—all these things undoubtedly appealed to a nation that always desires to see the rise of merit from lowliness to distinction.

But even all these things could not have had the effect of making Hector Macdonald the idol he was if it had not been for the personality of the man himself. There is always something in a man whose courage rises equal to all emergencies—incapable of yielding, or softness, or even wavering—in short, whose courage was perfect—which appeals to human nature more than any other human quality; more than genius, more than goodness. And the courage of Macdonald was of that kind.

Courage of the Man.

It was this quite perfect courage of the man that accounted for his whole career. There is scarcely a step of it which was not marked by some act of desperate and cool heroism which made this man stand out from tens of thousands of other brave men. It is one of the strange things of human nature and human life how one single man can thus command attention and admiration and leap from the obscurity and equality of ordinary life to the front of the battle from out all around him.

It wasn't that Macdonald, in Afghanistan, in Egypt, in the Transvaal, was not surrounded by brave men; possibly as brave men as the world holds were encompassing him. It was that there was something supreme in his cold courage that made them all instinctively feel that here was their born leader, their natural, instinctive, irresistible chief. In all ranks of life there is always a supreme man; in his rank Macdonald was the supreme man.

Near Death at Majuba.

Two scenes in particular stand out from his career as evidences of this extraordinary and supreme courage. That scene at Majuba hill is one which was only possible to a man of extraordinary daring that doesn't know the meaning of fear, and that can look into the jaws of death without even a tremor or even a consciousness of its horror. The story has been told so often that one has almost to apologize for recapitulating it, but I must embody it in this article for the purpose of illustrating my view of Macdonald's character. At Majuba, Macdonald was a lieutenant in the Gordon Highlanders; he had already got so high by his bravery in Afghanistan; and here is what occurred:

The Gordons formed part of the force that on the night of Feb. 26 Sir George Colley led to their doom on Majuba hill. The disaster occurred on the following day. After Colley had been shot a small remnant of the Gordons remained. Lieut. Macdonald stubbornly fought a hopeless contest for seven hours.

Spared for His Bravery.

At length Macdonald was disarmed. All but helpless, he found the Boers upon him. But the weapons of his schoolboy days were of some effect. He promptly knocked down three of his enemies in succession with his fists. The fighting farmers of the Transvaal are men of courage, who know how to appreciate that quality in others. One of them was covering Macdonald with his rifle. Hector Macdonald's life was not worth a second's purchase. But, as the farmer was about to shoot, another—one of the three who had felt the hardness of Macdonald's fist—called to his fellow to "spare that brave man." And spared he was.

Just reflect on that scene for a moment. Think of the panic and despair by which Macdonald was surrounded; that the day had gone irretrievably against his comrades; that a hundred rifles were leveled at his breast; and that his only answer to all this terrific panoply of peril was to fight with his gun as long as he had one and then with his fists. There is not in history a more extraordinary example of absence of fear and grim tenacity in fighting unto death. One man like that is undoubtedly more than a thousand men in a fight which calls for obstinate and undying courage.

Saves Day at Omdurman.

The second scene, of course, which stands out in the career of Macdonald is that at Omdurman. It is evident that the credit of that great victory is almost entirely due to Macdonald. Kitchener had ordered the troops to enter Omdurman, and the advance had already begun there when it was found that there was still an army of 20,000 dervishes, fresh, brave, unconquered, ready once more to face the Maxims and to make a last desperate attempt to conquer or die.

The worst of the position, too, was that these dervish forces were advancing on Macdonald's troops from two sides, and that it appeared more than probable that if he defeated the one body he would be overwhelmed by the other. And the defeat of Macdonald might mean the defeat of the whole army, its defeat and annihilation.

Apparently there wasn't a single one of the main actors in this terrible scene who did not realize its awful peril, its hideous possibilities. Resistance was deemed so hopeless than Macdonald was ordered to retire. But retreat before an enemy so fast, so mobile, so brave, meant disaster on that side; and on the other the African troops he commanded were not troops to fight well in retreat; they were capable of sudden panic that would convert a retreat into a defeat; a defeat into a massacre.

Macdonald grasped the situation; that bulldog tenacity of his, that heroic courage, were better inspiration than prudence, and relapsing into the Doric of his native land he cried out: "Retreat. I'll not do it. I'll see them damned first. We maun just fight."

Greatest Moment of His Life.

This was the great moment of the battle, and also of Macdonald's life. Here is how it is described by Mr. Bennet Burleigh, the famous war correspondent of the Daily Telegraph:

"With a tact, coolness, and hardihood I have never seen equaled Col. Macdonald maneuvered and fought his men. They responded to his call with confidence and alacrity begotten of long acquaintance and implicit faith in their leader. He had led several of the battalions through a score of fierce fights and skirmishes, always emerging, and covering himself and his men with glory, honor, and victory. All of them knew him; they were proud of him.

"Unmistakably the khalifa and his son, the Sheikh El Din, thought that their fortunate hour had come—that in detail they would destroy first Macdonald, then one by one the other khedivial brigades. What might have happened had both father and son arrived at the same time and distance on both sides of Macdonald, as was evidently intended, I will not venture to discuss.

"Happily, the onslaughts did not quite synchronise, and Macdonald was able to devote virtually his whole firing strength to the overthrow of the khalifa's division before rapidly turning about first one, then another of his battalions to deal with the Sheikh El Din's unbroken columns. . . . Steady as a gladiator, with what to some of us looked like inevitable disaster staring him in the face, Macdonald fought his brigade for all it was worth. He moved quickly upon the best available ground, formed up, wheeled about, and stood to die or win. He won practically unaided."

Like a Brain in Ice.

The description by the late G. W. Stevens is also worth quoting—an achievement so supreme wants several chroniclers before its perils and its glories are wholly realized:

"But the cockpit of the fight was Macdonald's. The British might avenge his brigade; it was his to keep it and to kill off the attack. To meet it he turned his front through a complete half circle, facing successively south, west, and north. Every tactician in the army was delirious in praise of Col. Macdonald. The correspondent was content to watch the man and his blacks. 'Cool as on parade' is an old phrase; Macdonald Bey was much cooler. Beneath the strong, square hewn face you could tell that the brain was working as if packed in ice. And Macdonald fought and won."

"The brain was working as if packed in ice"—that is a fine phrase, and it gives one an idea of what Macdonald was like in hours of supreme danger. Danger transformed him into ice. When the dervishes were beaten reinforcements came to Macdonald, but they were not wanted. He had already saved the situation by his great courage, his extraordinary presence of mind, his promptitude of judgment, and his bulldog tenacity.

When Macdonald Came Home.

Everybody in England realized this mighty deed, and when Macdonald came home he was the idol of the people, and especially of his own people. The old Highland clans felt that in him there had been a revival of all the gallantry of their brave race, and what honors they could confer on Macdonald they conferred with a lavish hand—banquets, swords of honor, speeches in seas, champagne in oceans; all that vast and trying form of feasts through which the lion of a season has to pass. It was at this supreme hour in his life that I met Hector Macdonald for the first and the last time.

It was a lunch party given by my friend, Emerson Bainbridge, who at the time was M. P. for the Gainsborough division of Lincolnshire, and who, as everybody knows, is one of the pleasantest hosts of London. I was at once delighted and surprised in Macdonald. He looked the great soldier he was, and yet he was a little disappointing. His appearance is well given by the graphic pen of poor Stevens in these words:

"In person, 'Old Mac' is of middle height, but broad—so sturdily built that you might imagine him to be armour-plated under his clothes. He walks and rides with a resolute solidity bespeaking more strength than agility."

I would add to this that Macdonald had a black haired, bullet head, a strong and somewhat rough nose, a round and somewhat chubby face, mainly remarkable for the strength of the jaw, and pleasant eyes, not brilliant, with none of the strange, magnetic, affrighting gaze one sees in the eyes of Kitchener; with none of the quiet, leonine repose of the great hazel eyes of Sir Henry Stanley; with none of the bright brilliancy of alert observation in the blue eyes of Lord Roberts—just open, candid, average eyes.

Manliness and Bulldog Power.

But of course I saw Macdonald at a disadvantage. He was one of the men who ought never to have appeared out of uniform. He gave you the idea of strength, and splendid manliness, and bulldog power, but there was nothing of distinction in his air, in his manner, or in his dress. He just looked a Tommy, and a Tommy in his Sunday clothes, which is not Tommy at his best.

If I remember rightly the clothes were dark, were not well cut, gave you an impression of squareness rather than curves; in short, suggested the bourgeois citizen in his Sabbath garb. And the manner was pretty much the same; it lacked distinction. But, on the other hand, there was much compensation for all that in the quiet simplicity, the utter absence of pretense or self-consciousness. If this man was a hero, he himself was the last person to know it, and would never have thought of proclaiming it by a word or a look.

There was, too, in the man a certain brightness of humor characteristic of his race. He enjoyed a joke, and made one now and then, and his smile then was pleasant; indeed, except in battle perhaps, there was nothing grim at all about the man. For instance, Mr. Bainbridge asked him what was his solution for the Transvaal difficulty—we were then in the midst of the negotiations that ended in war—and Macdonald, with a twinkle in his eye, said he would land a few army corps in South Africa and answer Mr. Kruger after that fashion. He himself knew that it was a soldier's rough and ready method of solving a difficulty, and he laughed good humoredly as he expressed the opinion.

It is evident that for some time past Macdonald's mind was unhinged. The wound he got in south Africa; perhaps the strain of the work there; perhaps some personal disappointments—evidently destroyed that gayety of spirit which once was his; and the thin partition which divides reason from metal disease in so many men had broken down. It is, then, as of a man broken in health and mind that one must consider his last months of life. And his death, at all events, is an atonement and a reparation.

Tranquilly—so tranquilly that the dominant expression of his face after painful and self-inflicted death was peace—without a moment's doubt or hesitation, with the same promptitude as he turned defeat into victory in a battle's supreme hour of trial, Macdonald tried, and condemned, and executed himself.

TO RESIST AMERICAN INVASION.

Berlin Agrarians Are Instructed to Secure Alliance of Middle European States at Congress at Rome.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1903: By the New York Herald.]

PARIS, April 12.—The Berlin delegation of German agrarians, headed by Count Schwerin Lowitz, president of the German agricultural council, has been instructed to make efforts at the approaching international agricultural congress at Rome to secure an alliance of the middle European states to resist American invasion and the British preferential tariff policy, excluding foreign products from British colonies. A resolution to be presented provides for a special "most favored nation" treaty, granting all signatory powers on special rebates on goods imported from middle European countries, but applying a discriminatory tariff on American and British imports.

POWERS SHARE BAGDAD LINE.

Great Britain and France to Join Germany in Building Railroad in Asiatic Territory.

LONDON, April 13, 3 a. m.—The Standard learns that an agreement had been concluded whereby Great Britain, France, and Germany will participate equally in the control of the proposed Bagdad railway, the revenues of which will be guaranteed by the Turkish customs.

The main Bagdad railway is to run from Konia to Karamanereyli, Mossul, Bagdad, and Basra, with branches to Aleppo, Urfa, and the gulf of Alexandretta. The Germans obtained the concession for the line, and, according to a dispatch from Constantinople Feb. 12, the Turkish government guarantees an income of $2,200 per mile and an annual contribution of $800 per mile for working expenses.

The Russian press has been antagonistic to the Bagdad railway on the ground that it would increase British and more particularly German influence in those regions.

NEW AUSTRIAN CENSORSHIP.

Premier Koeber Announces That Board of Three Will Hereafter Pass on All Plays.

VIENNA, April 12.—Premier Koeber has issued a circular to the provincial governors revising the rules regulating the censorship of plays, which have been practically unchanged since 1850. One of the most interesting provisions in the circular is the creation of censorship councils, to which condemned plays must be referred. These councils will consist of three members, a government official, a legal official, and an independent member. The latter must be one specially acquainted with dramatic affairs.

China Honors Dead Viceroy.

PEKIN, April 12.—The empress dowager has issued an edict eulogizing the late Yung Lu and conferring on him posthumous honors similar to those conferred on Li Hung Chang. She has also telegraphed to Chang Chih Tung, viceroy of Nankin, to hasten his arrival in Pekin.

ALBANIANS NOT FOR PEACE

SULTAN'S ENVOYS WARNED THAT DEATH AWAITS THEM.

Commission on Way to Djakova to Induce Insurgents to Lay Down Arms and Accept Austro-Russian Plans for Reform Warned That Fate of Mehemid Ali Pasha Awaits Them—He Was Murdered While on a Similar Mission in 1878.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

BELGRADE, Servia, April 12.—The Turkish peace commission, which has been well received in two or three towns, has been warned not to go to Djakova, which is the center of Albanian resistance. Sadik Pasha, head of the commission, inquired whether the members might safely go to Djakova and received the following reply:

"Come not, for if ye come it will be done to you as it was to Mehemid Ali Pasha."

Mehemid Ali was an exalted Turkish official who was sent to Djakova in 1878 to persuade the Albanians to cede a small district to Montenegro in accordance with the Berlin treaty. The house he occupied was burned over his head and he was murdered.

King Alexander has sent a handsome metal coffin in which the body of M. Stcherbina, the Russian consul who was murdered at Mitrovitza, will be taken to Tchernigoff, his home.

Bulgaria Yields to Pressure.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

SOPHIA, Bulgaria, April 12.—The police took special measures today to prevent the holding of the meeting summoned by M. Michailowski, president of the Macedonian revolutionary committee, to consider Russia's action in Macedonia. Prime Minister Daneff sent for M. Michailowski, and finally persuaded him to abandon the meeting. This incident, like the new and energetic orders to prevent Bulgarian sympathizers with Macedonia from crossing the frontier, is indicative of Bulgaria's official compliance with Austrian and Russian pressure.

KAISER BACKS VON STERNBURG.

Emperor Decides to Make a Complete Change in Embassy Staff at Washington—Story of Quarrel Denied.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1903: By the New York Herald.]

BERLIN, April 12.—The kaiser has decided to make a complete change in the German embassy staff at Washington. This fact explains the sudden disappearance of Count Quadt and several of the attachés who accompanied Ambassador von Holleben to the American capital. The reported quarrel between Baron Speck von Sternburg and the attachés over questions of etiquette, it is declared, have nothing to do with their recall.

There is much feeling in German diplomatic circles because of these changes and the fact that they have the sanction of the kaiser. This can be appreciated when one realizes the exceedingly military like discipline observed in the German diplomatic service, and that promotion is adjusted according to length of service and rank. Baron von Sternburg's sudden leap from a consular position practically to that of an ambassador is almost unprecedented in the annals of German diplomacy and consequently there is much silent protest and bitter resentment.

The statement that former Ambassador von Holleben will soon leave for Washington to present his letter of recall is erroneous. He will not go to Washington. This is affirmed by the fact that Baron von Sternburg has now been provided with the necessary credentials as German ambassador. It appears that his period of probation has been successful, despite the embarrassing positions in which the home government has been placed by some of his indiscretions and the enmity aroused in the foreign office and members of the embassy staff at Washington by his sudden promotion.

READY TO REBUILD CAMPANILE.

Historic Facts Are Discovered by Examination of Bricks from Ruins of Old Tower.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ROME, April 12.—The first stone of the new campanile at Venice will be laid April 25. It is hoped by next spring that considerable progress will be made and that the whole will be finished by the spring of 1906.

In the course of a lecture on various data provided by the examination of the remains of the fallen tower it was said that the shape of the bricks proved then to have been used for various purposes at a previous stage. Their use was for arches, fortifications, the tops of walls, etcetera. A most important fact is that they are not Venetian, but Roman bricks.

Moreover, when they were manufactured they were not manipulated like modern bricks, but were formed from slices of clay as it was found, without the natural layers being disturbed. This process resulted in each individual brick being able to support a weight quite four times as great as the modern ones.

The bricks examined are of the first century. One bore the impression of a horseshoe, conclusively proving the debated point that horseshoes then were in use.

COLLAPSE OF HOLLAND STRIKE.

After a Stormy All Night Session the Union Laborers Decide to Return to Work.

AMSTERDAM, April 12.—The strike has collapsed. The aged socialist leader, Domela Nieuwenhuis, who emerged from his retirement in order to run the strike agitation, was present at a stormy meeting of the labor organization which sat during the whole of last night and until half past 6 o'clock this morning. He proposed to terminate the agitation, since the cause of labor had been betrayed. The meeting acquiesced in this view and decided not to elect a new strike committee. A similar decision was reached at a local meeting of strikers at Rotterdam.

Strike Riots in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 12.—Strikes have broken out at the Morhine shoe works and the Russo-American rubber works here, and bloody encounters have taken place between the strikers and the police. The czar's advisers are endeavoring to dissuade him from taking his intended journey to Italy for fear of anarchists.

CALVE GIVES UP ENGAGEMENT.

Opera Singer Refuses to Appear in "La Navarraise" Because Critics Hurt Her Feelings.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1903: By the New York Herald.]

PARIS, April 12.—Mme. Emma Calvé, who was to appear shortly at the Opera Comique in "La Navarraise," unexpectedly has canceled her engagement and paid the forfeit of $4,000. Mme Calvé says the critics have reproached her with always singing the same repertory. This has hurt her feelings, and, in order to show that she is capable of other work, she has decided to sing as Marguerite in Berlioz's "Damnation de Faust," which was adapted to the stage by M. Raoul Gansbough, manager of the Monte Carlo theater. Mme. Calvé will sing this opera next month at the Theatre Sarah Bernhardt.

GUSTAVE MOINECKE IS DEAD.

German Writer Who Spent Many Years in the United States Passes Away in Berlin.

BERLIN, April 12.—Gustave Moinecke is dead. He spent a number of years in the United States, where he was connected with various German newspapers. Since his return to Germany he has been identified with colonial undertakings and edited the Colonial Zeitung and the Colonial Year Book.

Brest Naval Chapel Closed.

BREST, France, April 12.—Mass was celebrated for the last time today in the naval chapel here. Many high officers of the navy and local notabilities were present. In accordance with the orders of Marine Minister Pelletan the chapel will now be closed.

LOUBET STARTS ALGERIAN TOUR.

President of France to Be Feted by Towns and Saluted by Many Warships.

SAILS ON JEANNE D'ARC.

Sultan of Morocco and Bey of Tunis Arrange for Meeting of Great Moment.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, April 12.—President Loubet, accompanied by M. Fallieres, president of the senate, Foreign Minister Delcasse, and M. Pelletan, the minister of marine, left Paris this evening for Marseilles on his way to Algeria. The president was warmly cheered as, accompanied by an escort of cuirassiers, he drove across Paris from the Elysée palace to the Lyons railway station. Premier Combes and those ministers who do not accompany the president were present at the station to bid him farewell.

After a short stay in Marseilles, where great fêtes will be given in his honor, President Loubet will embark next Tuesday on the new warship Jeanne d'Arc, and, accompanied by MM. Fallieres, Delcasse, and Pelletan, and escorted by the battleship Saint Louis, will proceed to Algiers, where a large French fleet is assembled to receive him. Squadrons of British, Italian, and Russian warships are also now assembling at Algiers in his honor.

Sultan of Morocco to Meet Him.

The president will remain in Algeria until April 26, visiting important points in the colony, both on the coast and in the interior. It is expected that during his stay a meeting will be arranged with the sultan of Morocco, the latter coming to some point in Algeria near the Moroccan frontier for that purpose. Everywhere throughout the colony splendid fêtes are being organized in honor of President Loubet, this being the first time since Napoleon III.'s visit that a ruler of France has visited Algeria.

The French president will embark again on the warship Jeanne d'Arc for Tunis. He will land April 27 at La Goletta, the port of Tunis, where the bey of Tunis and all the high officials of the regency will be assembled to receive him. After spending three days in visiting the various parts of Tunis, President Loubet will embark at the naval port of Bizerta the evening of April 29 for Marseilles. He will arrive in Paris in time to receive Edward VII. on the arrival of the king of England here.

Political Significance in Trip.

Besides Ministers Delcasse and Pelletan, M. Maurejouls, minister of public works, also will be of the presidential party. He has gone in advance to meet the president at Algiers. A number of senators and deputies will accompany the presidential party throughout the trip, being accommodated during the trip across the Mediterranean on board the battleship Saint Louis. Much political significance is attached to the journey, as it is the first time that any president of the French republic has visited her African possessions, and it will be the first meeting on African soil between a French ruler and a north African sultan and the bey of Tunis.

While the international attention shown to President Loubet by the assemblage of a powerful foreign squadron in Algerian waters to salute him on his arrival is not without significance, the fact that the bey of Tunis will go to receive the president on his landing, an honor that that potentate has never before paid any royal visitor, already has made a powerful impression on the Tunisians, who consider this a complete acknowledgment of French sovereignty.

LIPTON'S CHAUFFEUR FINED $25

Yachtsman Himself in the Automobile, but Escapes a Summons—Trial Amuses English Judge.

[FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, April 5.—Sir Thomas Lipton's chauffeur, Bernard Humphreys, was today fined $25 and costs for driving his motor car at a greater speed than twelve miles an hour. Sir Thomas himself was in the automobile at the time, but was not summoned.

Police Constable Deacon said he saw a motor car pass him one evening "so fast that he could not time it." It was going faster than he had ever seen a motor car go before. Next day he saw the car coming back and stopped the driver (the defendant). Witness mentioned what he had seen the previous evening, and Sir Thomas Lipton replied:

"You are right, policeman. I must admit that I was going beyond my speed. I wanted to get to Southampton quickly."

Sir Thomas afterwards said: "I hope you won't summon me. Have you had any complaints?" The constable replied, "Yes, many." Sir Thomas asked further, "Have you reported them to your inspector?" "Yes," replied the constable.

"That is where you were wrong," commented Sir Thomas. He then said to the constable, "Do your best not to get me summoned, because I have to go to Scotland to see to my yacht for the race."

The constable rejoined, "So I see in the newspapers; and I assure you, Sir Thomas, that if your yacht goes as fast in the race as your motor car did yesterday you are bound to win."

The court and the defendant laughed heartily during the constable's recital. This is the second time that Sir Thomas Lipton's driver has been fined at this court, and each time it has been on the information of the same constable.

Transatlantic Liners the Object of "Dummy" Attacks from Beneath the Water's Surface.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1903: By the New York Herald.]

CHERBOURG, April 12.—A fresh exploit of the French submarine boats took place yesterday. As the Bretagne was nearing Havre the submarine Espador laid in wait and came to the surface 200 yards from the liner as it was passing. The submarine Silure did better still. It placed itself so it was right between the Bretagne and the liner Champagne as they crossed one another, torpedoed them from stem simultaneously, and then suddenly appeared on the surface to the intense surprise of the passengers.

STOKERS' STRIKE BRINGS VIOLENCE

Lawlessness in Three Cities as Result of the Attempt to Defeat the Union.

SHOT IS FIRED HERE.

In Buffalo Five Men Are Kidnaped and Students' Friends Are Fearful.

The attempt to fill the places of the striking lake firemen was productive of violence in three cities yesterday or last night.

In Chicago a representative of the Lake Carriers' association reported to the police that an attempt had been made on his life and in Buffalo five nonunion men, who shipped from Chicago, were dragged from a steamer and badly beaten. Cleveland, too, was the scene of lawlessness.

The story of the Buffalo attack caused some anxiety, as it was feared that the Mack was the vessel, on which the University of Chicago students shipped as stokers.

Says His Life Is Sought.

The story of the alleged attempt to kill in Chicago was told to the Harrison street police by J. W. Hanson, who came from Buffalo two weeks ago as agent for the Lake Carriers' association, and has been seeking to engage firemen to take the places of the strikers, who have tied up the grain fleet since the beginning of the season. He has secured thirty stokers, among them athletes from the University of Chicago.

Hanson asserts he has been in constant danger since arriving in the city, and has received several warnings to leave. He maintains death has been threatened more than once, and says the shooting was the culmination of a series of minor disturbances.

Describes Alleged Attack.

"I was sitting at the desk in my office at 100 Van Buren street," said Hanson, "when the door was thrown open and a revolver was leveled at my head. I dodged just as the man was about to fire, and the bullet imbedded itself in the wall at my back. I could not describe the man, as he did not let me see his face, but stood back of the half opened door. After he had fired he ran down the stairs. I did not try to catch him but cried for help. No one came, and the fellow escaped."

Detectives accompanied Hanson to his office and found a bullet in the wall. It would have struck Hanson in the head had he been sitting in his desk chair at the time it was fired. The detectives closely questioned every one in the building at the time of the shooting, but none heard any further disturbance. The police believe that Hanson's assailant could not have escaped without notice, and no one has been found who heard Hanson calling for help.

Union leaders suggest that Hanson may have fired the shot himself in order to draw the attention of the police to his alleged danger. Members of the Marine Firemen's union deny the existence of any plot to make way with Hanson, but say they would be pleased to have him leave the city.

Story of Buffalo Attack.

It was not until after midnight that it was reported from Buffalo that the five nonunion firemen had been dragged from the steamer William S. Mack by strikers, who clambered over the rail as soon as the ship reached the dock. The nonunion men were rushed to the headquarters of the union, and there were set upon and beaten.

When the police arrived and surrounded the hall the strikers were frenzied, and were threatening four of the nonunion men with death. The fifth of the kidnaped men could not be found, and the police were unable to learn whether he escaped or suffered more seriously than his companions. The steamer Mack cleared from South Chicago last week.

Earlier in the evening a report came from Cleveland that Peter Jansen, who was charged with having been a traitor to the Lake Seamen's union, had been severely beaten by a mob of strike sympathizers.

Student Stokers Give Offense.

During the day the Building Material Trades council adopted resolutions protesting against the action of the six University of Chicago students who took the places of striking firemen on a lake boat.

The members of the council, which represents 30,000 organized workers, were indignant. After exhausting their oratory they decided to send a committee of three to President Harper with a protest against permitting students to take the places of strikers. If it is done all the union men employed on the buildings of the university will be asked to strike.

"It seems to be the policy of the University of Chicago to array itself against organized labor," said George Hodge, international secretary of the Brick, Tile and Terra Cotta Workers' union. The University of Chicago is too great a power to be allowed to follow out the policy of those who make their millions by the power of capital."

"I do not understand," said Prof. Francis W. Shepardson, secretary to the president, in the afternoon, "how the unions can regard the university as in any way responsible for the six students going to work as firemen. We do not presume to exercise control over the students except in their relation to the university.

"The university did not furnish the six students. We knew nothing of their going until the news appeared in the papers."

FEARS DISGRACE OF ARREST: TRIES TO DIE IN A CELL.

James Doyle, a Grocer from Joliet, Attempts to Kill Himself to Avoid Appearing in Police Court in This City.

Preferring death to the disgrace which he believed would follow his appearance in police court, James Doyle, a grocer at Joliet, attempted suicide at the Harrison street police station yesterday. He was arrested Saturday afternoon on a charge of disorderly conduct, and though he begged to be released he was taken to the station and locked up. Yesterday morning Doyle was found lying on the floor of his cell unconscious, and a bottle which had contained vitriol was at his side. The man was taken to the county hospital at once and the physicians worked over him for several hours before consciousness returned. Doyle refused to discuss his attempt on his life. His condition is reported serious, but if he recovers the police say he will be taken into police court to face the charge made against him.

Ends Life with a Bullet.—Thomas F. Cook, 6742 State street, was found dead in bed yesterday, shot through the head. The bullet evidently was fired by his own hand, as a revolver was found at his side. Cook was a saloonkeeper and 38 years old. Mrs. Cook could give no reason for her husband killing himself, but said he had been worried recently about business affairs. Besides the widow, Cook left eight children.

Fireman Tries to Die.—John Schauss, 21 years old, a marine fireman, lies at the County hospital in a critical condition as the result of an attempt to end his life by swallowing some kind of poison yesterday at Lake street and St. John's place. As a cause for his act Schauss told the police he had quarreled with a friend over something which he refused to divulge. Schauss lives at 591 West Van Buren street.

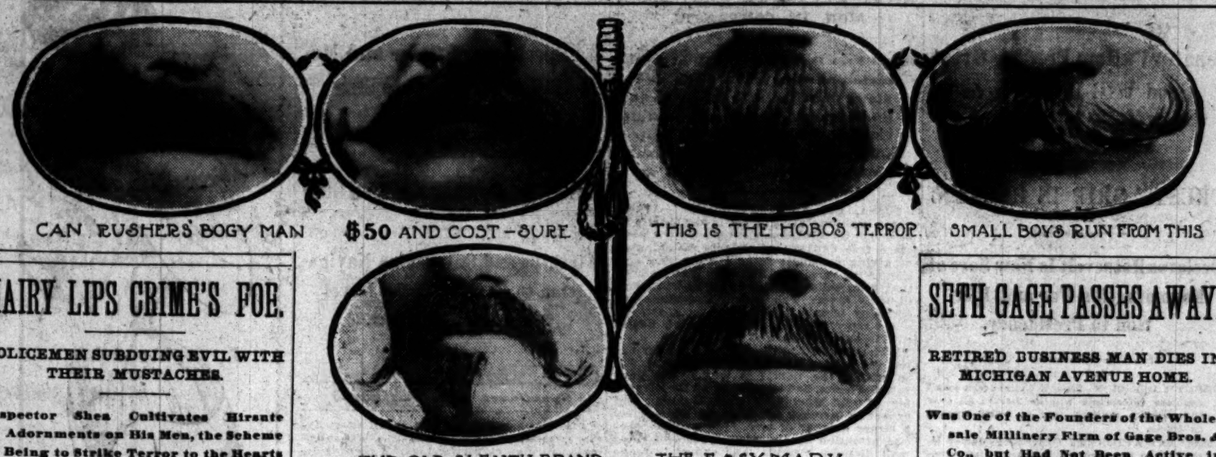

Collapses on Train; Dies.

While being conveyed to the county hospital in a patrol wagon W. J. Moran, 24 years old, of Cleveland, O., died early yesterday morning. He had been to Denver, Colo., for his health and was on his way home when he collapsed on a Santa Fé train.

SPEAK SOFTLY, CARRY A BIG STICK, AND WEAR A FIERCE MUSTACHE, IS THE ADVICE OF INSPECTOR SHEA TO THE WEST SIDE POLICEMEN.

The larger the mustache the better the policeman. Such is the opinion of Inspector Shea, and to win the favor of their superior the policemen of the west side are vying with each other to see who can cultivate the fiercest looking hirsute adornment. Inspector Shea's idea is that a big mustache gives a policeman a military appearance and aids him in his work by striking terror to the hearts of evildoers.

HAIRY LIPS CRIME'S FOE.

POLICEMEN SUBDUING EVIL WITH THEIR MUSTACHES.

Inspector Shea Cultivates Hirsute Adornments on His Men, the Scheme Being to Strike Terror to the Hearts of Evil Doers of the West Side — Some of the Popular Styles and the Purposes They Serve—Woe for All Offenders.

Speak softly, carry a big stick, and wear a fierce mustache. That is the way Inspector Shea amends President Roosevelt's advice.

To carry out his policy he has cultivated a crop of hirsute adornments on the upper lips of the patrolmen of the west side, the same being intended to strike terror to the hearts of all holdup men, porch climbers, gold brick, and bad men and boys generally. When the patrolmen of the west side line up at roll call they present an appearance that is calculated to make half the cooks on the west side change their "steadies."

The mustaches on the force in Inspector Shea's district are not uniform, and it can be told at a glance just what line of work the patrolman is doing, exactly what station he "travels" from, and the character of the neighborhood in which his beat is laid. Besides, one can tell the nationality of the policeman.

The Germans on the force are all affecting the kaiser, turning their mustaches up at the ends. The Irishmen working in the Ghetto district use the Italian style, and some of them are thinking of adding a goatee à la Mafia to help inspire terror.

Out near Garfield park the men are affecting the wild west mustachios, sweeping and wide spreading.

Good for Election Day.

A favorite style is the portiere which is guaranteed to start from the nose and hang down over the widest upper lip on the staff. An exception, however, is made of Patrolman Stapleton's upper lip. He is thinking of growing two mustaches. The portiere is caculated to strike terror into the heart of the hobo and the lodging house bum.

Another mode is "the bogy man," which, Inspector Shea declares, will cause the bravest "can rusher" to flee to cover. The Texas steer, too, is becoming popular, its graceful, sweeping lines causing much admiration on the boulevards. That mode is declared to mean $50 and costs at the least.

"The nightmare" is another cut that is affected. It will strike terror into the hearts of small boys and cause them to stop throwing stones at peddlers and scamper to cover when the policeman is a block away.

The "easy mark" is used only on the "soft beats" and is unpopular near the river. It is used by policemen intending to lead porch climbers to think they are "easy" and to try to "pull off" a "job" on that supposition.

Saves the Poor Indians.

The Old Sleuth is worn only by "plain clothes men." It is modeled after the pictures on the back of dime novels and is warranted to make boys who aspire to hold up stages and fight Indians abandon their intentions and rush to the John Worthy school by preference. Sometimes it makes them reform and try to get on the force themselves.

Inspector Shea thinks his idea is a great one. He says it is much easier for a man with a mustache to make an arrest, and it is evident that Inspector Shea practices what he preaches. He once wore a plain face—the same face which he has now upholstered with hair and trimmed with gorgeous red fringe.

LESTER L. BOND SERIOUSLY ILL.

Pioneer Lawyer of Chicago Is Stricken While on a Business Trip to Salt Lake City.

Lester L. Bond, one of the oldest lawyers of Chicago and an old settler, is seriously ill at his home, 512 West Monroe street. Mr. Bond, who is 74 years of age, made a business trip to Salt Lake City several days ago and while there suffered a general physical collapse. He returned to Chicago immediately. Mr. Bond came to Chicago in 1854 and took up the practice of law at once. He was a member of the board of education for four years, represented the Eleventh ward in the council six years, and in 1873, in the absence of Mayor Medill, was acting mayor of the city. He was a member of the legislature from 1867 to 1871, and represented the Second congressional district as presidential elector. He is also a thirty-second degree Mason.

QUARREL ENDS IN A SHOOTING.

Charles Barrett Wounded in the Shoulder by a Bullet — Four Men Are Arrested.

Charles Barrett, 409 North Clark street, was shot and seriously wounded yesterday morning by Charles Props in the latter's restaurant at 149 North Clark street. The bullet struck Barrett in the left shoulder, and he was taken to the Passavant hospital. Props, Thomas Weir, George Phillips, and Michael Burnes were locked up at the East Chicago avenue station. The shooting was the result of a quarrel, but none of the men would tell the police what the trouble was about or whether the shot was fired accidentally or otherwise.

LIGHT ON LOEB DISCOVERY

PROF. M. H. FISCHER MODIFIES THE CONCLUSIONS.

Finds That Parthenogenesis with Eggs of the Nereis Can Be Brought About with Sugar Solution Same as with Salt or Potassium Chloride—This Apparently Overthrows Idea That Electricity Effects the Result and Credits It to Osmotic Pressure.

Continuation of the search after the secret of life along the lines first suggested by Prof. Jacques Loeb has brought to light facts concerning the artificial production and preservation of life from the unfertilized eggs of sea animals.

Dr. Martin H. Fischer, who accompanied Dr. Loeb from Chicago to the University of California, has announced the results of a series of experiments which show that cane sugar has almost as strong an effect in bringing about the development of life from the eggs of the nereis, a small sea worm, as common salt or potassium chloride, which were employed by Dr. Loeb. The experiments which have led to Dr. Fischer's discovery were nearly all made during his connection with the University of Chicago, and extended over a period of two years. The announcement has just been received at the university through the Journal of Physiology.

Puts New Light on Loeb Discovery.

The discovery puts a new light on some of Dr. Loeb's discoveries. The two substances employed by Dr. Loeb, salt and potassium chloride, are what scientists call electrolytes. In solution their infinitely small particles bear electrical charges. Such particles are called ions. The theory first advanced to explain why eggs of nereis, when treated with salt water containing potassium chloride, or an extra amount of salt, developed into swimming larvæ, was that life was preserved and development produced by the effect of the ions. A second theory was advanced that the change might be due to osmotic pressure.

Dr. Fischer's experiments, scientists think, go to prove the correctness of the second theory. Cane sugar in solution is a nonelectrolyte; that is, it does not ionize, or separate into electrically charged particles. At the same time it is found that the osmotic pressure of the cane sugar-sea water solution is about the same as that of the sea water containing potassium chloride or an extra amount of salt.

Blow to the Ion Theory.

Dr. David J. Lingle of the department of physiology at the University of Chicago said: "Dr. Fischer's discovery tends to substantiate the theory that the parthenogenesis is due to the passage of water from the egg to the solution containing the salt. Such an explanation, of course, does not go to the bottom of the matter, which apparently grows more complicated the farther we go. Dr. Fischer's experiments appear to disprove the idea that the power of substances to bring about parthenogenesis is proportionate to the number of electrical charges their ions carry."

When the eggs are placed in the solutions of sea water, the concentration of which has been increased by the addition of salt, potassium chloride, or cane sugar, by osmotic pressure, the water contained in the structure of the egg penetrates the inclosing membrane and goes into the solution.

"It seems, therefore," says Dr. Fischer, "that the essential factor in bringing about artificial parthenogenesis in nereis is an abstraction of water from the egg."

WILL TEST CIVIL SERVICE LAW.

Change in Office of City Clerk the First Real Trial of Its Strength.

What is regarded by some as the first real test of the civil service law will be had next week, when City Clerk-elect Bender takes charge of his office. It will be the first time since civil service employés have been appointed in the city hall that a change of management has occurred in any office over which the civil service commission has jurisdiction.

It is reported in political circles that Mr. Bender has some friends whom he would like to put in his office, but every position is now filled by a civil service employé, and they claim they cannot be disturbed.

What makes them the more confident in this is that the standing of this office has already been adjudicated, City Clerk Loeffler objecting when the commission took charge of his office and contesting the matter in the courts. The decision was against him.

BOY SLEUTHS TELL TRICK

EXPLAIN HOW THEY OUTWITTED "BUD" WHITE'S GAMBLERS.

Y. M. C. A. Youths Played the Races for Three Weeks as a Shield for Their Investigations and Finally Secured Warrants for the Arrest of the Attaches of the Lorrilard Poolroom—Learned Names in a Downtown Saloon—Surprise for Bookmakers.

The two Y. M. C. A. boy detectives, W. B. C. Phelps and Ralph N. Post, who caused the arrest of three of "Bud" White's bookmakers at Lorrilard, explained yesterday how they outwitted the gamblers.

Both posed as University of Chicago students, and their appearance carried out their claims. Phelps parts his hair in the middle and it is curly and long. Post also could pass as a student. The bookmakers encouraged their efforts to pick winning horses, but the young men's expense accounts show that both came home losers every evening.

When warrants for the arrest of James Devine, Charles Pack, and Henry O'Brien were served on the three bookmakers they asked who had taken out the papers.

"W. B. C. Phelps? I never heard of him," said Devine.

Pack and O'Brien also declared that they, too, had not that honor.

When the case was called in Justice Murray's court, in Waukegan, last Saturday Phelps and Post were pointed out as the prosecuting witnesses.

"Why, they are those fresh students," exclaimed Devine. "And we have been taken in by those two 'kids'? Well, wouldn't that freeze you?"

How Gamblers Were Outwitted.

Phelps and Post are studying in the Secretarial Institute and Training school. Phelps came from Seattle, Wash., about a year ago. Post's home is in Rockford, Ill., and he came to Chicago two years ago. They are about 20 years old.

Franklin W. Ganse and Bryan Y. Craig, the attorneys representing the Citizens' league of Lake county, asked the two young men to assist them in getting evidence against the poolroom operators at Lorillard and they agreed to help.

"We must know the names of these men and must know that they are actually taking bets," said the lawyers.

When the race train left the Union station on Feb. 27 Phelps and Post were aboard. They knew no one on the train, and none of the poolroom attaches knew them.

"Students," ventured one gambler. "Wearing college pins, and get on to that crop of hair."

In the poolroom they wandered about awhile, then put a half a dollar apiece into a common fund and bet it on a horse that ran last. Their funds diminished as the afternoon wore away, and by 5 o'clock both were ready to leave.

Resch the "Sh-h, Sh-h" Stage.

The next afternoon they repeated the performance, and met a man who said that he was one of the house detectives and that his name was Harry Wilson. This man asked them who they were and afterwards escorted them back of the screen that hides the heavy bettors from the dollar players.

"Don't tell any one about us," pleaded Post. "We must keep our friends from knowing that we come out here."

"Leave that to me," said Wilson. "I'll take care of you all right."

In the evening when Devine and the rest of the assistants returned from the poolroom, Post and Phelps followed them and made inquiries at Chapin & Gore's, to which place the gamblers were trailed.

"Who is that talking to Jones?" Phelps asked one of the waiters, pointing to one of the men.

"That is not Jones. That is Jimmy Devine," was the reply.

Devine remembered that he had seen the young men at the poolroom and when they wanted to be friendly and buy cigars he accepted. Then he introduced his companions.

Three Weeks of Betting.

The "detectives" were regular attendants at the betting ring for three weeks. Every day they lost. Finally Post suggested a plunge of $5 on I. O. U., a horse running at Oakland. I. O. U. won at 5 to 1.

"Thirty dollars," gasped Post. "What will we do with it?"

A few more bets settled this difficulty.

In the three weeks the boys became acquainted with Harry Holland, White, and others. Then they reported to the attorneys that they were ready and warrants for a dozen or more persons were secured. So far Pack, Devine, and O'Brien have been bound over to the Lake county grand jury and the others will be arrested as fast as they can be found.

"I feel that I did right," said Phelps yesterday afternoon. "I am working for the uplifting of mankind, and these men are working to drag men down."

Phelps lives at 230 Ontario street and Post at 262 Ontario street.

BOY SLEUTHS WHO OUTWITTED GAMBLERS.

Phelps and Post are the Y. M. C. A. amateur detectives who secured evidence against "Bud" White and his Lorrilard bookmakers. Three of the gamblers already have been arrested.

FAITHFUL CITY PUMPS MUST GO.

Old Timers at the Chicago Avenue Station Will Soon Be Replaced by More Modern Machinery.

The three old pumps which have supplied water from the station at Chicago avenue and Lincoln Park boulevard are to be replaced with smaller but more powerful and modern machinery. Three triple expansion pumps, each with a capacity of 25,000,000 gallons a day, are to be installed within a short time.

The first of the old timers that is to go is a pump which has for years been known as "Old Sallie." It has seen fifty-one years of continuous service, and was one of the pumps that supplied water for the great fire.

All of the present pumps are of the ancient walking beam pattern. The largest of the three, which stands in the south end of the building, is not only the largest pump in the world, but, with the exception of two or three of the engines in the cable power plants, is the largest piece of single machinery in Chicago.

Outside of the building three wells are being sunk. One on the west side is completed, and two others on the south side will be finished within a few weeks. These wells are to be used as reservoirs between the water mains in Oak street and the pumps. When the last of the three wells is complete the work of replacing the old pumps will begin.

SETH GAGE PASSES AWAY.

RETIRED BUSINESS MAN DIES IN MICHIGAN AVENUE HOME.

Was One of the Founders of the Wholesale Millinery Firm of Gage Bros. & Co., but Had Not Been Active in Firm's Affairs for Ten Years—End Comes on the Eighty-sixth Birthday of His Wife, Who Survives Him.

Seth Gage, one of the founders of Gage Bros. & Co., wholesale milliners at 129-131 Michigan avenue, died yesterday at his residence, 325 Michigan avenue. He was 85 years old, and retired from active business ten years ago. His death occurred on the eve of the eighty-sixth birthday of Mrs. Gage, who survives him.

Mr. Gage was born in Pelham, Hillsboro county, N. H., May 23, 1818. The founder of the family in America was John Gage, who more than 250 years ago located in Salem, Mass. Seth Gage, when he had attained his majority, left home and went to the neighboring city of Lowell, Mass., and materially aided in the upbuilding of that city.

In 1871 Mr. Gage became a resident of Chicago. He identified himself with the interests of the city immediately after the great fire and took an active part in its rebuilding. He invested largely in property here and was prominently connected with mercantile interests until his retirement. Besides his widow he left one son, Albert S. Gage. The funeral will be held at the residence on Wednesday and will be private.

OLD ILLINOIS RESIDENT DEAD.

Nelson Lay, Founder of Two Towns, Passes Away at Daughter's Residence in Chicago.

Nelson Lay, one of the oldest residents of Illinois, and a man who helped to found two towns, is dead at the age of 91 years. Mr. Lay came to Chicago from New England sixty-five years ago, moving later to Wisconsin, and then back to Illinois. His death occurred at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Warren A. Pierce, 4227 Berkeley avenue, Saturday night, and was due to old age.

Mr. Lay was born in Saybrook, Conn., on Jan. 20, 1812. In 1838 he came west, and having stopped for a time in Chicago went to Kenosha, Wis., where he engaged in the grain business. Later he returned to this city, and in 1857, with several other citizens, founded the town of Kewanee, Ill. He was elected a member of the legislature in 1862.

Mr. Lay was one of the early members of the Chicago board of trade, and with a number of his friends founded the town of Hinsdale. During the greater part of his life he was engaged in the handling of grain, but retired from business about twenty-five years ago. Six years ago he celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of his marriage, and a year later his wife died. He left three sons and two daughters. The funeral and interment will take place at Kewanee tomorrow afternoon.

Altoona, Pa., April 12.—[Special.]—A memorial service was held this morning by the Second Presbyterian church congregation for the late Rev. William J. Chichester, their first pastor, and more recently of the First Presbyterian church of Chicago. The large church, of which he was the founder, was crowded. Historical and reminiscent addresses were delivered. The present pastor, the Rev. Henry Howard Stiles, took for the subject of his sermon, "A Forceful Life," and paid a tribute to the character and career of the departed divine.

When a young man he settled in Laramie, became interested in the Laramie Boomerang, and took Bill Nye in partnership with him.

DR. J. C. GORDON, superintendent of the Illinois Institution for the Deaf and Dumb at Jacksonville, Ill., died in that city yesterday after an operation for appendicitis.

RETIRED WHOLESALE MILLINER IS DEAD.

RIVAL TO OLD DEMOCRACY

NEW ORGANIZATION COMPOSED OF HARRISON FOLLOWERS.

E. M. Lahiff, Who Calls Meeting to Order, Denies That the Purpose Is to Advance the Political Fortunes of Any Individual—James H. Farrell and Capt. Anson Rivals for Office of Grand Marshal—Committee Is Appointed to Report Later.

A rival to the County Democracy was started yesterday. It has not been christened formally, but probably will be called the Chicago Democracy. It is explained by Edward M. Lahiff that the name "Federa Democracy" was the invention of some wicked men who had not the fear of the mayor in their hearts.

Mr. Lahiff, in calling to order the meeting held at the Briggs house, said the purpose of the organization was not to boom Mr. Harrison in any way nor to advance the political fortunes of any person or faction on the democratic county committee, but to further the cause of democracy in Chicago. This, he said, he would state, both as secretary to the mayor and also as secretary of the committee.

Outside of listening to speeches, all that was done was to appoint committees on organization and constitution, which are to report next Sunday. It will be the duty of the first named one to suggest names for the officers of the new club and there is a promise of a row here at the start.

Rival Candidates for Marshal.

The meeting, at the suggestion of the chair, recommended Capt. Adrian C. Anson for the position of grand marshal for the marching club which is to be formed, and this was at once resented by the friends of Capt. James H. Farrell, who lost his place as marshal of the County Democracy because he stood by the mayor and fought Robert E. Burke. They declare Farrell is entitled to the honor and will make a fight to get it for him.

As to the other offices, Mr. Lahiff explained it was not the desire to elect men who were identified with either faction of the County Democracy, and the understanding is the committee on organization will pick out members whose names are not on the city pay rolls.

Speeches in praise of the purpose of the new organization were made by John Kehoe, Capt. Anson, and others, and there was a call for Lockwood Honoré.

"Mr. Honoré is not here," said the chairman.

"Yes, he is," insisted a man in the audience. "He is right alongside of me."

But Mr. Honoré was not called on until three or four others had been given a chance to speak, and when his name was called he had gone.

Over 300 Join the Organization.

Between 300 and 350 people were present and signed the application cards for membership. There were more than could well crowd into the small room where the meeting was held. A large proportion belong to the County Democracy, but are of the city hall faction, and it is threatened they will send in their resignations to the older body. All present were of the Harrison faction of the democratic party. The committees appointed were:

Organization—James A. Quinn, William H. Ehemann, James J. Gray, George A. McConnell, John E. Owens, John P. Tansey, W. J. O'Connell, J. Pernard, John E. Traeger.

Constitution and bylaws—Philip McKenna, T. J. Johnson, D. R. Levy.

County Democracy Still Active.

The County Democracy held its regular meeting in the afternoon. In order to show it was not moribund fifty-four new members were initiated and the main part of the afternoon was taken up with this work. The greatest applause came from the frank statement of a new member named M. Deutsch, who, when called on to make a speech, explained that he had voted since 1865 and "never cast a republican ballot until the last election."

MONTICELLO SOCIETY TO MEET.

Reunion and Reception of Alumni and Pupils of Illinois' Oldest School for Girls.

The annual reunion and reception of the Monticello society of Chicago will be held Thursday afternoon, April 16, at the Victoria. This society is composed of alumni and pupils of Monticello seminary, the oldest school for girls in Illinois. It was established in 1835 by Capt. Benjamin Godfrey, in the village near Alton which bears his name.

STAMM DEFIES THE 'SWEATBOX.'

Suspected Wife Murderer Again Put Through Severe Examination, but with Practically No Results.

Wilford N. Stamm, accused of the murder of his wife, again underwent the "sweatbox" proceedings at the West North avenue police station yesterday afternoon, but nothing of any importance could be learned from him by Inspector Wheeler and Lieut. Max Danner. The inspector is still hopeful that the prisoner will weaken and tell more about the affair.

Talks Politics; Gets Whipped.

Following a quarrel over the recent election, James Miller, 33 years old, was severely beaten yesterday in a saloon at Congress and Halsted streets. He is at the county hospital and is suffering from three severe scalp wounds. The man who assaulted him escaped.

ALLEGES OFFER TO KNIFE TULEY.

Dowie Charges Support for Harrison Was Sought at Such a Price.

SAYS HE NAMED KIPLEY.

Reward for Influence in Previous Campaign Is Asserted by the Healer.

Intrenched behind his Zion guards, who formed a line in front of the Auditorium stage and carefully watched the movements of every one in the parquet, John Alexander Dowie yesterday gave a dramatic account of his alleged dealings with the Harrison democracy.

He began by announcing that he was about to expose the "faithlessness of Mayor Harrison and a shameless offer to knife Judge Tuley at the coming judicial election in exchange for Zion's support of Harrison at the last election."

Leads Up to Charges.

"Mayor Harrison secured his election for a fourth term," said Dowie in introducing the subject, "although I am convinced that Mr. Stewart was really elected by the popular vote, but counted out. This is the fruit of the corrupt system of elections in this city, under which an honest election is practically impossible.

"Just think of the enormous power of the democratic machine, with its army of officeholders, who practically control the election machinery. The democratic machine controls the police force and to the police the ballot boxes are intrusted. Nothing is easier for a policeman than to stuff a ballot box on the way from the polling place to the city hall, and I am convinced that this has been done.

"Mr. Stewart was not my choice, but after Mr. Harlan failed to obtain the nomination I decided to support him, as I considered he would do all he could to rid the city from gambling houses and other dens of vice. During his first two terms I supported Mayor Harrison, although he did not come up to my expectations in many respects. Toward the end of his second term I became dissatisfied with his methods, particularly his policy in regard to saloons, gambling houses, and other dens of vice.

Says He Named Kipley.

"At the beginning of the campaign for the third term Robert E. Burke came to me and asked me whether I would again support Mr. Harrison. I told him that I would if Mr. Harrison would promise to make Joseph Kipley chief of police, and give him perfectly free hand and independence from the machine. Mr. Burke informed me that Mr. Harrison would be willing to make that promise. I was not satisfied with that, but sent my legal representative to Mr. Harrison and obtained from him a written promise, which is still in my possession.

"Then I gave Mr. Harrison my support, and he was elected. Some time after the election I reminded the mayor of his promise to make Kipley, to whom I shall always be grateful for having saved my life when the mob threatened me, chief of police. What do you suppose Mr. Harrison said when he was reminded? He said: 'Dowie be d——d!' That was where Mr. Harrison was mistaken. I shall be saved, while he shall be lost for telling lies and violating his promises.

Calls Guards to Protect Him.

"Now, my friends, I have another story to tell."

The speaker paused, then cried:

"Zion guards, come forward, and line up in front of the stage!"

From all parts of the house the guards hurried to the front and obeyed the command.

"Now, men," ordered Dowie, addressing the guards, "keep your eyes on the audience and seize any man who should draw a revolver!

"I take this precaution," continued Dowie, "because I have been threatened with violence in case I should expose what I intend to tell you, and because a few minutes ago I saw a man in the parquet take something out of his hip pocket that looked like a pistol. I received an anonymous letter by mail yesterday, written on stationery of the Lakota hotel, in which the writer threatened to shoot me if I should betray the secret I am about to divulge.

"About three weeks ago Granville W. Browning, master in chancery and a Harrison partisan, asked me for an interview, which I refused, because I did not care to have anything to do with Mr. Browning. He repeated the request several times without success. When I went to my office in the Zion building on Michigan boulevard two weeks ago, about noon, I found Mr. Browning waiting for me.

Alleges Offer to "Knife" Tuley.

"He asked me whether I would support Mr. Harrison, and I answered him with an emphatic 'No!' Then he asked me whether I would not change my decision if he should show me that it would be in my interest and for the benefit of Zion if I should support Mr. Harrison. I answered him that I was done with Mr. Harrison, and would not support him under any circumstances.

"Then Mr. Browning pushed his chair closer to mine and told me if I would support Mr. Harrison the mayor would strike the name of Judge Tuley from the list of democratic candidates for the coming judicial election.

"'That is an infamous proposition!' I cried, filled with horror at the coldblooded depravity of a man who would commit political murder to further his own interests. I said that, as much as I am opposed to Judge Tuley, I would much rather see him elected than knifed by his own party to please me."

Ridiculous, Says the Mayor.

"I think Elijah II. must be trying to square himself with his followers for being such a poor political prophet," said Mayor Harrison in reply to Dowie's attack. "All I can say is this: I don't believe Mr. Browning or any one else could do so preposterous a thing as Dowie declares. It is ridiculous to say that any one should treat with Dowie as he alleges. If it were done, it was without my knowledge, and certainly without my approval.

"As for what he says about striking Judge Tuley's name off the list of judges, it is too absurd to discuss. The secret of the whole thing is that Elijah II. is trying to right himself in the eyes of his followers."

Mr. Browning was not at his residence, 401 North State street, last night, and a statement could not be secured from him.

LOSES WATCH AND MONEY TO FOUR MASKED ROBBERS.

Adolph Lindgren Waylaid by Men, Who Even Demand That He Remove His Shoes——Faces Four Revolvers.

With four revolvers pointed at his head, Adolph Lindgren, 297 Twenty-fourth street, was robbed by four men who stopped him at Twenty-third and Rockwell streets early yesterday morning. The holdup men even ordered Lindgren to take off his shoes, but when he said he had nothing concealed in them the robbers did not insist. The robbers wore black masks and were well dressed. They secured $25, a gold watch and chain, and two checks for $24 each.

Woman Figures in Holdup.—While standing in a doorway in Madison street, near Peoria, last evening, Oscar Sinnerth was held up by two men and a woman. Detectives later arrested Daniel Ill, Frank Tipping, and Lillian Howard.

Alleged Pickpockets Taken.—Joseph McDonald and A. Simons, who are said to have been detected picking pockets on a Grand avenue trolley car, are under arrest. They have been identified by five persons who lost their purses.

EASTER SERVICE BY MUTE CHOIR.

Hymns Are Rendered on Fingers to Deaf Audience of Two Hundred.

NOT A SOUND IS HEARD.

George J. Gould Says a Year of Prosperity Is Ahead for the Western Farmers.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE. New York, April 12.

While elsewhere organs pealed and voices rose jubilantly, there was one little church where the Easter service was unbroken by sound today. About 200 deaf mutes had gathered in the Church of St. Ann in West One Hundred and Forty-eighth street. The preacher was John H. Keiser, who had been graduated from the Washington College for Deaf Mutes.

Deaf Mutes Sing Easter Hymns on Their Fingers.

When the service opened a choir of four girls in white surplices stepped before the altar and their fingers began singing, "Christ Is Risen." To convey to the congregation the impressions which the normally developed get from melody, harmony, and rhythm, the girls had to rely exclusively on the uniformity of their movements and the rhythmical swinging of their arms to and fro as they spelled off the words of the hymn. That the effect on the congregation was strong was shown by the way they all swayed their bodies in time with the singers.

The hymn was followed by the Lord's prayer, in which the entire congregation was accompanied by the preacher. As the words "who art in heaven" were reached every index finger was pointed instantaneously upward.

The choir then manipulated another hymn, "Angels Rolled the Rock Away," whereupon followed the reading of the Easter lesson and a prayer. Mr. Keiser had taken as the text for his discourse the words, "Now is Christ risen from the dead." The services were concluded with the "Doxology."

George Gould Says West Will Have a Prosperous Year.

George J. Gould, who returned yesterday from a two weeks' trip over the lines of the Gould system, said today: "I have never seen wheat look as well as it does now. It is a bit too early to speak of corn or cotton, but as the soil is thoroughly water soaked these crops ought to thrive. The physical condition of the western roads was never better than they are now. I went over the Missouri Pacific from St. Louis to Pueblo and down as far as Little Rock. We are doing a great deal of grading and ballasting on this part of the system, so as to have the roads in shape to handle a maximum of tonnage at a minimum of cost.

"All our gross earnings are going ahead of the largest period we have ever had. I heard no talk of money shortage while I was in the west. The banks are holding their own balances in their vaults and they will not have to draw on New York for money to move the crops. From all indications I can see a year of prosperity ahead for the west."

Mr. Gould referred to the St. Louis exposition in enthusiastic terms. He visited the grounds twice and was much impressed with what he saw.

Attack on Mayor Low Followed Up by Other Thrusts.

Wheeler H. Peckham presided last night over another mass meeting in protest against "sneak" railway bills, and the attack on Mayor Low by John De Witt Warner Friday evening was pressed home by letters written by former State Senator John Ford and Henry George Jr. Early in the meeting Peckham read letters from Mayor Low and others, but ignored the letters from Ford and George, both of whom were advertised as among those who would speak. No explanation was vouchsafed the audience of the breach of engagement, but friends of former Senator Ford and Mr. George saw that copies of the letters reached the newspapers.

Peckham did read from the platform a long telegram from Oliver H. P. Belmont, in which the latter insinuated quite broadly that members of the rapid transit commission may be interested in the Interborough company or in some of the contracts let by it. Belmont is the brother of August Belmont, the head of the Interborough company.

Both Ford and George said they declined to speak because they had been told they must say nothing about the bill which Mayor Low advocates. Senator Ford's letter says: "A number of bills are pending, which are commonly called 'grab bills,' which aim at granting or reviving old franchises to private corporations. The most important and dangerous one of these bills was introduced by Assemblyman Bostwick, for which Mayor Low stands sponsor." Henry George said: "To denounce the little 'sneak' bills and remain silent on a great rapid transit grab is like running after little robbers and refusing to see the big one. We have had eras of rotten politics of all kinds and rotten franchise grants, but these transactions of the rapid transit commission, under the cloak of respectability and honorable conduct, are in my judgment the baldest franchise steals in the history of municipal affairs in this country."

Henry H. Rogers Is Pronounced Out of Danger.

Henry H. Rogers, who was brought hastily to this city last week from Charleston, S. C., because it was feared he was suffering from appendicitis, is out of danger from that disease. An acute form of intestinal indigestion to which Mr. Rogers has been subject for several years, was the ailment that caused the trip. While Mr. Rogers will remain at his home at 26 East Fifty-seventh street for a week or more, no serious complications in his illness are expected.

At Mr. Rogers' residence it was said today he had passed a comfortable night, and that his sufferings were lessened. Mr. Rogers had planned to return on his yacht, but the physicians he consulted dissuaded him, fearing the attack might be a forerunner of appendicitis. The yacht put in at Charleston, where a special train on the Atlantic Coast line was ordered. Every effort was made to reach this city in the shortest time without the haste being harmful to the sufferer, and the trip was made within twenty-three hours.

Minister Declares There Is No Proof of Resurrection.

Dr. Minot J. Savage's sermon today, in the Unitarian Church of the Messiah, was on the text, "He is risen; he is not here." He said in part: "Matthew, Mark, and John record that Jesus rose, but say nothing of an ascension. Luke speaks of him rising and of ascending. There is no first hand evidence touching the resurrection at all. We have simply the records that somebody says somebody saw him.

"I do not believe that the body which he wore before the crucifixion ever came to life again. I believe they saw him in his spiritual body, which all those who have passed through the change we call death naturally are clothed by. They saw him as he is now, and as all those we loved are, and might, were conditions right, be seen."

Trolley Merger in Jersey Said to Be Assured.

The scheme of merging the trolley interests and the United Electric interests in northern New Jersey will probably be perfected tomorrow. A new company is to be organized consisting of the United Electric and four trolley companies—the North Jersey, the Jersey City, Hoboken and Paterson, the Elizabeth and Plainfield, and the Orange and Passaic Valley companies. The electric consolidation will take $50,000,000 of stock for $20,200,000 and pay 2 per cent the first year, increasing it one-half of 1 per cent a year until 6 per cent shall be reached. It is said that the North Jersey company is in straits, and that pressing claims amounting to $300,000 must be met on Tuesday.

Warden's Wife Will Entertain in the Tombs.

In her apartments in the Tombs prison tomorrow afternoon Mrs. John E. Van De Carr, wife of the warden, will give a luncheon for her niece, Miss Gertrude Sargent, to five young women who will be maid of honor and bridesmaids at the wedding of Miss Sargent and Oscar Pouch on Wednesday next.

The young women, all classmates of Miss Sargent in Adelphi college, will arrive at the Tombs prison shortly after noon and will have to pass the turnkey at the main entrance. They will be escorted through the main corridor by Warden Van De Carr and his deputies to the warden's apartments, where the luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock.

After luncheon Miss Sargent will present the guests with jeweled fraternity pins, and then the party will make a tour of inspection of the prison.

Mrs. Van De Carr suggested the luncheon to her niece as a contrast to the one given to the same party last Wednesday at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel by Mrs. Taber, mother of the maid of honor.

O. H. P. Belmont Replies to Citizens' Union.

By the attempted muzzling of former Senator John Ford and Henry George Jr., representatives of the Citizens' union have stirred up a hornets' nest. Oliver H. P. Belmont has followed up his hint of corruption in the rapid transit commission by calling for a public investigation of that organization and its methods. In an interview he insists that too much power has been left too long in the hands of a single set of men, however eminently respectable they may be, and that the city is suffering either as a result of their incompetency or something else.

Morris K. Jesup, a member of the rapid transit commission and president of the chamber of commerce; Alexander E. Orr, president of the commission; and Albert B. Boardman, one of its counsel, resent the language of Belmont, Henry George Jr., and Mr. Ford, and reply to them vigorously.

Depew Says Low's Rule Has Been Disappointment.

"In regard to Mayor Low, everybody was disappointed that he had not accomplished more during the year of his administration. Odell suffered tremendously in this city on account of Low's administration." Thus Senator Chauncey M. Depew expressed himself today after an interview with Gov. Odell, in which he acted as intermediary between the warring leaders of the republican party of the state, Gov. Odell and Senator Platt. Senator Depew acknowledged that the reform administration had been a disappointment to some, but he believed that the tide had turned, as too much was always expected of a reform administration at first, as past experience had shown.

Lightning Calculator Dies in Asylum.

William Vallance, a lightning calculator, died tonight at the insane asylum at Trenton, N. J., where he was taken last week. Vallance from early childhood had been a marvel at figures. Calculating became with him a disease and eventually so preyed upon his mind that he became unbalanced and had to be removed to a hospital. He could do any mathematical proposition mentally with wonderful rapidity and readily duplicated the feats of other lightning calculators.

Once Famous Publication in Creditors' Hands.

Former Congressman Timothy J. Campbell tonight was reported to be out of danger and progressing satisfactorily toward recovery.

The fact became public today that the Ledger Monthly, which under the management of the late Robert Bonner became known all over the world under its then name, the New York Ledger, was in financial difficulties. After Robert Bonner died the New York Ledger was continued for a time by his sons, Frederic and Robert E. Bonner. They changed its name and made it a monthly, and a year or two ago sold it to a syndicate, relinquishing all connection with it. The creditors will meet this week and reorganize the concern.

TWO MURDERS, TWO ATTEMPTS, AND A SUICIDE IN BUFFALO.

Polish Citizen Shoots at Landlady, Wounding Her, and Kills His Own Son—Husband Tries to Kill Wife.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 12.—[Special.]—The murder of a boy by his father, the fatal wounding of a woman by the slayer of the boy, an attempt at murder, a fatal quarrel, and a suicide are among the crimes of Easter Sunday in Buffalo.

Joseph Kwaitkowski, 51 years old, a Pole, is locked up at police headquarters for shooting his landlady and killing his own 9 year old boy.

Kwaitkowski formerly was successful in business, but since the death of his wife business difficulties drove him to drink. He had been rooming at 190 Colt street. The owner of the house is Mrs. Tekla Wolinski. The children of the two families were constantly quarreling. Tonight Kwaitowski returned home and found the children in the usual turmoil. Mrs. Wolinski notified him that he would have to move, whereupon Kwaitkowski drew a revolver and began firing. Mrs. Wolinski was shot in the breast and mortally wounded.

Kills His Own Son.

Kwaitkowski fired several more shots, one of them striking his own 9 year old son Peter, killing him instantly.

The police, when they arrived, fired about thirty shots through the windows, but failed to hit him. Kwaitkowski continued to fire until his ammunition was exhausted, when the police battered down the door and overpowered him.

Shoots at Wife, Takes Poison.

George Denning, 55 years old, had been separated from his wife for some time. He called upon her today and tried to induce her to return to him. She refused. He drew a revolver and fired. She fell to the floor in a faint, and, believing that he had killed her, Denning ran away. His body was found later in the evening in a Salvation army lodging house. He had taken poison.

Man Slain in Quarrel.

Lawrence Ratajzak tonight shot and instantly killed John Nowak, 20 years old, during a quarrel between the two.

WARNS AGAINST THE MEASLES.

Bulletin of Health Department Reports a Great Increase in Fatalities from the Disease.

The weekly bulletin of the Chicago health department contains a warning against measles. It says:

"Of the total 207 cases of the contagious diseases reported during the week eighty-seven, or nearly one-half, were of measles, and during the first three months of the year sixty-nine deaths were reported from this disease, as against only twenty during the corresponding period of 1902.

"Next to scarlet fever measles is the most serious of the diseases of childhood in its after effects upon many of those who recover. Deafness—with consequent arrested mental development—is a not uncommon result and pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) is another.

"Equally mischievous is the too commonly held theory that there is no use in trying to protect the child against the infection of measles—that it must have the disease sooner or later and 'better have it now and get through with it.' The younger the child the less its powers of vital resistance as well against measles as all other diseases of childhood."

The total number of deaths during last week was 502, against 549 the preceding week.

FIELD REOPENED TO SMALL FIRMS.

Senator Cullom Predicts Great Good Will Result from Merger Decision.

TRUSTS' GRIP IS BROKEN.

Declares Roosevelt Is Now Sure of Renomination For and Election to Presidency.

MERGER DECISION—Senator Cullom says small business enterprises will be started all over the country without fear of being crushed by trusts.

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL—James M. Beck, who has resigned to practice law, complimented by President Roosevelt.

Washington, D. C., April 12.—[Special.]—"Until the country has had time to digest the decision of the United States Court of Appeals in the Nortrern Securities case the people will not appreciate how far reaching will be its effect," said Senator Cullom tonight. "That decision was a great victory for the government and for President Roosevelt, who directed the prosecution of the case.

"It means the government can control and suppress trusts of all kinds which are a restraint of trade. Of course it is to be understood that this decision does not prevent one railroad from acquiring the property of another so as to extend its system, but merely that the court holds that it is unlawful for parallel roads to consolidate where there would be a stamping out of competition.

"But above all this is the fact that the court has held that rich and poor will be treated alike. The day for the rich corporations to employ high salaried attorneys to assist them in defeating the law has gone forever.

"I have contended all along that the laws on the statute books were ample and gave the government all the power necessary to control unlawful corporations. There has simply been a vigorous enforcement of the laws which have been on the statute books for years.

"President Roosevelt, in ordering the prosecution of the merger suit, has greatly strengthened himself with the people. He will be nominated and elected hands down. He has been charged with insincerity and with promising to do impossible things, so far as trusts are concerned. But, to use the words of the street, he 'has delivered the goods' and given a practical demonstration of his sincerity.

"Now that it has been firmly established by the courts that the government is all powerful in dealing with trusts, it will be possible for individuals to enter the commercial field without fear of the trusts driving them out," continued Senator Cullom.

"Within recent years the trusts have driven individuals from business and have concentrated the wealth of the country in the hands of a few. This concentration process has been in operation for years, and recently men with limited capital at their disposal have declined to enter the field, as many industries were controlled absolutely by the trusts. With the decision of the Court of Appeals behind it, the administration will be able to smash other trusts and make it possible for individuals to invest their capital and inaugurate industries.

"Under the new conditions brought about by the action of the Court of Appeals, which I hope will be sustained by the United States Supreme court, I expect to see a return to the conditions existing before so many men were forced to close out their business and accept positions on salaries. Now that it is known that the government proposes to prosecute unlawful corporations and protect the poor, the rich, and the well to do there will be a large number of small concerns spring into existence.

"Before this decision was rendered it was impossible for any one to enter in the steel manufacturing field, or to manufacture tobacco, as those industries and many other industries are controlled by trusts which resent competition and resort to unlawful methods to stamp it out. Now this will be changed and much idle capital will be invested and competition will be resumed."

Assistant Attorney General James M. Beck has handed his resignation to the president to take effect on April 30 next. In offering his resignation Mr. Beck expressed his pride and gratification at having been privileged to serve under President Roosevelt's administration, and the following letter written by the president on the day before he left Washington for the west has been made public:

"My Dear Mr. Beck: I regret to receive your resignation as assistant attorney general, which is accepted, to take effect on April 30 next, as indicated.

"I appreciate your expression of the satisfaction you have taken in your public service. It is a pleasure to me to say you have performed your duty with marked ability, and I hereby extend my best wishes for your continued success in your professional work and for your health and prosperity. THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

In regard to his retirement from office Mr. Beck said today: "I have become a member of the law firm of Sherman & Sterling of New York City and expect to commence my work there on May 1 and shall after that date be a resident of that city."

Mr. Beck was appointed by President McKinley in July, 1900. He had previously been United States attorney for the eastern district of Pennsylvania. As assistant attorney general he has argued a number of important government cases, among which, besides the merger case, were the lottery cases and the Neely extradition case, in which the power of the government to govern Cuba after the treaty of peace was confirmed. Mr. Beck's successor has been selected, but his identity will not be announced for several days.

Considerable comment has been made by members of the diplomatic corps over the appearance this winter of the names of visitors at the embassies and legations appearing in the diplomatic list. While many say this is perfectly proper, others assert the list should consist of only the direct representatives of foreign governments, their wives, sons and daughters, with the attachés accredited to the office, thus giving the list an official and not a social status.

Protests against such names appearing in the list were made to the state department, with the result that the department claims it has no supervision over the matter of supplying names for the diplomatic list issued from its office each month, the lists from the various foreign representatives being prepared in their own offices and sent to the department.

For years several of the South American representatives have put the names of their near relatives who visited here along with the names of their own families, and no comment was made. The minister from Hayti has always included the names of the Misses Bouyke, his nieces, along with that of Mme. Leger, when they visited here.

Miss Roosevelt, accompanied by Capt. and Mrs. Cowles, will leave Washington this week for Asheville, N. C., where they will join a large house party and be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. George Vanderbilt at Biltmore. Senator and Mrs. Depew also will be of the party. During Miss Roosevelt's visit to Biltmore Mrs. Vanderbilt will throw open the grounds of her place for several days for a bazaar in aid of the village church at Biltmore. This will be done for the purpose of giving the people of the surrounding country the privilege of contributing to the maintenance of the church. Thousands of people will of course be there to see the president's daughter. Miss Roosevelt will attend the Monday night dance tomorrow night, of which Mrs. Cowles is one of the patronesses.

FRAUD IN MAIL WAGONS.

RIVAL MAKERS TALK OF COLLUSION IN CONTRACTS.

Rural Free Delivery Officials at Washington Accused of Favoring an Indiana Manufacturer—Representative of Peoria Firm Denies That His Company Has Joined in the Protest—Matter to Be Investigated at the National Capital.

Peoria, Ill., April 12.—[Special.]—A half dozen manufacturing firms in the west who have jointly filed charges accusing the post-office free delivery officials in Washington of giving contracts to an Indiana firm and compelling rural carriers to buy vehicles from that firm, believe their objections will result in their favor. The Peoria Manufacturing company is said to be one of the objectors, but a representative of the company denies it. He said tonight:

"The Peoria Manufacturing company has not yet been established in Peoria, but will be within the next few weeks. We have selected a site, and are arranging for a transfer of our machinery from Decatur, and expect to increase our capacity and employ a larger number of men. We will pay special attention to the manufacture of rural mail delivery wagons, and expect to make a vehicle that will prove popular with the carriers."

Peoria Firm to Benefit.

While denial is made that the new company is interested in the filing of the charges, it is said by a disinterested manufacturer that the company proposing to locate in Peoria has taken an active interest in pushing the charges against the postal officials in Washington, and hopes to derive benefit from the attack, as the Peoria rural mail cart will be on the market early in the fall, when hundreds of new rural routes will be put in operation.

Asked for details of the charges against the postal officials, the Peoria manufacturer said they were general in the main, alleging a "deal" whereby the wagon used by nine-tenths of the carriers was the only one allowed to be purchased. Upwards of seventy-five carriers in Peoria county are said to be using the wagon in dispute.

To Investigate the Charges.

Washington, D. C., April 12.—Postoffice inspectors engaged in the investigation of department affairs will make a careful inquiry into the charges that certain wagon manufacturers have been given preference in advance information about the establishment of rural free delivery routes. These charges come from a firm in Peoria, Ill.

A. W. Machen, superintendent of the free delivery bureau, says: "We have been careful in enforcing a rule in the free delivery division that no advance information about the establishment of routes shall be given. I cannot say what any one of about 135 men may actually have done in a given instance, but I know they all have instructions not to furnish advance information, and that they know the giving of such information would be under the penalty of dismissal from the service."

Mr. Machen added that some firms secure early information about these routes by watching the county papers closely.

ALL ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR VANDERBILT WEDDING.

Two Special Trains Will Carry 150 Guests from New York to Newport Today—Luncheon for Bridal Party.

Newport, R. I., April 12.—[Special.]—Five fashionable boarding homes, Mrs. Vanderbilt's summer residence, the Breakers, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's country place, Oakland, are ready tonight for the coming of 150 guests for the wedding on Tuesday of Reginald Vanderbilt and Miss Cathleen Neilson.

There was a jolly luncheon party at Oakland today, Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt having an orchestra to enliven the occasion. The party included, beside the bride and bridegroom of Tuesday, Miss Schenck, William Fitzhugh Whitehouse Jr., Bradish Johnson, Miss Rieves, Miss Anita Sands, William P. Burden, Miss Florence Twombly, Potter Palmer, and Miss Parsons. When the luncheon was over the guests inspected the farm.

Tonight a score of attendants left for New York to board the cars for the wedding guests, who will leave for Newport at 10 and 1 o'clock. Mr. Vanderbilt has interested himself particularly in the trip of his friends to Newport, and the sending forward tonight of specially instructed secretaries, baggage handlers, porters, and valets is the result. Each of the men has a particular duty to perform, and so smoothly will the passage be made that no one need have a single care of ticket or bagagge until he reaches his room at the Breakers or at the cottages.

NAVY SETS NEW GUNNERY MARK

Battleship Massachusetts Makes Average of 56 Per Cent with Pieces of All Grades.

Pensacola, Fla., April 12.—[Special.]—Although the accuracy displayed by the gunners of the North Atlantic fleet in practice here has been marvelous, several world's records having been lowered, none of the vessels has reached the general average that the Massachusetts succeeded in making in the work of one week.

The board announced today that the ship's general average with all pieces was 56 per cent, 2 per cent higher than any of the averages yet made. A number of vessels have exceeded in accuracy the gunners of the Massachusetts with guns of a certain caliber, but, taken as a whole, they have excelled.

Among the records lowered here were those of the Indiana with its thirteen inches and the Iowa with its six pounders. The Kearsarge proceeded to the gulf today for a week's work.

ST. LOUIS FAIR PLANS ARE HUGE

As Spectacle of Color and Motion It Promises to Surpass Chicago.

GENERAL SCHEME IS GOOD

Airships and Submarine Navigation to Be Among the Novel Features of Show.

Paris. The result is that in all executive departments there is intelligent and enthusiastic work going forward, and if there is delay the blame will be largely, if not entirely, with the deliberate methods of the local managers.

Lots of money is to be spent here in St. Louis on spectacles of one kind and another. The good money which was made at Chicago by the first class attractions on the Midway and the financial failure of the fakes and frauds have taught a lesson to showmen throughout the country. They have learned that a large expenditure of money in this direction will always pay, and there are to be some stupendous investments at St. Louis.

Skinker Road Instead of Midway.

St. Louis is seeking to avoid the name "Midway" if it can possibly be done, although it has become generic by this time throughout the world and will require no explanation. The avenue which will be chiefly used for Midway entertainment is already known on the St. Louis maps as the "Skinker road," which is so deliciously grotesque and foreign in its sound that it would seem to be an easy matter to fasten it upon the country. Skinker was an estimable gentleman who lived in that vicinity, and his old homestead had to be removed to make room for some of the improvements of the fair.

Altogether the most gorgeous attraction on the Skinker road is to be a reproduction of the holy city of Jerusalem. The contracts made with the exposition companies involve a total expenditure for this one concession of a round million of money. What this means can be understood from the statement that the Ferris wheel did not cost over $300,000, and that the Streets of Cairo represented an outlay at Chicago of about $125,000. This latter attraction at Chicago was so successful financially and in every other way, except, perhaps, in its effect on the morals of the country, that it is to be revived at St. Louis on an extraordinary scale, and the cost of its installation will not be less, it is said, than $250,000.

About $500,000 is to be spent on a reproduction of the Tyrolean Alps, there is to be an attractive Spanish picture, "In Old Seville," and the Japanese, Chinese, and other concessions will follow along the same lines as those seen in Chicago, but in a much more elaborate way, because the oriental exhibiters have at last become convinced that the amusement business in America on a large scale is a money making proposition. It is a significant fact, none the less, that some of the minor foreign nations, and particularly those presenting tropical features, have declined to enter the St. Louis fair merely to be exhibited for their grotesqueness.

Airships a Strong Feature.

In the opinion of the fair managers the airship competitions will furnish far and away the best feature of the fair. They have canvassed the situation thoroughly, and have come to the conclusion that the navigation of the air and the navigation of the water are the two most novel processes of modern science and invention. The outer lagoon just below the cascade is to be deep and wide enough to permit of the evolutions of a Holland submarine torpedo boat. It will be fully equipped for actual work, and small parties of visitors will be taken down at frequent intervals and given the benefit of a short realization of the actual truth of Jules Verne's dream of "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea."

The space for evolutions by the Holland boat at St. Louis will necessarily be small, but the novelty of the experience, it is believed, will be sufficient to tempt many thousands of people below the level of the muddy waters of the lagoon.

It was only after a considerable amount of persuasion that the directors were brought to a point where they could see the wisdom of spending a pot of money in encouraging flying machines and in promoting actual competition. The excellent results are already manifest, because governments and scientific societies, as well as individuals, have become greatly interested in the results at St. Louis. Santos-Dumont, the most successful aeronaut of modern times, is to be at St. Louis and to participate in the competition with an airship of an improved plan. He will not be without scores of rivals, however, because, aside from the fame to be gathered from success in the competition, there is substantial money reward as well.

The Louisiana Purchase exposition has established one grand prize of $100,000. Half that amount has been appropriated for minor and subsidiary prizes for competition between airships, balloons, airship motors, trains of kites, and similar devices. Another sum of $50,000 has been appropriated for the expenses of conducting the various trials, thus making a total of $200,000 which is to be directly devoted by the exposition managers to the promotion of aerial navigation. The prescribed course will begin and end in the athletic amphitheater, and it will be shaped like a double letter L, one of the legs being shorter than the other, and in full view from all parts of the exposition grounds.

The balloon competitions are to take place between June 1 and Sept. 30 of next year, and each competitor is permitted to make as many trials as he desires. This regulation, of course, will insure a series of great treats for the general public, because the contestants, of course, will make one trial after another during the period open to them. The condition of the competition is that the airship must be steered around the double L as indicated, and unless this condition is met the prize will not be won at all.

The award will be made to the aeronaut who, steering his machine successfully as indicated, makes the total course in the shortest time.

WAYS OF NOBLES TOLD IN COURT.

Count de Garets and Baron von Kap-Herr Show How to Live Without Work.

GET MONEY FROM HOME.

German Ex-Attache in Difficulty Because He Indorsed for Former French Diplomat.

New York, April 12.—[Special.]—Two titled scions of European aristocracy, the one of French and the other of German lineage, were subjected in the Supreme court to that most humiliating of American legal ordeals, supplementary proceedings in default of payment of an acknowledged debt.

It was a sort of Franco-German alliance that existed between the Count Jacques des Garets, formerly of the French diplomatic corps, and the Baron Richard von Kap-Herr, former captain of German Hussars and until recently military attaché at Kaiser Wilhelm's Washington legation.

The count is small and dapper, with a little dark mustache, which he waxes and which he tweaks nervously when counsel pries into his personal affairs. The baron is big and blond and thoroughly Teutonic, with a military bearing, well sustained, despite the fifty years or so that have touched his hair with gray.

Baron von Kap-Herr said that even while he was a member of the German ambassador's official retinue he received no compensation for his services, and he smilingly repudiated the suggestion that he is a friend of the kaiser. He flushed and resented the accusation hurled at him by counsel that he was sent to America by his rich brother to find a well dowered American bride.

Baron Goes Surety for Count.

In the Des Garets-Kap-Herr alliance, it seems that in September, 1891, the French count gave to Alfred Hanan, a broker, his personal note for something more than $6,000, and the German baron obligingly indorsed it. The obligation was said at the time to have grown out of Wall street transactions. The note was unpaid when due, and judgment was obtained for $5,466. A deputy sheriff, looking for assets of the count, called in vain at the offices of Lazard Frères and Bache & Co., and finally summonses were served upon Des Garets at 7 West Twenty-sixth street, and upon the baron, who was then living at the Waldorf-Astoria, but who is now occupying apartments in a Fifth avenue clubhouse. The case subsequently paid $2,266, leaving an unsettled balance of $3,200, upon which an order was issued for his examination in supplementary proceedings.

Count des Garets, under the questioning of Henry G. Wiley, counsel for Mr. Hanan, said that he expects to reside permanently in America and has filed his first papers for citizenship. "I am not now engaged in any business," he said. "I have a wife and a daughter living in France. I was engaged in the lumber business, selling lumber in Nome City, Alaska. Three years ago I sold a shipload of lumber to the Alaskan Commercial company for $20,000."

Q.—O, that was only three years ago; now where is that $20,000, count? A.—O, it is all spent long ago; gone, all gone.

Q.—How do you live here; who supports you? A.—Money is sent to me by my family in France.

Q.—Are you trying to find employment here? A.—No. When I need money I write to my family. I have received no money from any other source for two years.

Spent All the Money He Made.

It was with a look of amazement that the count heard the lawyer's question as to seeking employment. But he answered with a shrug of the shoulders, much as he had when he admitted the spending of the $20,000.

Q.—What became of the $5,000 for which you gave this note to Mr. Hanan? A.—I used it in a gold and copper and coal mining scheme in Siberia, which was a failure. I lost the money in that venture. Baron Kap-Herr was interested in that with me.

This seemed to arouse the baron, who was an attentive listener. Springing to his feet, he said to Mr. Wiley: "Let me explain that to you privately."

"Not at present," said the lawyer. "You will have your turn next."

Q.—Have you any personal property in this country or any bank account? A.—None.

Q.—Any real estate in France? A.—Yes, an estate of 200 or 300 acres, but mortgaged—all mortgaged.

Q.—Who holds the mortgage? A.—My wife. You see there was a marriage settlement, and when I was married I signed a long contract.

Extending his arms wide apart, the witness indicated the voluminous character of the contract. He said he had no stocks nor bonds, no jewelry, no prospective interest in any will or estate. For his room at 7 West Twenty-sixth street he pays $35 a month. He takes his meals, he said, at various restaurants, but has no idea what his average living expenses are. The count said he had been a member of the French legation at St. Petersburg, but never in Washington.

Baron Tells How He Lives.

Baron von Kap-Herr next had his turn. While under examination he smoked cigarettes desperately. He said that until a year and three months ago he had been attached to the German embassy at Washington.

Q.—Are you connected with the German army? A.—I have retired from the army—that is, I am no longer in the active army.

Q.—Are you in any way related to the German emperor? A.—No.

Q.—What do you live on now? A.—My elder brother, the Baron Kap-Herr Lockwitz, is the head of my family, and he is a rich man.

Q.—Since you are supported in this country by him? A.—I am.

Q.—What are your monthly expenses here? A.—Well, I pay $3 a day for a room at my club.

Q.—And what is your average monthly bill for incidentals, such as cigars and drinks? A.—About $50, I suppose; I cannot tell exactly.

Q.—Now, baron, have you any special purpose for remaining in this country? A.—None; I am still visiting friends.

Q.—Is it not a fact that your sole purpose for remaining in America is that you hope to contract an advantageous marriage here?

Counsel for the baron interposed an objection to this line of interrogation, but the baron captain, flushing with indignation, half rose and said, "Please don't object. I prefer to answer. I want to deny absolutely any such intention."

Not Seeking a Rich Wife.

Then, turning toward the reporters' table, he added, "I never thought of such a thing, and I hope you will make that good and strong."

Q. (by Mr. Taylor, counsel for the baron and the count)—It was the emperor who sent you here, was it not? A.—It was.

Q. (by Mr. Wiley)—And are you remaining here under the orders of the emperor? A.—No.

Baron von Kap-Herr explained that he is fourth in line of succession to the Lockwitz estates, that he receives no stated allowance, but writes home for money when he needs it.

"The Tenderfoot," covered with the alkali dust of Texas, came to the Dearborn theater last night—the first of the summer productions for local playhouses. With all the delays and all the crudeness of a first night production it scored a success before a crowded house—a success which was made in the first act and which even the defects of the two following acts could not seriously impair.

Richard Carle with his suppleness, his eccentric dancing, his puns and his funmaking firmly reëstablished himself on the foundation laid last summer in "The Storks." At midnight a house which had been sitting for three hours and a half insisted on repetitions of his dancing, and thereby gave a hint to the management.

"The Tenderfoot" impressed its audience as offering something new in light opera. When the chorus of dust covered troopers danced into the courtyard of the Worthington ranch the piece made its hit almost instantaneously. When Carle, as Prof. Pettibone, "the tenderfoot," with his charge of "Gibson girls," arrived on his burro the hit was pronounced.

Texas ranches are novelties in the stage setting of comic operas. There was abundant opportunity for good costuming and good stage setting, and with troopers, Mexicans, and cowboys it was not difficult to secure pleasing pictures.

The story of the piece has been told in THE TRIBUNE. It is in the development of the love story that the piece shows its most conspicuous faults. Miss May De Sousa is compelled to bear the part of an afflicted maiden, ready to dissolve in tears at any moment, and all because she has made a rash marriage with an alleged soldier of fortune, and she spends about all her time on the stage regretting it.

It is seldom that light opera presents such a tearful heroine. She and the gallant Col. Paul Winthrop, her unfortunate husband, engage in dialogue which would not sound strangely in a problem play and would be entirely at home in a melodrama.

Mr. Carle is afforded an excellent character for his style of fun making. As the money loving but peaceful professor with a number of riotous girls on his hands in the midst of a Texan wilderness he is given opportunities in the way of complicated situations which he turns into first class entertainment.

His lines are good. Sometimes the wit is nothing more than a pun, but generally it is something more. He has developed a character which was accepted last night as being on a par with the comic opera creations of the best type.

With all the emotions of the play it has plenty of fun, which will make its strongest claim on summer audiences. William Rock as Hop Lee the servant, and Gilbert Gregory as the braggart, Sergt. Bill Barker, are able assistants to Mr. Carle, and Edna Hunter as Sally the maid is everything which is expected of the soubrette in comic opera.

At the close of the second act the audience insisted on speeches and Mr. Carle came forward to make one. He then offered his thanks to the management for the elaborate setting of the piece as an expenditure representing confidence in his ability.

That "The Tenderfoot" will have a successful run was regarded as certain by the first night audience. It will not offer many new songs to the streets. Mr. Heartz has written pleasing, if reminiscent music, but there is only one song which stands great chances of being heard on the street—that being "My Alama Love." In this respect "The Tenderfoot" is excelled by "The Storks," which presented several airs of the catchy variety.

Anna Held.

Miss Anna Held made a speech last night after the second act of "The Little Duchess," which opened a two weeks' run at the Grand. She said: "I tank you all so ver' mooch. It is ver' kine of you, ver' kine, 'deed. Nex' year an' I will come agen, an' I will have new piece."

This is the second year of "The Little Duchess." There are more new gowns this year; more pretty girls, more songs, and more noise generally. The cast is about the same as last season, except that Charley Bigelow, who then made such a hit, is succeeded by Joseph W. Herbert, who follows closely in the road marked out by Bigelow.

The audience was of the usual well pleased Sunday evening variety, and went into spasms of rapturous delight over everything and after the second act insisted on raising the curtain so many times that only the press agent kept count, and finally Miss Held brought out her English and gave it a gentle little airing. The stage setting was unusually effective, and the chorus was as pretty as could be desired.

It is so long since a production of Dion Boucicault's "Arrah-na-Pogue" has been seen that the announcement of its coming led one to expect something of a novelty to present day theatergovers, and last night McVicker's theater was crowded from parquet to gallery when Andrew Mack opened his spring engagement, using this play as his vehicle.

However, a closer acquaintance with the play revealed nothing that was startlingly original. With a few slight variations it is the familiar Irish comedy drama with the ever present group of characters—the persecuted but innocent Irish lad; the pretty, bewitching colleen; the rebel leader, who is of course on the right side; and the officers of the law. There is the familiar plot and counterplot, when things look black for the hero and his sweetheart, but there was no cause for alarm, for in such cases pardons always come at the last moment and the villain does not live to see the happiness of his erstwhile victims. Nevertheless the usual McVicker Sunday night audience laughed at everything approaching humor, applauded all the melodramatic utterances of the hero, and demanded encores for all the songs.

Some of the stage settings are effective. Of the music there is one song sung by Mr. Mack, "You are my star and I love you." That has an undeniably popular refrain, and "An Irishman's Lilt" brought out a chorus and dance accompaniment that was taking.

Mr. Mack displayed his popular personality in the rôle of Shaun and managed to please his admirers. He appeared to best advantage in the court scene, where his cross examination elicited such answers are are labeled Irish wit in the comic supplements. There were really some bright and witty lines falling to Mr. Mack, and on the whole he acquitted himself creditably.

Gabrilowitsch Recital.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch gave what was announced as his last recital in Chicago this season yesterday afternoon in Music hall. The audience was of good size, and the approval bestowed on the young Russian pianist of the heartiest and sincerest kind. Mr. Gabrilowitsch is a player—one of the few among the many—who possesses not alone the technical and mechanical proficiency indispensable for satisfactory piano recital giving, but also the individuality and magnetism essential to the interesting holding and moving of his auditors. No matter what he plays he grips the attention, and there is no escaping him until he has finished.

The secret of his power lies largely in his having a keen sense for the tonally beautiful—a sense so well developed that it unconsciously prevents him from all ill treatment of his instrument—and musical intelligence and taste that are essentially sane and manly. He has temperament and emotion, but they are invariably virile and rational, and these vivifying elements in his work are so admirably paired with technical proficiency and a fine appreciation of musical and dynamic values and proportions that the combined result is piano playing satisfying in unusual degree, and of a worth that places it among the best the younger generation of pianistic giants can offer.

The two recitals Mr. Gabrilowitsch has given here this season have brought conviction that in him the music world has one of its ablest and most promising players—one whose position among the first, if not actually at the head, is indisputable.

The program yesterday was an attractive one. It opened with the Schumann Fantasie, which lengthy and interpretatively difficult work received masterly performance at the young pianist's hands. There are few compositions in the literature that can be more tedious and ineffective than is this Fantasie of Schumann when inadequately given. It requires the strength, the breadth, and the temperament of a man, and the man must be not only a virtuoso but a poet. No woman can do it full justice, and the men who can are not numerous. But when the right man does play it it is one of the noblest and most satisfying works piano music can boast. Mr. Gabrilowitsch proved fitted in every way for his task yesterday, and the result was delight.

The Bach-Saint-Saëns Gavotte in B minor was given with fine animation and high technical finish, Chopin's G major Nocturne, B minor Scherzo, and as encore the second of the B major Nocturnes showed how sane was the pianist's sentiment in works of a distinctly romantic nature; an admirably made set of Variations on an interesting and attractive theme of Mr. Gabrilowitsch's own composing displayed in advantageous light not only his abilities as a performer, but his excellent powers as a creative musician as well; a Humoresque of Tschaikowsky was read with refreshing appreciation of its playful character, and the Glinka-Balakireff "L'Aloutte," and the Liszt "Venice and Naples" Tarantella furnished a brilliant ending to the recital. ENGAGED TO WED FOR FIFTY YEARS

Death Ends a Unique Romance in New York Lasting for Half a Century.

BRIDAL DAY NEVER CAME.

Capt "Tom" Miller and Miss Joanna Mills Are Sweethearts for Five Decades.

New York, April 12.—[Special.]—The romance in the lives of "Tom" Miller of the Manhattan club and Miss Joanna Mills lasted for half a century and has juust been disclosed to the public. Fifty years ago "Tom" Miller and Miss Mills became engaged to be married. She was the daughter of a then wealthy merchant and member of a prominent New York family. For reasons satisfactory to both and known only to themselves their marriage was indefinitely postponed from that time until Miller's death, less than three weeks ago, when he left his entire possessions to her. The most friendly and lovable relations existed between them. It might truthfully be said that they were lifelong sweethearts.

Will Reveals the Romance.

The romance in the life of "Capt. Tom" Miller, the Nestor of the Manhattan club, has been long known to his intimate friends in the city, but it was only brought to general attention by the filing of his will for probate in the surrogate's office Friday afternoon. The will was filed by A. J. Perry, the lifelong friend of Capt. Miller. It was dated in 1894, and provides simply that, "All I possess in this world at the time of my death I bequeath to my beloved friend of many years, Miss Joanna Mills."

Capt. Miller was at the time of his death, on March 29 last, 79 years old, and Miss Mills is 70. The legacy left to Miss Mills was in the nature of a token of regard, as she and her two sisters, who occupy apartments in the Constance, at 60 St. Nicholas avenue, have a comfortable income from their father's estate, and have many wealthy and influential friends.

How It All Began.

Thomas J. Miller was born in Savannah, Ga. He came of a prominent southern family and when a youth entered the United States Naval academy, was graduated, and served for several years as a midshipman. Tiring of the life of a sailor, Miller resigned his commission and came to New York. He came with letters of introduction to the best families of the city and being a handsome, dashing young fellow, with a full purse, winning manners, and fluent speech, was soon regarded as one of the beaux and great catches of the city half a century ago, when his engagement to Miss Joanna Mills, daughter of George Mills, the then merchant prince, was announced. All the parties were congratulated on the brilliant match.

No date was set for the wedding ceremony and as events shaped themselves none was ever set, although up to a few years ago the announcement of the intended marriage of the couple would have surprised none of their intimate friends. The part of suitor was played by the gallant Capt. Miller with all the grace and dignity of the old school, and Miss Mills received his attentions with the sweetness and reserve forgotten with the grandmothers of the present generation.

Fifty Years of Club Life.

But truth to tell, Capt. Miller had another and an impersonal love. He joined the Manhattan club soon after it was founded and soon the young retired naval officer, as a traveler, raconteur, and bon vivant, found himself the center of the gayest circle among the younger members of the club, at that time the beaux of New York. No dinner party was complete without jovial "Tom" Miller.

His property has no great intrinsic value. It consists chiefly of a leasehold in the building at 135 Reade street, which will bring in an income of $600 a year for several years yet to run, and personal property valued at $4,000.

Miss Joanna Mills did not know of Capt. Miller's legacy until after his death. She was greatly affected by the death of her old time sweetheart. She lives a retired life with her sisters. The photograph of Capt. Miller, which he gave her, she prizes more than the income she is to receive from the property he left her.

TWO KILLED BY FIRE IN INDIANAPOLIS RESIDENCE.

Nathan Morris, a Well Known Lawyer, and Frank Haas Lose Their Lives, While Several Others Are Injured.

Indianapolis, Lnd., April 12.—Nathan Morris, a well known attorney here, and Frank Haas, the 12 year old son of Dr. Joseph Haas, were burned to death this morning, and Mrs. Joseph Haas, Miss Belle Haas, Miss Rose Haas, Louis Haas, and Grace Lemon, a governess, were injured in a fire in the residence of Dr. Joseph Haas.

Mr. Morris was evidently endeavoring to get the family out of the rooms when he was overcome by smoke and flames. The firemen succeeded in saving the other members of the family.

The injured members of the Haas family are still in a serious condition, though it is believed all will recover.

SETTLERS FOR CANADA ARRIVE.

Steamer Load of British Immigrants Reach St. John and Colonists Start for the Northwest at Once.

St. John, N. B., April 12.—The first steamer load of British immigrants arrived today, and tonight two special trainloads were on their way to Saskatoon, in the northwest.

It has been stated that in every township founded a quarter section would be given by the Canadian government to a Canadian or American who may be acquainted with the best methods of working the land to serve as an instructor to the Britishers. The Rev. Mr. Barr, leader of the party, says that they do not want any Americans. He denies that he has any feeling against Americans, but he says the idea which caught the British public was that of an all British colony, and this he proposes to carry out. Three townships will be formed.

Mr. Barr says there will be 1,500 more Britishers out next month, and 10,000 next year, all for Saskatoon.

SALEM RELIC IS NOW DOUBTED.

So-Called Old First Church May Be Reported for Condemnation by a Committee of Inquiry.

Boston, Mass., April 12.—[Special.]—Probably before another Sunday one of the most noted of historic relics of Salem will have disappeared. The building is the little old First church meeting house, in the rear of the Essex Institute, which has been preserved with so much care for almost half a century. For generations thousands of pilgrims to historic shrines of Salem have sought out this little edifice.

Next Wednesday the special committee of Essex institute members will report to the directors on the authenticity of the building.

While the committee has not made public its findings, it is known that it will report that it has been unable to find that the claim as to the building being the identical old First church has any firm foundation, but on the contrary that the evidence is decidedly adverse.

CROWDS VIEW RELIANCE.

CUP DEFENDER MECCA FOR SUNDAY SIGHTSEERS.

Hundreds Line the Wharves and Launches and Rowboats Fill the Harbor—Mast Is All Ready to Be Stepped Today—Workmanship Is Declared to Be the Best Ever Seen—Rigging Is Marvel of Lightness and Strength.

Bristol, R. I., April 12.—The harbor was alive with small craft today and hundreds of persons lined the shore and crowded about the wharf where the Reliance is moored. No one was on deck, but a seaman on the dock warned sightseers against a too near approach to the boat. Everything is in readiness for the stepping of the mainmast tomorrow or Tuesday.

The workmanship in every detail of the cup defender's hull is the best ever seen in America, it is claimed, and there are reasons for the belief that it cannot be excelled abroad. Strength has been combined with lightness, and these features are observable in the fittings that have been seen.

Some anxiety will be manifested in the ability of the designer to make rigging and spars to successfully stand the great strain they will be required to bear, but it is quite certain that Capt. "Nat's" calculations have covered every possible contingency that may arise in the matter of wind and weather. The greatest effort will be made to have Reliance under sail within two weeks or less.

Charge Defeat to a Fluke.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

WEYMOUTH, April 12.—There is an agreement of opinion that the defeat of the challenger by Shamrock I. on time allowance yesterday was entirely due to a weather fluke and gives no reason for reducing the handicap. The same conditions, therefore, will probably govern tomorrow's race unless the weather is light, when the time allowance to the former challenger may be increased.

Col. Neill, a leading Clyde amateur yachtsman, who was aboard Shamrock yesterday, said today: "The challenger made an absolute exhibition of us on the first round. A weather fluke gave us the race. I am convinced that there is no weather nor any point of sailing on which Shamrock I. can hold the challenger."

LONDON, April 13.—T. F. Day, editor of the Rudder, expresses the opinon that Reliance must be five minutes faster than the Columbia over a thirty mile course in a breeze and much more in light airs to defeat Shamrock III.

The Daily News thinks that if the challenger is only 6½ minutes better than a five year old boat on a thirty mile course it has little chance of beating Reliance, considering that the Americans have always gone one better.

The Times considers that Saturday's result was more a question of pilotage and the shifting of the wind than a lack of speed on the part of the challenger.

BIG DISCOVERY IN HARD COAL.

Eleven New Veins Found by Boring Near Wilkesbarre, Pa., Which Are Not on Geological Charts.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 12.—[Special.]—Veins that indicate the greatest discovery of anthracite coal in Pennsylvania since the first general find have just been uncovered by the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre and Delaware, Lackawanna and Western companies at a point near this city. Two bores, one of 2,000 feet and the other of 2,300 feet, have just been completed. They passed through twenty-two veins. One was a continuation of the celebrated Mammoth vein of the Hazleton district, but eleven veins not previously marked on the geological maps of the state were among the twenty-two pierced. These lie close together, from fifty to 700 feet below the surface. The other veins lie deeper. The discovery was made at a point three miles below this city, and the district comprises an area of more than 2,000 acres.

VICAR GENERAL DIES AT PRAYER.

The Rt. Rev. Michael Bouchet of Louisville Passes Away at the Age of Seventy-six Years.

Louisville, Ky., April 12.—[Special.]—The dawn of Easter brought death to the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Michael Bouchet, vicar general of the diocese of Kentucky. He was in the confessional until after 11 o'clock last night. After leaving his last penitent the aged priest went to a room in the rectory adjoining the cathedral and knelt in prayer. The Rev. Father Rock found him kneeling but unconscious, and every effort to revive him was in vain. He was born in France seventy-six years ago, and soon would have celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his priesthood.

COLTS STOPPED BY HAIL STORM.

Chilly Home Greeting for Selee's National League Team.

FANS COME OUT IN COLD.

Three and a Half Innings Played Before Icicle Shower Comes.

Chicago gave its Colts anything but a warm welcome yesterday on their return from their record breaking training trip. Raw, chilling winds greeted Manager Selee and his men on their arrival, skies grew more and more threatening as the day advanced, and, when an attempt was made to play the exhibition game arranged for the west side grounds, a hail storm cut it short.

Altogether it was one of the worst cases of the frozen mit ever handed out to unsuspecting and undeserving innocents.

The game was to have been between two nines made up of regular and extra Colts, and it was commenced in spite of the unfavorable conditions in the presence of a good sized crowd of thirty-fourth degree fans, who did everything in their power to make up for the frigid reception provided by Prof. Cox. Before play had progressed an inning it became too dark to see, but the players stuck to their posts until the clouds burst, spitting lightning and pelting the players with big hail stones and rain drops, with a steady accompaniment of thunder. Then they ran to cover. That was in the first half of the fourth inning, and, so far as it was possible to ascertain in the gloom, the score at that time was 2 to 0 in favor of the regulars.

Tinker and Kling Absent.

Manager Selee's plans to give the fans a chance to get a line on all his men by pitting them against each other fell through completely. Even during the three and a half innings played it was impossible for the spectators to distinguish the players with any degree of accuracy, and the only way to guess at the whereabouts of the ball was by the actions of the players in the gloaming. Moreover, Shortstop Tinker and Catcher Kling, who had been allowed to stop over in Kansas City under solemn promise to be here in time for yesterday's affair, broke their pledges as easily as if they were wartime contracts and never showed at all.

This necessitated a hustle for talent enough to fill the eighteen positions, and for that purpose two local players were called into service. They were McQuade, who played center field for the extras, and Holmes, who caught for the regulars in Kling's place. Catcher Raub filled in Tinker's place at short. "Pop" Williams was placed at third for the extras, to which post Raub had been originally assigned, and McQuade filled "Pop's" assignment in the outfield. Lundgren pitched for the extras instead of Weimer, the latter taking Carl's place in the suburbs. Otherwise the advertised lineup was followed.

The regulars batted Lundgren for six hits in three innings and scored two runs thereby, in spite of the fact the catcher could hardly see the ball plainly enough to catch it. Hardy shut the extras out without a hit until two were out in the first half of the fourth, when the storm broke. Just as the hailstones began to get dangerous Chance tore off a double, and there was where Manager Selee, who had been inveigled into umpiring the game, stopped things. In five minutes the grounds were flooded and the game was called off. President Hart announced that all rain checks issued yesterday would be good for any game during the championship season.

Selee a Swell Umpire.

Manager Selee, who was justly proud of his successful début as an umpire, said after the game that he was greatly disappointed at the outcome, as he had hoped for a fine day and good practice. Instead, the storm might preclude all his plans for practice here by soaking the grounds. The two games arranged for today and tomorrow were canceled for the purpose of giving the Colts a couple of days' practice on a grass diamond, their experiences so far having been chiefly on "skinned" diamonds. If possible he will get in practice twice each day, morning and afternoon, and will take the team to St. Louis on Tuesday night in fine shape for the opening of the championship season on Wednesday.

The manager was considerably put out by the action of Kling and Tinker in taking advantage of the permission he gave them to stop at their home city, and his remark, "They will probably want a few more favors before the season is over," was eloquent of frigidity and disappointment for them in all future requests. Manager Selee is not one to forget or overlook deception in his players.

The tabular record of yesterday's affair as far as it progressed follows:

BREAK EVEN ON THE SERIES.

Browns Beat Cardinals 8 to 1 in Final Contest—Rival Magnates Hold a Love Feast During Game.

St. Louis, Mo., April 12.—[Special.]—The Browns and Cardinals brought their anteseason series to a close today. The Browns won an easy victory by a score of 2 to 1, making the series even up, each club having won two. Powell pitched and showed brilliant form. Heidrick, Burkett, Padden, and Wallace all made sensational fielding plays behind him.

O'Day, one of the umpires of the local series, will go to New York in the morning. He will umpire the opening championship game there between the Giants and Superbas.

New Orleans, La., April 12.—[Special.]—The New Orleans team played all around the American leaguers today and won a hot game. There were 10,000 enthusiasts in attendance. Clark Griffith's share of the receipts paid the training expenses of the New York club here. Score:

MICHIGAN PROFESSOR IN DISFAVOR.

F. M. Scott, professor of rhetoric at the University of Michigan, is one of the prominent figures in the recent athletic explosion which shook the town of Ann Arbor to its foundations. Prof. Scott is blamed by Michigan students, alumni, and even his fellow faculty members for permitting Prof. David Starr Jordan of Stanford university to make unchallenged charges of professionalism and unfair methods against Coach Yost of the Michigan eleven at the meeting of college instructors in Chicago. Prof. Scott has justified his position so far by maintaining that he had at the time no data at hand to disprove Prof. Jordan's statements.

WHITE SOX IN DUAL ROLE.

PLAY IN KANSAS CITY AND DAVENPORT ON SAME DAY.

One Section Reinforced by Tinker and Kling of Selee's Aggregation Defeats Gear's Team 14 to 4 — Second Bunch of Comiskeyites Beat Three Eye Leaguers 12 to 0—Both Games Played in Sloppy Weather and Are Won by Heavy Work with the Stick.

Kansas City, Mo., April 12.—[Special.]—Two thousand spectators saw a part of the Chicago White Stockings defeat the American association team here this afternoon. The score at the finish was 14 to 4, and the Comiskeyites could have made twice that number of runs if they had exerted themselves. The White Stockings put up a fast fielding game, and they hit Gear's youngsters at will.

The American leaguers were reinforced by Johnny Kling and Joe Tinker of the Chicago National league team, two Kansas City boys. Kling held down the initial bag, while Tinker played third base.

Manager Callahan pitched the first four innings for the White Sox, and, while he did not exert himself, he had the locals at his mercy. Patterson succeeded Callahan, and, barring the fifth inning, there was nothing doing for the locals. He had speed to burn and his control was exceptionally good.

Flaven, a Minneapolis product, played left field for the White Sox, and his work was anything but sensational. He was slow on his feet and he used poor judgment on bases.

The locals used three pitchers and all of them fared about alike. Gibson opened the game, but three innings was enough for him. He was followed by McDonald and Durham. the ground was in miserable condition, but in spite of that few errors were made. Score:

WHITE SOX II. ARE VICTORS, TOO.

Second Division of Comiskey's Aggregation Beats Davenport 12 to 0 on a Rain Soaked Field.

Davenport, Ia., April 12.—[Special.]—Today's game between the Chicago White Stockings second team and the Davenport Three-Eye leaguers resulted in a victory for Comiskey's men by a score of 12 to 0.

Almost a thousand persons saw the game under a darkened sky. The diamond was so soft it was necessary to lay out a diamond in another part of the grounds. Under the conditions the game naturally was slow and full of amusing accidents. While fielding all that would be visible of the outfielders would be their heads and shoulders from splashing through pools of water.

Dunkle did all the twirling for the White Sox and had Davenport at his mercy during the entire game. Chicago hit Stauffer hard during the three innings he pitched. Home runs by Dolan and Dunkle with men on bases, together with bases on balls and errors, netted them ten runs.

Hughes proved the more effective, the White Sox failing to score off him. Considering the condition of the grounds and the weather, the Chicago team showed that they were in good trim. Ground rules, allowing only one base on wild throws were agreed upon. Score:

DATES OF THE INTERSTATE

PROMISING NEW ORGANIZATION ADOPTS ITS SCHEDULE.

All Its Games Will Be Played on Sunday with the Exception of Those Assigned to Decoration Day, Fourth of July, and Labor Day—Most of the Players Are Employed During the Week in Chicago—League Run by Experienced Managers.

The Interstate league baseball schedule was given out yesterday. The opening games will take place a week from next Sunday, the Athletics playing at Aurora, the Spaldings at Elgin, the Gunthers at Racine, the Sycamores at Kenosha, and the Marquettes at South Chicago.

This league might well be named the Sunday league, as practically all of its contests will be played on that day. The exceptions are the big holidays—Decoration day, fourth of July, and Labor day.

Most of the games are scheduled for the suburban towns composing the organization, and on some days the home team will be away and two other teams of the league will be on hand to battle. This affords a novel feature to the contest. There is hardly a doubt this league is going to be a great success, as it is made up of good ball players and is managed by men of experience in handling semi-professional clubs. Good players were secured, for the reason that many of the men signed are employed in Chicago during the week and prefer a baseball job that did not interfere materially with their business.

Following is the schedule:

April 26—Athletics at Aurora, Spaldings at Elgin, Gunthers at Racine, Sycamore at Kenosha, Marquettes at South Chicago.

May 3—Gunthers at Aurora, Marquettes at Elgin, Sycamores at Racine, Spaldings at Kenosha, Athletics at South Chicago.

ISSUES CLEAN BALL CIRCULAR.

President Pulliam Sends Out Instructions Aimed to Stop Rowdyism and Wrangling Over Rules.

New York, April 12.—In a circular to managers, captains, and players of the National league President Pulliam makes the following interpretation of such rules as are deemed susceptible of evasion:

Rule 29 (pitcher's position)—The pitcher, in taking his position, shall place no part of either foot back of the rubber, nor shall he take more than one step in delivering the ball to the batsman.

Rule 33, section 8 (balking)—Construed as meaning that both feet of the catcher must be inside the catcher's lines.

Rule 40 (batting)—A foul tip must go sharp from the bat. If the ball rises from the bat, as in the case of an attempt to bunt a low or slow ball, it will be ruled as a foul fly.

Rule 46, section 5 (batsman is out)—The batsman will be declared out at once if he make any motion or attempt any interference with the throwing or the catching of the ball by the catcher.

Rule 47, section 4 (becomes a base runner)—The batsman in no case will be allowed to become a runner as the result of being hit by a slowly delivered ball, the umpire to be judge of the speed of such ball.

Rule 51—Attention of players is called to the rule requiring runners to keep within the three feet lines in going to first unless to avoid a fielder.

Rule 53 (coaching)—This rule is construed literally and will be enforced literally, with the exception of the imposition of the $5 fine, in which case the printed rules are in error.

Rule 67 (field rules)—Will be enforced literally.

EGAN IS STILL CHAMPION.

JERSEY CITY HANDBALL PLAYER WINS MATCH WITH KEEGAN.

Deciding Contest Between Easterner and Chicago Challenger Is Contested at Kennedy's Court—Local Man Takes First Game, but Visitor Runs Away with the Second, Which Was All He Needed to Retain Prize—Veterans See Play.

Michael Egan of Jersey City, N. J., yesterday won the handball championship of the United States by defeating Louis Keegan of Chicago in the second half of their fifteen game match played at Kennedy's court. The result was a foregone conclusion, as the easterner made a clean sweep of the first seven games, played on March 21 at Jersey City, and needed only another game to annex the title and a side wager of $250.

Victory came in the second match of yesterday's series, which he won by a score of 21 to 15. Keegan raised the hopes of his friends by winning the first game, 21 to 16, but it was easy to see his chances of victory were exceedingly slim, as the clever visitor fought tenaciously for every point, and even on the strange court was able to make an even contest. Kennedy's walls are faster than those in Jersey City, and it was thought this would give Keegan a big advantage, but Egan proved himself a versatile performer and soon had the pace guaged.

The match was one of the most important played in years, and the limited capacity of the gallery was overtaxed. Phil Casey, who won the championship in 1868 and held it until he resigned a few years ago, and James Dunne, his partner in many contests, came from New York. M. Devanney of Cincinnati and William Carney of Toledo were also among the visiting experts.

The crowd of local players contained a number of clever performers and included Jimmy Barry, William McGurn, ex-Ald. McInerney, Senator Rainey, Capt. Ward, M. Foley, M. Coggins, M. Kennedy, and J. O. Mealy.

Casey was the center of attraction before the match, and several sons of the "Ould Sod" who had seen him perform twenty years ago, called to shake the hand of their former idol.

Although the contest ended with the second game the spectators saw some brilliant handball and most of them went away satisfied that the better man won. Egan is a perfect specimen of physical manhood and his muscular development caused comment as soon as he appeared ready for action. Keegan is also a "broth of a boy," but is not as young as the New Jersey player, who appeared fit to play twenty games if necessary.

At starting the light was good, but later it grew dark and the men were compelled to abandon the first of the bye games they started for the benefit of the spectators.

The score:

Egan 16 21
Keegan 21 17

In order to give the spectators a chance to see more play the men continued, but with the score at 11 to 4 in Egan's favor it got so dark it was difficult to see the ball, and play was stopped.

Later on, when the light was better, Phil Casey and Capt. Ward played James Dunn and Willie McGurn, the match ending in a tie. The eastern veterans were given a great reception, and both gave clever exhibitions. Scores:

Casey and Ward................	21	20	21	20
Dunn and McGurn...............	14	21	20	21

Other scores were as follows:

W. Carney and Pendergast.........	21	19	21	20
James Bateman and W. Ryan........	20	21	14	21
D. Sullivan and J. Farrell...........	21	15	14	21
P. Farrell and M. O'Hern..........	16	21	21	20
J. Dailey and G. Morris.............	19	16	21
M. Coggins and J. Gearity..........	21	21	20
D. Sullivan and W. O'Brien.........	21	21	21
P. Byrne and P. Sullivan............	12	15	14

HIGH SCHOOLS IN RELAY RACES.

Coach Stagg Expects Many Teams to Enter Contests at Marshall Field Next Saturday.

Fifteen high schools and academies are expected to send mile relay teams to compete in the tryout meet on Marshall Field next Saturday, when a team will be selected to represent the west in the Philadelphia meet on April 25. Coach Stagg of the University of Chicago said yesterday afternoon that so far the following schools had accepted his invitation to send teams: Hyde Park, Lewis institute, Englewood High, Morgan Park academy, Culver Military academy, North Division, South Division, Marquette academy of Milwaukee, Evansville (Ind.) high school, and probably Louisville (Ky.) high school.

Stagg, on behalf of the university, has offered to the winning team $100 toward its expenses to the meet, and has agreed to pay its expenses in coming to Chicago for the trials. The university will entertain as its guests all the teams coming to Chicago for the local contest. It is probable the fraternities will take care of most of the boys who come.

The training table for the Chicago track men will start Wednesday in Hitchcock hall. Who will be given places has not yet been announced.

MECCA OF THE TRAP SHOOTERS

Kansas City Is Scene of the Grand American Handicap at Inanimate Targets This Week.

Kansas City, Mo., April 12.—Celebrated shooters from all parts of the country are coming to this city on every train to take part in the fourth annual grand American handicap tournament at inanimate targets, which begins at Blue River Park Tuesday and lasts four days.

Everything is in readiness for the tournament, and it is expected the shoot will be the most successful at targets ever held in the history of the Interstate association.

Elmer E. Shaner, secretary of the association, tonight said: "From the present outlook this will be one of the most successful shoots ever held in the United States. The number of contestants, with the post entries, will reach about 175. The park, which was adequate to handle 500 shooters last spring at the live bird handicap, will keep the contestants on the move all the week."

ENTRIES FOR THE CHARTER OAK.

Fifteen Subscribers to the Hartford Classic—Other Stakes Are Well Filled.

Hartford, Conn., April 12.—Entries in stakes to be raced during the Charter Oak park grand circuit meeting of Sept. 7 to 12 next have been given out by Secretary Horace Wilson.

Fifteen have subscribed to the twentieth renewal of the famous Charter Oak stake of $10,000, as follows:

R. C. Benson, Kansas City, Mo.; S. De Ridder, Louisville, Ky.; Ed F. Geers, Memphis, Tenn.; James Hanly, Providence, R. I.; N. W. Hubinger, New Haven, Conn.; S. B. Kitchell, Coldwater, Mich.; M. Salisbury, Pleasanton, Cal.; George Tod, Youngstown, O.; Walnut Hall farm, Donerail, Ky.; and James Butler, John J. Scannell, F. G. Schmidt, C. E. Simmons, M. E. Sturgis, and E. E. Smathers, all of New York.

The starters will not be named until Aug. 24, but the candidates probably will include Baron Deshay, 2:08¾; Idolita, 2:09¼; A. J. D., 2:09¼; Eleata, 2:08½; Beldia, 2:09½; Wentworth, 2:09¼; Metallas, 2:11; Maxine, 2:08¾; The Roman, 2:09½; Walnut Hall, 2:09¾; Lord Vincent, 2:08¾; and Dan Wilkes, 2:09½.

The Capital City, $3,000, for 2:19 trotters, has fourteen entries, while the Old Colony, for 2:30 trotters, the Nutmeg, for 2:09 pacers, and the Connecticut, for 2:30 pacers, each received thirteen entries.

Two Skat Tournaments.

Max Laury captured first prize in the monthly skat tournament at Division street and California avenue yesterday. Laury won fifteen games. Carl Fruend took second prize. The third and fourth were won by C. Hugotimm and R. Doesel. Ninety players took part. Joseph Ganzwold won first prize in the tournament of the Lake View Skat club yesterday, scoring eighteen games. Second prize went to Charles Kahn, who made 579 points. The other prize winners were Charles Westphal, August Grage, and Frank Straub.

Impressive Work by McGee.

Louisville, Ky., April 12.—[Special.]—Corrigan's McGee covered a mile in 1:44 at Churchill Downs today, pulled up. Many believe he will win the Kentucky Derby. Corrigan's Laflore went a mile in 1:45 and Star Ruby, colt from Pat Dunne's stable, three-quarters in 1:17.

ONLY SIX IN THE TENNESSEE OAKS.

Tomorrow's Race at Memphis Is Expected to Be Easy for Olefiant.

RESERVE THE 2 YEAR OLDS

Trainers, Profiting by Experience, Are Holding Back Youngsters.

Memphis, Tenn., April 12.—[Special.]—The Tennessee Oaks will be run tomorrow at Montgomery park. The race a month ago promised to be the best contest among western 3 years old fillies this year, but scratching has left an ordinary field, and one that is not at all representative.

Originally there were sixty-five entries, and the list included Geheimness, Judith Campbell, Eva Russell, Hindi, Sweet Alice, and many other high class fillies, which will not be seen with colors up. Sickness, lack of condition, and other excuses are given for their nonappearance, and the field of six, which is left, is hardly above the ordinary in caliber.

Olefiant, the Nashville filly, is the one exception. The daughter of Ornus and Alveria M. was one of the best fillies in the west last year, when she put many stakes to her credit, and after going east she held her own in the best company at Saratoga and at the metropolitan tracks. If she will run up to the form she displayed tomorrow's race will be only a useful gallop for her. Trainer Albert Franklin believes she will fulfill the promise she gave as a 2 year old. The great colored rider, J. Winkfield, came over from Louisville today to ride her, and if she is beaten, which is not at all likely, it will not be on account of faulty jockeyship.

Bookmaker John Fay, who gave the probable odds against the Tennessee Derby starters the day before the race, and whose judgment was verified, does not share the general opinion tonight that the race is a practical walkover for Olefiant. He offers to lay 5 to 2 against any of those carded to start. Fay seems to be alone, however, in his estimation of the Oaks field. The Nashville filly is sure to go to the post favorite at much shorter odds. The track will be in good condition, although it may be a trifle slow from a heavy rain which fell this morning.

Other fixtures to be contested during the week are the Tennessee Brewing company's stake, for 3 year olds and upward, at seven furlongs, on Thursday, and the Memphis stakes, for 2 year olds, on Saturday. The distance of the latter event is five furlongs, the farthest the youngsters have been asked to go at the meeting. The fields in both races will be made up of horses which have been seen in the earlier stakes, and it is not likely any new material will put in an appearance.

Trainers have seemed to learn a lesson by experience and are not pushing their 2 year olds along as rapidly as they have done in former years. It is the general opinion that many of the best youngsters have not yet been shown, but are being carefully nursed for more valuable stakes to come later at the Chicago tracks.

Ed Tierney is well engaged in the western 2 year old fixtures, is undoubtedly a colt of quality, and is sure to give a good account of himself.

John W. Schorr has decided to campaign a western as well as an eastern string. He will turn over a dozen or more horses to his son, John F. Schorr, which will be shipped to St. Louis at the close of this meeting.

Memphis Entries.

First race, ¾ mile—Alfio, 108 pounds; Birdwood, 104; Siphon, 104; Hattie Davis, 102; Insolence, 102; The Boston, 97; Joe Buckley, 96; Heroine, 86.

Second race, ½ mile, 2 year olds—Claremont, 110 pounds; Lady Free Knight, 108; Mingore, 107; Ario, 106; Bird Pond, 103; Phelan, 103; Oleometer, ch. f., by Ornus—Drift, 99; Stumpy, 97; Nettie E., 97.

Third race, 1 1-16 miles—Rolling Boer, 112 pounds; Maj. Tenny, 105; Rankin, 93.

Fourth race, 1 mile, the Tennessee Oaks, $1,500 added—Lady Winkle 117 pounds; Lady Matchless, 117; Olefiant, 117; Betmuda, 117; Avoid, 117; Sarah Maxim, 117.

Fifth race, 7½ furlongs—Old Hutch, 111 pounds; Favonius, 109; Elsie L., 106; Henry Burt, 104; Scotch Plaid, 101; Arachne, 99; Autumn Leaves, 96.

Sixth race, ¾ mile—Automaton, 114 pounds; Joe Martin, 110; O'Hagen, 108; Miss Hume, 104; Louise Collier, 95; John Coulter, 95; Budweiser, 93; Suburban Queen, 92.

DEMAND LICENSE OF LAKESIDE.

Town of Hammond Wants $200 a Day During the Race Meeting at Roby.

Demand will be made today on the Lakeside Jockey club to pay a license of $200 a day to the town of Hammond during the running of races at Roby. The officials of the track were not prepared to say last night what action would be taken in the matter. Mayor A. F. Knotts of Hammond is authority for the statement that a license would be demanded.

Secretary Jasper has issued his program book for the first ten days of the Worth Jockey club's meeting, which will commence on April 29. The number of $600 and $700 purses indicates a distinct gain in the way of class racing. Four stakes are set for decision—the Worth handicap, which is the $4,000 feature of the opening day; the $2,000 Flying handicap, six furlongs, May 2; the May Blossom stakes, worth $2,000, for 2 year old fillies, May 7; and the Orland stakes, $2,500, at one mile, May 9.

The book calls attention to the rule recently passed by the Western Jockey club in regard to when bets may or may not be declared off for casualties or accidents to a horse or rider.

Acceptances for the $10,000 Harlem National handicap, to be run at Harlem park on June 6, run higher than Secretary Nathanson expected. Of the 111 horses entered in February only twenty-four have been declared out, and of these five—Aladdin, Otis, Mindora, Dewey, and Lacy Crawford—are out because of having gone wrong. The others withdrawn are Blues, St. Marcos, Bessie Spahr, Telamon, The Unknown, Watercure, Lord Quex, Kalos, Eonic, Capt. Arnold, W. B. Gates, Artilla, Gypzene, Col. Ballentyne, Orfeo, Orsina, Dick Furber, Halcyondale, and Discharged. Nearly all of these are California horses. Having to scratch Otis, which was in at 115 pounds, must be a great disappointment to Barney Schreiber, who, when the weights were announced, expressed himself well satisfied with the impost.

Stables for Lakeside and Kinloch.

Louisville, Ky., April 12.—[Special.]—Hiram Scoggin shipped Best Man and Florizar to Lakeside tonight and Bob Tucker sent ten to the same track. Billy Phillips shipped fourteen to Kinloch.

Mrs. Hull Wins at Toledo.

Toledo, O., April 12.—Mrs. Hull, the well known woman bowler of Chicago, defeated Toledo's favorite, Mrs. Joseph Thren, on the McCormick alleys in this city. Mrs. Hull rolled five games, with an average of 186 4-5. In ten games Mrs. Hull had 1,657 points to her credit, while her opponent had but 1,481. The first five games were bowled on alleys owned by Mrs. Thren's husband, on which the Toledo player had the advantage of being perfectly familiar.

WILL START THE SEASON TODAY

Parochial League Teams, Numbering Twenty-six in All, Will Begin Playing Scheduled Games.

Twenty-six teams, the largest number in any one league in the United States, will begin playing the regular scheduled games today, when the Parochial league, composed of players in the Catholic schools, will open the championship season.

The nines have not all secured grounds as yet, but the diamonds in the parks will be used until better facilities are offered. Thirteen games are scheduled today, and if the weather man does not turn loose a downpour the opening will be auspicious. The games are as follows: Visitation vs. St. Bernards; Holy Angels vs. Holy Cross; St. Brendan vs. St. Anne; St. Bridget and Sacred Heart; All Saints and St. Pious; Nativity and St. Elizabeth; St. Charles and St. Agatha; Our Lady of Sorrows and St. Paul; Blessed Sacrament and St. Mel; St. Finbarr and Holy Family; Holy Name and St. Jarlath; Our Lady of Mount Carmel and Annunciation; St. Columbkill and St. Boniface. The double umpire system will be used. The staff will be composed of the older boys in the schools.

Fashionable Bedsteads.

The craze for the antique in furniture making has worked a revolution in the beds, as in all else, and the big four posters, of mahogany, beautifully carved, and of handsomer design and finish than their ancestors, have put the brass bed out of the running.

Metal beds will still be sold—but society has set its seal of approval on those of wood. We have some beautiful examples, with Bureaus, Chiffoniers and Dressing Tables to match—that we should be glad to show you.

Bed room furniture is a feature with us, and much of it is exclusively shown here. The woods are real mahogany, curly birch, birds eye maple and all the new finishes in oak.

A good bed must have good springs and mattress, else it belies its name. Our upholsterers attend to those details thoroughly.

GRAY EASTER FOR GOTHAM PARADE.

New York's "Socially Elect" Show Disposition to Give Up Famous Stroll.

LARGE CROWD IS ON HAND

Fifth Avenue Swarms with a Motley Throng of Jerseyites and East Siders.

New York, April 12.—[Special.]—Drifting banks of clouds and the absence of blue skies made a "gray Easter" of it here. It made no difference with regular churchgoers, but the paraders who had bought new clothes were disappointed, and that means that the annual "Easter parade" on Fifth avenue was not so brilliant an affair this season as in some seasons past.

During the early part of the day a drizzle of rain carried woe and disappointment to the hearts of many thousands of women and prevented all but the more daring from donning their radiant gowns for the festal day. Old residents say it is an undeniable fact that the Fifth avenue Easter parade has for many years been steadily declining in brilliance and that the really fashionable and socially "elect," who in years gone by made the stroll homeward from church on Easter morning one of the most brilliant and enlivening spectacles to be observed in the country, have of late years chosen to return home in carriages.

Plenty of Life and Color.

These conclusions of the old observers were strikingly borne out today between 1 and 2 o'clock. The avenue did not lack for life and color, and the scene looking down the avenue from Central park was beautiful as on no other day of all the year, but it was noticeable that the function did not last so long. The "strolling" in most cases soon quickened into brisk walks, as the slight indication of ice in the breath of the spring breeze permeated the habiliments of spring.

There never was such a gathering of sightseers on the stoops of the mansions on the avenue. The east side sent a mighty contingent to see "the other half" dressed in Sunday clothes. There were Germans from Houston street, Greeks and Syrians from the downtown, Japanese, Hungarians, and Italians, and a host of sightseers from a distance. They came from the outlying counties to the north of the city, from Long Island as far east as Greenport, and from New Jersey as far as Asbury Park.

Policemen Kept Busy.

Policemen were kept busy telling the pilgrims that they were really on Fifth avenue and would not miss anything if they rested themselves on the doorsteps of the brown stone mansions.

These wayfarers came early in the day and thronged the churches to the doors and listened in awed wonder to the feast of song and admired the beauties of flower covered chancels and altars, but, withal, ever ready to rush for the avenue when benedictions were pronounced.

There were hundreds of milliners and dressmakers among the sightseers to see their own handiwork and to get "points" from creations of rivals. Photographers were perched everywhere, and tailors and haberdashers were on hand in force to critisize and to learn. Stages were crowded to the last perch with visitors eager to catch a glimpse of the passing show.

Mixed Examples of Style.

Every color of the rainbow and every combination of those colors appeared in the throng. There were gowns and hats from the famous magazines of the Rue de la Paix, and there were the latest creations from the dressmakers of Englewood, N. J.—best work of tailors, and bootmakers, and haberdashers from a half dozen capitals drifting along with the latest spring styles from New York stores. There were some marvelous creations in neckties, vying with the latest thing in "spats."

The spectator who came to study style was bewildered and confused by the various inconsistencies observed in the case of the male contingent. Some wore gloves and some did not. There was the long and lithe "Prince Albert," and following it was just as likely to come the ever ready "cutaway," and quite often the plain spring business suit was found in this company. Every sort and condition of hat that mortal man ever saw was likely to be encountered in this great Easter promenade.

Riotous Confusion in Style.

There was about the same diversity in the apparel of the women. Judging from today's parade, there is going to be no distinctive style this season in anything—just a sort of go as you please system, such as Dame Fashion has not allowed for many a day. There were gowns that appeared to be more or less subdued, and there were gowns that could be seen practically as far as the naked eye could observe—a sort of renaissance of styles that were popularly supposed to have "gone out" a good many years ago, and there were some styles that probably no human being ever saw before.

Easter Services at Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., April 12.—Cardinal Gibbons pontificated at the Easter services in the cathedral today. His eminence was much improved in health and his voice was strong. The Rev. Dr. William A. Fletcher, rector of the cathedral, preached the sermon and was assisted by other priests attached to the cathedral household. Students from St. Mary's seminary sang the responses to the mass.

LONDON HAS A DISMAL EASTER.

Dull Skies, Cold Wind, and a Dash of Snow Keeps Smart Set from Hyde Park.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1903: By the New York Herald.]

LONDON, April 12.—Though Easter has fallen late in the year, when one might have expected mild weather after the geniality of the last week, Easter Sunday was chill. The sky for the most part of the day was overcast, with occasional blinks of sunshine. All day the wind blew strongly cold for this period of the year. Indeed, London was surprised in the afternoon by a fall of snow. Twenty minutes to 4 there came a smart fall of snow. It lasted for a little more than a quarter of an hour, but during that time the air was full of snowflakes.

Hyde park, where one expects to see every Sunday the usual church parade of the smart set, presented a different spectacle from what one usually sees. Never, perhaps, has there been seen such a Sunday at Hyde park. Instead of aristocratic carriages with smart liveried coachmen and footmen and automobiles the park was entirely taken possession of by Whitechapelites and eastenders. The park resounded with the raucous cry of the coster, the rude joker of the "Arry and 'Arriet" type, and the bellowing of babies, while the parkkeepers looked on in consternation at the sandwich papers scattered all over the grass, which meant hard work to make the place presentable for Monday.

Smart restaurants practically were deserted, but that of course was to be expected. No great has been the exodus to the continent and country houses for the Easter vacation. Nor were the churches well attended. It was the dullest Easter Sunday known to London in many years.

Pope Foregoes Easter Mass.

ROME, April 12.—Easter Sunday here was marked by magnificent weather. A private mass was held at the vatican with a few select guests. The pontiff was present, but for the first time in his pontificate he did not officiate personally. This circumstance has given rise to all kinds of rumors regarding Pope Leo's health, who, however, is well enough to receive a large number of Hungarian pilgrims.

WOES OF THE EASTER HAT

WIND AND RAIN MENACE THE HOLIDAY FINERY.

Threatening Weather in the Morning Deters Many Churchgoers from Donning Spring Garments, and in the Afternoon Those on the Streets Encounter a Downpour and a Gale—Delicate Creations of Millinery Suffer in Consequence.

A rainy Easter, and a windy one, was the condition that confronted Chicago yesterday and did much to deprive the city of the display of color which usually is incidental to the holiday. The rainfall amounted to nearly half an inch, while at one time the wind blew at a velocity of thirty-four miles an hour.

The woes of the Easter bonnet were many. Here are the conditions, together with some remarks, which many women may have made:

9 a. m.—Cold and foggy. "Guess I can if it clears up. I'll open the box."
10:30 a. m.—Ten minutes of sunshine. "Yes, it will be all right."
11 a. m.—Colder and sky lowering. "Guess I'd better wait and see."
1 p. m.—Squally and bleak. "Guess I'll wait awhile longer."
2 p. m.—Dark as twilight, with dust blowing through the streets. "Afraid it's all up now."
3:15 p. m.—Rain. "O, dear—might as well put it back in the box."
5 p. m.—Still raining. "Well, I don't care much, anyway. I'll save it for the Derby."

Usual Color Is Lacking.

As a result of the threatening outlook in the morning the churches were not the scenes of such brilliant displays of color and fashion as had been anticipated. One ray of sunshine does not make an Easter, and so the brief bright interval just before church failed to bring out more than a minority of the new spring wardrobes.

The morning papers brought foreboding weather predictions, and a visit to the front veranda convinced the feminine mind that fragile toques should not be ventured abroad. In the afternoon more people took heart and promenaded the boulevards, but for the most part the costumes smacked more of winter than of spring.

There was trouble at the corner of the Masonic temple, where Chicago's winds come from. Heavily ballasted center board bonnet shapes rode the gale well, but light draft headgear foundered in the storm.

Prank of the Wind.

One three master in brown straw, with a deep cargo of grapes and hedge berries, rounded the corner laboring heavily. Suddenly it careened, pitched violently on a storm tossed coiffure, and finally, dragging its anchors, cut loose and drove before the gale. A feminine shriek piped all hands to the rescue, but the derelict was only recovered when beached on the pavement of the Stewart building.

Then it came on to rain. A few preliminary drops and it was pouring. There was a stampede of pedestrians to the shelter of vestibules, doorways, and drug stores, but many a delicate thing of chiffon and lace was caught and bedraggled.

After the rain settled down to steadiness it was a common sight to see the homegoers protecting beneath their umbrellas the hats which were sadly the worse for misadventures.

TELLS WHY PECOY RESIGNED.

Lincoln Park Commissioner Hirsch Says He Was Told to Go—Mr. Simmons Has Different Version.

The report that Arthur D. Pecoy, formerly captain of police in Lincoln park, had resigned because of the refusal of the park commissioners to receive his recommendations in a scandal trial against one of the park policemen, was denied by members of the board yesterday afternoon. It was said that the finding of the trial board had nothing to do with the resignation of Pecoy.

"Pecoy was told to resign," said James H. Hirsch, one of the park commissioners. "He resigned rather than be discharged."

Francis T. Simmons, also a member of the board, offered another version.

"Pecoy resigned six months previous to the trial of the policeman," said Mr. Simmons. "He wanted to accept another position, which he now holds. We did not accept his resignation until it became necessary for him to take his new place or pass it by."

The trial of the policeman took place several weeks ago. He was accused of mistreating a young woman. The park trial board heard the evidence and agreed that the girl's charges were untrue.

"There is no foundation for the report that Pecoy had resigned because he was not backed up in his efforts to maintain discipline," said Mr. Hirsch. "He had been guilty of acts that were cause for his dismissal. The statement that I have been making the uniforms for the park policemen is true. I have done so at the urgent request of both the policemen and of the commissioners. The uniforms have been furnished to the policemen at exactly cost. Because of my position on the board I preferred not to have anything to do with the uniforming of the men. But I was forced to by the board. I have no ill feeling against Pecoy whatever. But I do believe that the truth should be known."

COMING TO TALK OF LIBRARIES.

Members of Illinois Association to Meet at the University of Chicago Today.

Librarians will meet today at the University of Chicago at the annual assembly of the Illinois Library association. A three days' session is scheduled, during which the members of the association will visit libraries and stores which deal in library supplies and will hear addresses on general and technical subjects pertaining to libraries.

This evening a reception will be given to the visitors by the university, President Harper and Dr. Sidney Lee making short addresses. Tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock a technical session will be held, at which C. P. Roder of the Chicago Public Library will discuss "Printed Catalogue Cards and Their Uses." In the afternoon at 2 o'clock Miss M. E. Ahern, editor of Public Libraries, will conduct a discussion on "Library Architecture."

Exhibits of bookbinding, printing, and picture bulletins will be displayed at the university during the session of the association.

PRAISES ENERGY OF CHICAGO.

Booth-Tucker of the Salvation Army Says the Lazy Man Has No Place in Life.

Commander Booth-Tucker of the Salvation army preached an evangelistic sermon last evening at Princess rink in West Madison street, the services marking the end of a week of self-denial of the army and the beginning of a week of special revival meetings. The commander will speak again tonight at the rink.

"I admire an industrious man," Commander Booth-Tucker said in the opening of his talk. "I feel he has some sort of a foundation. But there is no hope for the lazy man. The Lord hates laziness above most sins.

"Here in Chicago the people are indeed industrious. They are up and doing."

SUNDAY CIRCUS DRAWS CROWD.

Rainy Weather Has Little Influence on Audiences at Performance in the Coliseum.

The threatening weather yesterday did not deter the large crowds which were drawn to the Coliseum by the Ringling Bros.' circus. The baby monkey, which has been named Chicago, attracted a great deal of interest, and came near robbing Baby Boo, the infant elephant, of his laurels. All afternoon and evening the monkey cage containg "Chicago" was surrounded by crowds. The act of Crazo, who loops the loop on a bicycle, is one of the sensational features of the performances.

Murine cures sore eyes. Makes weak eyes strong. It doesn't smart; soothes eye pain.

SCHOOL PROBLEMS ARE LISTED.

Questions Prepared for Candidates of the Conference Called by Northwestern.

The conference of colleges and universities called by Northwestern university to consider the topic, "The Relation of the College to the Professional School," will discuss the following questions:

Has the college a field peculiar to itself, not covered by the technical school and not serving solely as preparatory to the professional school?

Is it desirable that the college course be reduced in time from four to three years, or even two, and correspondingly in amount of work?

Is it desirable that the bachelor's degree, based on the course of four years, be required for admission to the professional school?

If reduction of time is allowed, should it be by acceptance of credit in the college of liberal arts for work done in the professional school, or by acceptance in professional school for work done in the college of liberal arts, or by combining these plans?

What is likely to be the effect of the combined courses upon professional education in general and especially upon the independent professional schools?

If the bachelor's degree is not a reasonable requirement as a preliminary to professional study, what should be required in the way of preparation?

What method of coöperation is feasible by which mutual recognition or work done in the respective institutions may be secured?

The conference will be held Friday and Saturday, May 8 and 9.

SCHLEY OFF FOR WASHINGTON.

Admiral and His Party Leave in the Afternoon—Talks of Plans for Future.

Rear Admiral Winfield S. Schley and party, consisting of Mrs. Schley, Mr. and Mrs. Col. A. K. McClure, and Miss Welsh and Miss Curtain of Philadelphia, left Chicago for Washington yesterday afternoon.

The admiral was still a little hoarse, but otherwise none the worse for his cold, and spent part of the afternoon in the lobby of the Auditorium hotel chatting with friends.

"I expect to remain in Washington for a month or so," said he, "and during the hot summer months I shall go to some resort on the Atlantic coast or in the interior. I have no other plans of definite character."

"THIS IS MY BIRTHDAY."
—SHAKSPEARE.

ELY—Richard Theodore Ely, director of the school of economics, political science, and history, and professor of economics in University of Wisconsin.

"Dr. Ely's influence has been strongly felt in the development of economic science in the United States, and also in quickening the churches to their duty with regard to the various social problems of the day."

He is distinguished:

"Not only for his writings on special subjects in political economy but also—

"For the spirit he has infused of popular interest in the science, with which he is doubtless more to be credited than any other one man.

"For the development of theory along various lines."

Dr. Ely received the degree Ph. D., "summa cum laude," from Heidelberg university.

He long occupied the chair of political economy at Johns Hopkins university. His "ability has helped to make that institution famous all over the world."

"As a teacher he is just the man to enlist the confidence of a clever student and stimulate him to candid and impartial consideration of weighty themes."

"He treats his subjects from every point of view, so that his pupils have a wide field of observation from which to draw independent conclusions for themselves."

Prof. Ely is a frequent contributor to magazines.

He has written a number of books on sociology. One of these has been translated into Japanese, and, it is said, has exerted a marked influence on the development of Japan.

He was one of the originators of the American Economic association. He is an enthusiast on university extension.

VOSE PIANOS—
ESTABLISHED IN 1851.
THOUSANDS IN DAILY USE HERE IN CHICAGO.
Some people judge pianos by the outside appearance, but the true music lover looks first of all for tone quality—for that indefinable something that marks the difference between music and melody. The very soul of melody lives in the Vose piano, and the Vose tone gives proper expression to the masterpieces of the great composers.
The inside of a piano tests the quality of the construction far better than the outside. Every piece of wood or metal that goes into the construction of the Vose piano is finished as carefully, as delicately, as artistically as the outer case of the instrument.
Vose pianos are made in an entirely new factory, where every machine or mechanism used is new, perfect, and true. This insures an evenness in the manufacture that contributes very largely to the tone quality, the tone harmony of the finished Vose piano. It has taken over 50 years to attain the Vose standard of perfection, and that standard is rigidly maintained in every Vose piano. You get the acme of artistic excellence in piano construction when you buy a Vose.
Here are a few very special value offerings for the present week in slightly used pianos:

2 Vose Uprights, in fine order	$315
1 Ludwig Upright, returned from rental	250

VISIT
LYON & HEALY'S!
24 different makes of pianos, including Steinway, Knabe, Mason & Hamlin, Miller, Hazelton, Krakauer, Fischer, and other great names are exhibited side by side in our warerooms. All these different pianos are distinguished by some special features. The workmanship in each is of a superior character and every one of these pianos is of a design approved by the highest standard of public taste.
We have at the present time over 600 pianos of these makes and can suit each purchaser to a nicety. There is no shade of tone, no refinement of touch and action known to a piano that we cannot show you. And there is no variety of mahogany, oak, walnut, ebony, or any durable fancy wood that we cannot find for you in this unexampled stock. It is well to note that the various terms employed in describing pianos take on a new meaning here. For instance, one can form no idea of how beautiful mahogany may be until he sees the superbly marked mahogany cases in our stock.

EASTER IN THE CHURCHES

UNPLEASANT WEATHER FAILS TO CHECK ATTENDANCE.

Worshipers Flock to Holy Name Cathedral All the Morning — At the Holy Family 20,000 People Attend the Various Masses—Large Collections Taken Up, Wesley Methodists Completing the $8,000 Fund Needed to Pay Off Debt on Their Edifice.

Not even lowering skies and cold northeast wind could cause a noticeable falling off in the attendance at the Easter services of all the churches yesterday. Some of those who look to Easter as an occasion for the display of spring hats and dresses feared to venture forth, but those who regard the day from the standpoint of its religious significance filled the churches to overflowing. In all the churches, both Roman Catholic and Protestant, it was a day of music and flowers and rejoicing.

Almost from dawn worshipers flocked to the Holy Name cathedral. At the late mass the church was crowded and many were standing. Archbishop Quigley pontificated. All of the priests of the cathedral parish took part in the pontifical mass. The Rev. M. J. Fitzsimmons was assistant priest, the Rev. M. F. O'Brien deacon, the Rev. J. J. Code subdeacon, Dr. Mueller and the Rev. George McCarthy assistant deacons, the Rev. Francis J. Barry master of ceremonies, the Rev. D. L. McDonald assistant master of ceremonies, and the Rev. Thomas E. Cox cross bearer. The Rev. J. Rosrinkle preached the sermon.

At the end of the mass, the archbishop, wearing, besides his usual vestments, the tall miter and bearing the golden crozier, gave the papal blessing. Behind the lights of the altar a solid bank of palms and lilies constituted the sole decorations.

Holy Family Church Thronged.

In order to accommodate the crowds at the Church of the Holy Family it was found necessary to celebrate mass in the lower chapel in addition to the services in the main chapel at 6, 7, and 8 o'clock. Twenty thousand people are estimated to have attended the church during the day. In the main chapel mass was celebrated at 5, 6, 7, 8:30, and 10:30, and at 5 o'clock solemn vespers and benediction. At the afternoon service twenty-five infants were baptized. High mass was celebrated at 10:30 by the Rev. John Gonser, assisted by the Rev. Edward Coppinger as deacon, the Rev. Louis Falley as subdeacon, and the Rev. John McClory as master of ceremonies. The Rev. James D. Foley delivered the sermon. Hundreds of incandescent bulbs, entwined with wild ivy and Easter lilies, illuminated the altar. On the wall the words, "Jesus, Mary, and Joseph," were spelled with electric lights. Potted palms and large vases of roses were set behind the chancel rail.

High mass was celebrated at 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, and 11 o'clock at St. Charles Borromeo's church, Cypress and Twelfth streets, and 5,000 people attended. The 9 o'clock service was for children. At 7:30 in the evening Bishop P. J. Muldoon officiated at solemn pontifical vespers and benediction. The principal morning mass was celebrated by Bishop Muldoon, assisted by Father W. L. Kearney as deacon, Father T. F. Quinn as subdeacon, and Father J. B. Scanlan as master of ceremonies. The sermon was by the Rev. Dr. Gleason.

In Episcopal Churches.

In the Episcopal churches the services were impressive. At St. James' a fashionable congregation crowded the house of worship at the 10:45 o'clock service. Tall palms and lilies were in the chancel on both sides of the altar and lilies covered the altar rail. The musical service was by the vested choir of fifty voices.

More communicants attended the Easter services at the Church of the Epiphany than ever before in its history. At the five services there were 727 communicants. Holy communion was celebrated by the Rev. John Henry Hopkins at 7, 9, and 10:30 o'clock, and the edifice was crowded at each service. At 3:30 o'clock a special service was held for the baptism of adults, and an hour later twenty infants were baptized. At 7:30 o'clock in the evening there were special evening prayers and the annual Easter Sunday school festival, which was attended by nearly 1,000 children. A vested choir of sixty-five voices sang at the early morning service.

Because of the large number of people who desired to attend the morning services at Grace church, in Wabash avenue, admission was by ticket only. Long before the opening hour of the service the seats were filled and later arrivals were besieging the ushers for standing room. The service was conducted by the Rev. William O. Waters, pastor.

At Christ Reformed Episcopal church, Michigan boulevard and Twenty-fourth street, Easter lilies were reinforced by huge bouquets of roses and carnations in the windows and near the altar. Bishop Charles E. Cheney, who conducted the services, took for the theme of his sermon the words, "The God Not of the Dead, but of the Living."

Sermons on the Resurrection.

At St. James' Episcopal church Dr. James S. Stone preached the sermon. He said in part:

"No man can afford to close his eyes to the rapidly developing social and economic conflicts of the day. To suppose that even the noble precepts given in the sermon on the mount or the presentation of the pure and beautiful life of the prophet of Nazareth will to any appreciable extent lessen, or even hinder, those conflicts, is a dream that no wise man may venture to indulge in. The world is not to be saved by maxims, philosophies, or biographies. The only hope for the world is the living Christ."

Modern Disbelief Not Surprising.

Preaching in Studebaker theater, Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus said in the course of his sermon:

"Viewed from a worldly standpoint, there was never such a failure as Christ. His closest followers fled from him. Judas, his disciple, a suicide; John, his beloved, nowhere to be found; Peter, who had professed his ability and wish to die in his stead, openly denying him. If these found it hard to believe in his resurrection, why wonder at disbelief today.

"The Easter truth is that there is no grave so deep but that Christ holds the keys to its depths; no sepulcher of hope, no graveyard of noble effort, but that Christ holds the keys."

Truths of Gospel Real.

In Wesley Methodist Episcopal church, after announcing the raising of over $8,000, the pastor, Dr. Polemus H. Swift, preached on the theme, "A Morning with the Risen Savior."

"There is a better task before us," he said, "than that of traversing the path of proof. Let us try to grasp the living realities. We need to meet the risen Christ by the sea. Sometimes the great hopes of the gospel are to us as pleasant dreams. We need to awake and know the real. This glorious Easter morning will lead us into the holy of holies. The fragrance of the flowers, the triumphant bursts of song, the hour of sweet communion, the special effort to realize the truth will help us to meet and know the risen Lord. The risen Lord brings success into lives that have been full of failure before."

The church was profusely decorated with palms and flowers, among which the Easter lily held first place. The chorus of thirty voices sang Coombs' "At the Rising of the Sun" and Schillings' "Christ Our Passover." They were assisted by Miss Clarice Brodhead, soprano; Miss Marie Ludwig, harpist; and Charles Lindsay, violinist.

Devotion Due First to the Living.

In the First Congregational church the Rev. W. A. Bartlett preached.

"The angel of the tomb asks us all today, 'Why seek ye the living among the dead?'" he said. "The goal of the Christian is not the tomb, but immortality through that gateway. Why spend so much time and so many tears at the gateway? Today the mounds heaped above graves will be covered with flowers. Who is not touched by the devotion? But our friends are not there. Shall we seek the living among the dead? Those same flowers would bring joy to the little sufferers in hospitals and homes.

"The tears we shed for the dead may be transformed into tears of sympathy for the living who suffer, and the time and strength we spend for the tomb would make radiant many an unhappy home."

Death Beginning of Triumph.

Preaching in Pilgrim Congregational church, the Rev. Frederick E. Hopkins said:

"From the moment Jesus died his honor and triumph began. Before the Centurion left the cross he said: 'This was a righteous man.' From that day to this the grave of Jesus is a place before which the world uncovers in reverence, if not in worship."

Four Great Events in History.

At the Bush Temple of Music Dr. George F. Hall preached on "The Four Greatest Events in Human History." He said in part:

"In far reaching significance the four events of human history which are alone entitled to be called greatest are, in my opinion, the birth, death, resurrection, and ascension of the Nazarene.

"In the life and death of the Messiah the word 'sacrifice' was for the first time adequately defined. The Sermon on the Mount laid the foundation for all that is broad, and sweet, and good in religion today. The Master's life of self-denial, gentleness, and purity revolutionized the motives of the race, while his tragic death touched the secret recesses of the great world heart as never before."

Elijah a Foregleam of Easter.

"The Translation of Elijah a Foregleam of Easter Day" was the subject of Dr. C. M. Cobern's sermon in St. James' Methodist Episcopal church.

"The story of the translation of Elijah was a picture lesson helping the race to a better belief in another world," he said. "The ancient Jews had a dismal view of the future life. It was a cold and cheerless country. This account brought to their thought clearly that there was no need of amulets or charms to protect the soul on its long, hard journey from this world to the next, as all their neighbors believed."

Tells of an Inner Resurrection.

Preaching in the South Congregational church, the Rev. Willard Brown Thorp said:

"Paul began his Christian life with the discovery that Jesus had risen from the dead. But as he went on he discovered that something was rising from the dead within his own soul, a new and higher life. And he began to speak of this, too, as a rising of the Christ. It is this inner resurrection which must be the surest foundation for our faith this Easter morning."

Paul's Part Important.

M. M. Mangasarian delivered an Easter lecture yesterday at the Grand opera house before the Independent Religious society on "The Apostle Paul—the First Christian."

"Paul the tent maker, and not Jesus the carpenter's son, was the real founder of modern doctrinal Christianity," he said. "Jesus was a Jew and was attached to his race and country. Paul was universal in his sympathies. But for Paul the name of Jesus might never have been heard outside of Judea."

CALLS SIN "MORAL INSANITY."

Bruce Brown Preaches in North Side Christian Church on Reforming Criminals.

"Moral Insanity" was the subject of the Rev. Bruce Brown's sermon yesterday in the North Side Christian church. He said in part:

"It is as futile to command a criminal to reform as it is to command a beggar to be clothed and fed without providing the wherewithal. When we recognize that all evil and crime has a physical basis we will be in the way to help men to higher lives.

"As some men's minds are more easily deranged than others, some men's moral characters are more easily corrupted than others. Thus every rational warning against sin comes to have a scientific basis. We can toy with sin less safely than we can drink disease germs.

"Our city officials, who provide us with an officer whose duty it is to warn us to 'boil the water,' ought to set us an example by boiling the unlawful breeding places of iniquity. I trust that the mayor will not only clean the streets but, to the best of his ability, he will clean the inside of the city's plague spots."

TO THE HEALTH DEPARTMENT.

The Hull house typhoid fever report, published yesterday by the University of Chicago press, suggests an interesting constitutional question. Are the plumbing laws of Chicago valid in the Nineteenth ward?

Last year the Nineteenth ward, which has one-thirty-sixth of the population of the city, suffered so excessively from the typhoid fever epidemic of July, August, and September that it had one-sixth of the total number of deaths. Two of the residents of Hull house thereupon undertook an investigation of a large section of the ward. They visited 2,002 houses. They found that in 52 per cent of these houses the law was violated and the legal minimum of closet facilities fixed by the ordinance of 1896 was not maintained. Closets out of repair, closets flushed only with water from roof and sink, privies with sewer connections, but no water supply, vaults with neither sewer connection nor water supply and used by as many as sixteen families, low level lots, and dark basements flooded with slimy filth from sewer backups—these are the details of a report which reveals a general condition of insanitary lawlessness. The law calls for closets supplied with water and connected with a sewer. Nineteenth ward landlords in fifty-two cases out of 100 have failed to put such closets in. Is the Nineteenth ward autonomous? Is it exempt from municipal control? Or is the health department, which has full legal power to bring all plumbing up to the legal minimum, too facile a winker of the official other eye?

The Hull house report lends point to this last supposition. Even Americans, who are used to a disregard of law, even Chicagoans, who have in such matters a nonchalance which is more than American, will not be able to read the Hull house stories of official neglect and connivance without an outbreak of spontaneous, irrepressible indignation. A plumbing complaint sent into the health department runs the gantlet of four chances. First, it may be killed at the office and never even get on the complaint books. Second, the inspector may take a look at an overflowing vault—any closet vault is illegal, whether overflowing or not—and report "no cause for complaint." Third, the office may issue a perfunctory order to "improve conditions" and the incident is considered closed. Fourth, a suit may be begun against the landlord and then unostentatiously abandoned. If an exceptionally vigorous complaint survives these four chances it may perhaps some day somehow arrive somewhere.

Finally, the records kept in the health department seem to be similar to those which Mr. Kiolbassa made famous in the building department. They are not records. They are shreds and patches, jottings and tittlings, waifs and strays, leisure hour thoughts and incidental inspirations. No reflection is hereby intended on the men who are at present health department officials. They may be powerless against the system which they inherited. But the system must go. The building department felt the pressure of public indignation last year. The health department will have a similar experience.

INSURING AGAINST BAD DEBTS.

Several recent failures in the business world have again called attention to the possibility of minimizing the effect of such failures by means of credit insurance. Almost every kind of catastrophe is now shorn of its full powers of destruction by means of insurance of one kind or another. Why not deal with the catastrophe of insolvency in the same way?

When a firm fails, the firms to which it owes money are injured not only in their potential assets but in their commercial prestige. The firms to which they in turn owe money are alarmed. A owes B. B owes C. A fails. B loses the money which A would have paid him. C, therefore, begins to feel afraid that B may not be able to meet his obligations. He begins to press B for payment. B then gets after his own debtors who are still solvent and insists upon immediate attention. So everybody wants everybody else to settle and one large failure may bring on a considerable panic.

The object of credit insurance is to prevent a sequence of this kind. Suppose that a man is insured against losses from bad debts. Suppose that one of his debtors fails. Without insurance his credit might be badly shaken and his creditors, thinking that he was in a dangerous financial condition, might begin to demand a prompt satisfaction of their claims. Being insured, he is not exposed to any such embarrassing attack. He is able to show that he has been insured against loss from bad debts, and that the credit insurance company stands ready to reimburse him to the full extent of his loss. With full credit insurance, therefore, it would seem that the panic creating effect of a failure ought to be checked at the start.

The first attempt to use credit insurance in this way was made in England and in France about 200 years ago. Perhaps because they lacked the information which is now furnished by mercantile agencies, the credit insurance companies of century before last did not succeed. Of late years the credit insurance idea has been revived and has met with better luck. Its application to ordinary losses from ordinary insolvency and to the extraordinary conditions resulting from extraordinary failures cannot but be of interest both to the professor of political economy and to the practical business man.

KEEP OUT THE CRIPPLES.

A lawyer suggests to the finance committee of the county board that if the Cook county judges were to take shorter vacations it would not be necessary to call in outside judges to assist in hearing cases. The lawyer says the members of the Chicago bar object to the practice. It certainly has its drawbacks, although the country judges, as a rule, cannot be objected to on the ground of a lack of ability.

Appeals to the judges to shorten their customary vacations would be ineffectual if renewed. Therefore they should not be made. The judges say they are a hard worked body of men and need a long respite from toil during the summer months. They say also that the lawyers, a small percentage of whom may be overworked, wish to keep out of the courthouse for a month or two each year. Judicial vacations must be accepted as a part of the established order of things.

The people can do something to diminish the need for the employment of outside judges, who, the Supreme court has said, cannot legally be paid out of the county revenues for services rendered here. It is not impossible to elect month after next Circuit court judges who are able and willing to do the maximum amount of work. The working capacity of each of the men now on the bench, all of whom probably will ask to be renominated, is known, or can be ascertained. The capacity of some of them is almost nil. Such men ought to be dropped not merely because Cook county should not pay $10,000 a year to judges who do not do a thousand dollars' worth of work, but because their election will be tantamount to a denial of justice to litigants.

When a recruiting officer is enlisting soldiers or when policemen are being appointed the cripples are given the go by. None but able bodied men are taken. The judicial conventions should bar out all candidates who have feeble brains or feeble bodies and select men who are not only learned in the law and have judicial and unbiased minds, but who are gluttons for work and will keep their dockets clean. If either convention shall put in the field a worn out, broken down nominee the voters should shut the door to office in his face. If all the men on the bench were workers there would be no need of outside judges.

STOPPING A BOYCOTT.

The association of master plumbers of St. Louis, whose members sell plumbing supplies, has been declared an illegal association and its dissolution has been ordered. This is the outcome of a suit brought by a plumber. No member of the association would sell him supplies and he had to go elsewhere for them. That involved increased expense and the loss of several profitable contracts.

The justice of the decision cannot be questioned. It is clearly illegal for a combination of dealers to boycott a man who wishes to buy the goods they trade in because he will not join their association or conform to arbitrary and unfair regulations they may wish to impose. The question is how far an order of court directed against such a boycott can be made effective. It is the right of an individual dealer to refuse to sell goods to a would-be customer. He is not obliged to give a reason for his refusal. If he says: "I do not want your trade" that ends the matter. Suppose an association like that of the dealers in plumbers' supplies at St. Louis is dissolved, and yet each dealer who was a member of it continues to refuse to sell goods to the man who was boycotted and says he does so simply because that is his right as an individual. Nominally concert of action among the dealers is at an end, but practically it is not.

Apparently it would be the duty of the court, when it was notified of that suspicious unanimity of action, to summon the dealers before it, require each of them to give a reason for his refusal, and then consider the validity of the reason. If a dealer had the supplies which the customer wanted and that individual is good pay, a judge may consider it lawful under the circumstances to order the dealer to deliver the goods. Otherwise the boycott will remain in force.

"THE TYRANNY OF HUMOR."

The New York Evening Post uses the case of the late Charles Godfrey Leland, who is almost universally known by his "Hans Breitmann's Barty," and but little known by his charming works in folk and gypsy lore, as the text for an article on "The Tyranny of Humor," in which it sets forth that as a people we have pushed humor to the extreme and that "a nation ridden by humor may be as pitiable as one dominated by priestcraft or panic."

As regards authors who have made a reputation as humorists, it is undoubtedly true that they are better known and longer remembered by their humorous than by their serious work, but that condition of things is not confined to this country. While Mark Twain and Bret Harte, and even James Russell Lowell, are better known by their "Innocents Abroad," "The Luck of Roaring Camp," and the "Biglow Papers" than by their serious work, the same discrimination has been made against authors abroad. Who knows "Lewis Carroll" as a professor of mathematics? Who does not know him as the creator of Alice and the hunter of the snark? Who knows anything of the serious work of Tom Hood (with the exception of two poems), of Sydney Smith, of Dean Swift, of Douglas Jerrold, of Charles Lamb, even of Addison, as compared with Hood's puns, Smith's keen wit, Swift's satire, Jerrold's "Mrs. Caudle," Lamb's "roast pig," and Addison's "Sir Roger de Coverley"? Alphonse Daudet wrote a long list of serious novels, with which some are familiar, but who does not know the "prodigious adventures" of "Tantarin of Tarascon"? Cervantes wrote eclogues, moral tales, poems, and plays, but who can give the name of one of them? Who is aware that he wrote anything but "Don Quixote"? Aristophanes wrote of religion and philosophy and rhetoric, but the world knows him only by the wild wit of his comedies. The list of illustrations of the general principle that humor survives longest might be extended almost indefinitely.

It is fortunate, perhaps, that this is so, for while the extreme of humor may be tiresome, in reasonable degree it is a blessing. It has saving grace. The Post says "we cannot always be grinning through a horse collar." That is not necessary, for grinning through a horse collar is not necessarily an expression of humor. Rather it is that low order of buffoonery which is not humor at all. The intense forms of effort, even of enthusiasm, may not be in consonance with humor, but humor is an excellent preparation for these forms, and it is a pity that wild eyed reformers and hysterical apostles of progress do not have a higher appreciation of it, for it makes the monotony of life more endurable. It is a physical rest. It stimulates activity when the humor is genuine. It clears away the cobwebs, purges the mind of prejudices, and establishes the proper human perspective. It is a relief from painful tensions and, as George Meredith insists, implies "a sane and true criticism of life." If the "sublimated body" of "Lewis Carroll" could communicate with us he would undoubtedly express his lively satisfaction that he is remembered by the "Jabberwock" and the "Walrus and the Carpenter" rather than by any of his mathematical propositions.

THE GOVERNOR AND THE JUSTICES.

Of the men recommended by the county judges to the governor for appointment as justices of the peace, a majority are acceptable, but among the men recommended are some who may be classified as poor or bad. The governor should exercise his prerogative and refuse to appoint such men. The judges will then have to make further recommendations, and by continuing the policy of rejecting the unfit nominees the governor can secure for the citizens of Chicago fifty decent justices of the peace.

Even if the charter amendment is submitted and is ratified, the justices now to be appointed will hold office for about three years at least. The governor, if he will, can mitigate the justice shop evil. The framers of the constitution assumed that the judges would make excellent recommendations, but deemed it advisable to let the governor revise their work. It was a sensible precaution. The judges have too often been influenced by personal and political considerations in selecting nominees. They were thus influenced last week. It is to be hoped the governor will be bold enough to reject the unfit men, whether republicans or democrats, who have been recommended, and thereby do his duty to his Chicago constituents.

President Lincoln and Mr. Parkhurst.

[Communication to the New York Mail and Express.]

Sir: Assuming that the Rev. Dr. Parkhurst's sermon yesterday has been correctly reported, it may be of interest to contrast his views with those of Abraham Lincoln in his second inaugural, March 4, 1865:

PARKHURST.	LINCOLN.
It was well for the negroes in the south that, not being competent to be a law for themselves, they had masters that were a law to them. They ought to be thankful, on the whole, that the institution existed, and such of them as are not yet drawn under any other system of governance would be better off if the institution existed still.	It may seem strange that any men should dare to ask God's assistance in wringing their bread from the sweat of other men's faces, but let us judge not, that we be not judged. Yet if God wills that it (the war) continue until all the wealth piled by the bondsmen's 250 years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn with the lash shall be paid by another drawn with the sword; as was said 3,000 years ago, so still must it be said, "the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether."

Which is the true Christian doctrine, that of Lincoln in 1865 or that of Parkhurst in 1903?

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

Copyright: 1903: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

KING ALFONSO, the 16 year old monarch of Spain, is confronted by a political crisis which demands solution by a stronger hand and by more experienced statesmanship than that to which the royal lad can lay claim.

To put the matter in a nutshell, Spain must retrench her military, and in particular her naval, outlay if she wishes to secure any balance between revenue and expenditure, and to bring about the settlement of the budget, which is so indispensable to the commercial prosperity, to the industrial development, and to the economic welfare of the nation.

Señor Villaverde, the most eminent of financial authorities in Spain, as minister of the treasury in the new conservative Silvela cabinet, had drawn up an admirable program in the sense which would have re-established Spanish credit both at home and abroad. He took the sensible ground that Spain, having no longer any colonies, did not require a large and costly fleet, and that enjoying the happiest relations with foreign powers, there was no need of excessive military expenditure.

His scheme, however, evoked so much hostility and opposition in naval and military circles—that is, among the classes that have always until now been the authors of pronunciamentos and of coups d'états of an administrative, and even of an anti-dynastic character, that Premier Silvela became afraid of the consequences and withdrew the cabinet's indorsement of the scheme of Señor Villaverde. Of course, the latter resigned, and the appointment of his successor, Don Rodriguez San Pedro, coupled with the announcement that the cabinet, far from retrenching, has agreed to increase the naval and military estimates by some $15,000,000, has naturally given rise to consternation among those who have at heart the welfare of Spain, and has caused a feeling akin to despair among the business communities of the kingdom.

It, too, has sent down Spanish funds with a rush, both at home and abroad, and rendered almost inevitable another change of cabinet if the dynasty is to be saved.

It is a pity that the king is not older, so that he may be able to appreciate the true needs and wishes of his people and force Villaverde's program upon the administration, even if he had to exceed his constitutional prerogatives to accomplish this end.

King Edward continues to show his predilection for those of the members of his diplomatic service who have American wives. I see that he has just appointed as his representative at the court of Darmstadt, Arthur Herbert, who married Miss Gammell of Newport, R. I., and New York. Arthur Herbert, who belongs to an entirely different family from that of the British ambassador at Washington, has recently been acting as consul general at Buda-Pesth, and won the good will of the English royal family both for himself and for his American wife while stationed at Copenhagen as secretary of legation.

Owing to the close relationship of the reigning house of Hesse with that of Great Britain, the mission at Darmstadt has, ever since the marriage of Princess Alice of England to the late Grand Duke Louis, always been regarded as a sort of family affair, to be intrusted only to those members of the diplomatic service enjoying the complete confidence and favor of the British sovereign and his court, and that is why Arthur Herbert's promotion to Darmstadt must be considered as a subject of congratulation to his friends.

Roumania's pretty crown princess, who has struck up a great friendship with Pauline Astor, is, according to official announcement, about to become once more a mother in June. She already has three children, a little boy of 10 and two girls, who, although she herself is a member of the church of England and her husband is a Roman Catholic, are being brought up as members of the Greek orthodox rite, the national church of Roumania, in accordance with the provisions of the Roumanian constitution.

The crown princess of Roumania, by the bye, is the only one of the late Queen Victoria's grandchildren who has no place in the line of succession to the throne in Great Britain. She forfeited all her rights in connection therewith when she married a Roman Catholic, the act of settlement, by virtue of which the present house of Hanover Coburg holds the English throne, expressly barring from all claims of succession thereto any prince or princess who weds a Catholic. They may marry a member of the Greek faith, of the Jewish creed, a Mahommedan, or a Buddhist, without losing their rights to England's throne. It is only unions with Roman Catholics that disqualify them.

The ex-French minister of war, Cavaignac, who was the object of such vigorous denunciation in the chamber of deputies at Paris by his former chief, ex-Premier Busson, first came to the fore, as a schoolboy, by refusing to receive, at the hands of the late prince imperial of France, the prize which had been awarded to him for excellence in his studies.

The prince was a small child at the time. It was the first occasion that he had taken part in any public function, when young Cavaignac, well on in his teens, was leaving the Lycee on graduation. He walked up to the dais like the others to receive his award, but when in front of the little prince refused to take the prize from him.

The public affront placed upon the imperial child created a widespread sensation, and recalled the bitter political antagonism of Emperor Napoleon III. and old Gen. Cavaignac, the former rival for the presidency of the second republic.

Generous Sir Evelyn Wood, who has just been promoted to the rank of field marshal, is, like Sir George White, advanced a few days ago to a similar rank, a holder of a Victoria cross, and began his career in the navy. It was only after serving as a midshipman and sublieutenant in the naval brigade throughout the Crimean war that he transferred his services to the army, receiving a cavalry commission.

Besides this he is a full fledged member of the bar. He is stone deaf, an affliction which prevented him from receiving any command in the south African war, and is a brother of that Mrs. O'Shea who afterward married Charles Stewart Parnell, the famous Irish leader.

Both Mrs. Parnell and Field Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood are descended from that Sir Benjamin Wood, the London alderman who befriended Queen Caroline, the consort of King George IV., acting as the champion of her rights and as her counselor and friend. He was with her when she was barred from admittance at the doors of Westminster abbey on the day of the coronation of her husband, the king.

Queen Elizabeth's tercentenary, which has just been celebrated, serves to recall that there are in the British statute book some forty laws enacted during her reign, 300 years ago, and still in force.

Algernon Swinburne, the poet, enjoys the profound and publicly expressed admiration on the Italian government, which has eulogized his poems glorifying the Italian revolution. It was resentment of the court of St. Petersburg against Swinburne that prevented his appointment to the post of poet laureate of England.

Perhaps his commendation by the government of Italy, which is now about to be visited in state by King Edward, may induce the latter to consider the policy of appointing him to this post in the place of its present most inefficient and mediocre occupant, Alfred Austin.

What Do You Build?

"Here, if any man build upon this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble; Every man's work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is."—First Corinthians: III., 12-13.

You build them well, and you build them high—
These marble and granite piles;
Your pointed towers salute the sky
With turrets and gleaming tiles.
Your arches leap till they meet in space,
And leap till they meet again,
You build with power and build with grace—
But where are you building men?

Your halls and temples are proudly raised,
And firmly and nobly planned;
What wonder, then, that we stand amazed?
You build with a lavish hand.
You build completely, with art sublime—
A theme for a subtler pen
To bound and balance in coming time—
But where are you building men?

You dig your trenches and build your walls
And rear to your lasting fame
The massive pillars and stately halls,
And carve on the gates your name.
All groined and windowed and roofed and caved
With all in the builder's ken,
A splendid thing you have thus achieved—
But where are you building men?

You build the structures to house your pride,
The girder and post you raise,
You make them high and you make them wide—
But what of the coming days?
Who builds the courage of mind and heart
And soul, that will help us then?
You build with cunning in every part—
But where are you building men?

Materialistic people claim that it is just as easy for a poor man to love a wealthy girl—but they neglect to tell him how to make her love him.

UP A TREE.

It is the witching hour of dreamy midnight in a southern city.

The faint whisperings of the breeze sweep across the languorous branches of the magnolia and float on, heavy laden with the charm of the night.

From the bayou comes the echo of a serenade, and somewhere a nightingale is pouring forth his soul in melody. All is sublime.

Suddenly, adown the main street of the city, rushes a crowd of angry men.

Again silence reigns. The serenade resumes echoing; the nightingale begins singing once more; the little stars in the dreaming sky peer sleepily through the endless leagues below them.

The men return. They make their way to the postoffice.

They tack up a placard reading:

NOTICE: THE POSTMASTER, JEB JOHNSING, HAS BEEN SUSPENDED.

And another phase of racial suicide is brought to the attention of the government.

THE ARISTOCRACY OF GERMS.

"And so the physicians have made a culture from the food which is supposed to have caused your illness?" we say to Mrs. Spredditon.

"Just fahncy!" we exclaim, throwing as much haut ton into our language as possible.

"And," she goes on, with a rarely proud smile, "not a single bacillus was found in the whole lot that did not spell its name in ten syllables or more."

A BENEFICIAL FAD.

She bought some "Don't Flirt" buttons,
And said that she was glad
To see at last some wisdom
In any little fad.
She took them to her husband;
She got a spool of thread,
And sewed them on his garments
From shoe tops to his head.

And then he quickly gathered
The safety pins and wire,
The shingle nails and matches
Which had held his attire,
And threw them out the window,
While from his vest and shirt,
His coat and gallus-clutches,
Blazed proudly: "I Don't Flirt."

"I thank you, O, I thank you!"
The happy husband cried.
"I'm glad that I have pleased you,"
The thoughtful wife replied.
"I surely am ecstatic,"
In joyful tones said he,
"'Tis the first time you ever
Sewed buttons on for me."

Old Man Hogan on Picking a President

"WHO do you think we dimmycrats had besther nominate for president?" asked Old Man Hogan.

"I heard th' subjict argied jest now be two ly the firemin down in th' en-jine room. Wan iv thim was for Cleveland, th' other for Bryan. The dee-bate was close an' excitin'.

"Bryan was leadin' be two black eyes an' a punch in th' jaw, whin th' en-jineer come runnin' up with a coal scoop.

"'Break away,' yells th' en-jineer, 'I'll have no fightin' over politics. 'Tis disgraceful. An' besides,' he says, 'I'm a dimmycrat myself an' you're both wrong. Dave Hill is th' bye for me.'

"With that th' dee-bate was raysumed—bein' now three handed. I have me own views on th' subjict, an' I'm thinkin' none iv those lads has th' right iv it. But th' coal scoop is an argimint I'm not prepared to meet—at least not eighteen months before election. So I come up here—out iv th' storm an' sthress iv th' political arena, as th' alderman says—to smoke th' corncob pipe iv peace.

"'Tis always th' way with us dimmycrats. We begin th' active work iv th' campaign too early an' be th' time we've selicted our candydate half iv us is in th' hospittle an' can't get out to vote for him. We pick out a man an' thin th' police are called to pick up th' pieces. We're good fighters—we're too good. We train so hard bechune elections that whin it comes time for our lad to run th' rist iv us can't walk. If we'd only put up half th' fight against th' common inimy that we do amongst oursilves we'd have Uncle Mark Hanna runnin' for alderman inside iv a year.

"I've been hopin' that bechune that Buffalo scandal an' Dewey's sassin' the kaiser we'd have our minds kept off iv politics till th' potatles were in an' th' housecleanin' over. A dimmycrat that's been busy all day batein' carpets an' takin' down stovepipes is in no frame iv mind to do justice to th' great work iv pickin' out a presidint afther supper. He's likely to be too irritable to give due consideration to any argimint less weighty than a brick.

"But 'tis no use hopein'. Th' campaign is begun an' 'twill grow worse from now till a year from nixt Novimber.

"Already th' prisidential lightning rod agints are out in th' rural districts, breakin' up happy homes an' startin' hundrids iv respectable old gentlemin on th' downward path iv runnin' for office. Th' lad that ain't mentioned for presidint within th' nixt six months may as well make up his mind to spind th' rist iv his life in happiness an' obscurity.

"'Are ye sound on th' tariff question?' asks the lightnin' rod agint.

"'I ash,' says th' old lad, 'barrin' half a dozen pairs iv kid gloves I slipped into th' bottom iv me trunk th' last time I came home from Europe.'

"TH' DEBATE WAS EXCITIN'."

"'How do ye stand on th' thrusts?'

"'With me hob-nail shoes. I not only stand—I stomp on th' thrusts.'

"'What are your views on th' financial problim?'

"'Wan good turn deserves another,' says th' old bye, handin' th' agint a twinty dollar bill.

"An' so he gits mentioned for presidint, with his face in th' paper bechune the spring medicine add an' th' picture iv Terry McGovern, an' he nivir knows a happy day afterwards.

"Th' worst iv it all is that 'tis all worr wasted. They're missin' th' real an' vital issues iv th' comin' campaign. An' 'tis plain already what those issues will be.

"Th' wan great an' vital issue will be large families.

"'Tis no good mentionin' anywan for th' dimmycrat nomination that has less than six childer—an' th' more th' betther. Bachelors'll be barred out altogether.

"Next comes th' writin' iv books. Injiana, th' home iv th' hysterical novel, is wan iv th' doubtful states. We must carry it to win an' th' balance iv power is held be th' Injianna State Authors' association. So our lad must be a book writher to carry th' state against Teddy.

"He must be a good heavyweight wrastler an' boxer to catch th' pugilist vote; a first class historian to catch th' historical vote; a member iv two or three unions to catch th' union vote; an Irishman iv German descent to catch th' foreign vote; an' eight or tin other little things. Th' rist iv it'll take care iv itself.

"An' here's th' platform: Th' free an' unlimted coinage iv childher at th' ratio iv sixteen to two.

"Lave all th' rist go. On that all iv us can stand together from Maine to California. An' before th' campaign was half over most iv th' raypublicans 'd be climbin' into th' baby carriage.

"'Tis th' bist chance since th' war for unitin' th' whole parthy. Down in my ward th' vote'd be unanimous.

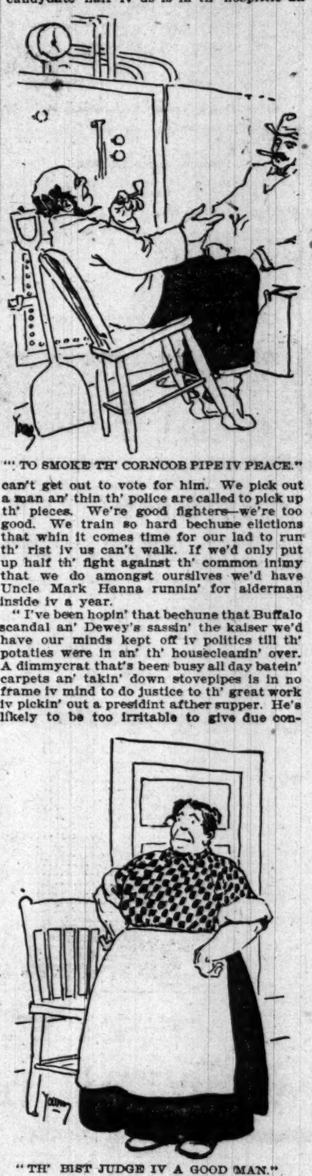

"Whin it come to pickin' out th' candydate to run on that platform I'd ask him but two questions:

"'Are ye agin th' government an' how many childher have ye—nothin' less than six considered?'

Professor looked ashamed.

For learning justly famed.)

He could have classed and named—
At scientific target he Had never vainly aimed.

But when the baby asked him for
A fairy tale, he lamed!

R. W. Emerson's Lecture Fee.

[From the New York Mail and Express.]

George Francis Train tells this story of Mr. Emerson's lecturing. It shows, by comparing "five dollars and four quarts of oats" with five hundred dollars, how much the public was willing to pay for the lecturer's fame:

The lecture night was always a great event in Waltham. One day a man came to me and said, "Here is a remarkable letter." He read it to me, and it was as follows:

"To the Library Committee, Waltham: I will come to lecture for $5 for myself, but ask you for four quarts of oats for my horse.

"RALPH WALDO EMERSON."

The lecture that Mr. Emerson delivered for us boys of the library committee in Waltham was entitled "Nature." We paid him $5 and four quarts of oats for it. He delivered it many times afterward, when his name was on every lip in the civilized world, and he received from $150 to $500 for each delivery.

A $40,000 purchase of fine lace curtains.

THE entire stock on hand of Bejaud, the great French lace curtain manufacturer—$80,000 worth at regular trade quotations—was purchased by our Paris house a few weeks ago at half price. Today the great Bejaud stock goes on sale, and the bargains which it reveals in the highest grade lace curtains will prove a surprise, even to those who come expecting a wonderful feast of values.

RECORD OF LOW RESERVES

MINIMUM OF NEW YORK BANKS DURING TWENTY YEARS.

Precedent Indicates There Should Be a Gain After March—Week's Trade in Wholesale Lines—Armour in the Wheat Trade Again on Large Scale, Piling Up Big Holdings of May and July—Sharp Turns in Prices—Other Grains.

According to precedent the surplus reserve of the New York banks should improve from this time on. In a record of twenty years it is shown that the low point in each year has, with four exceptions, been in March or the months following August. Thus far, in 1903, the low point of reserve was March 7. In three other years the low record was reached in the same month. In September, October, and December the low point was reached in thirteen years. Once in May, June, July, and August the low was reached in four of the years in which the record is presented.

While, therefore, the surplus has touched the low point in May, June, July, and August, the average has been for March or September, October and December. The figures may be shown as follows:

1903	March 7	$	666,975
1902	Sept. 20	Def.	1,642,050

Bank Statement.

Saturday's bank statement made an indifferent showing, though all items considered it might be characterized as good, instead of poor. There was an increase of $620,000 in cash and a decrease of nearly $4,000,000 in deposits. This brought about an increase in the surplus reserve of $1,610,475. The total surplus is now $3,741,300. It is lower than for the corresponding period in 1902 and 1901. Owing to lack of wire communication between New York and Chicago commission houses it was not learned here what view Wall street took of the figures. The statement follows:

Test Will Come Today.

Today's stock market will be one of unusual interest, since it will give Wall street's actual interpretation of the merger decision. There has been much comment pro and con, but the real test will be afforded in the movement of stocks. There is nothing in the decision to arouse bull sentiment at this time, though fears may be calmed in the two days.

Bank Stock Book Values.

The market for Chicago bank stocks continues unsatisfactory. There is an absence of demand, though there is no special pressure to sell. The high priced stocks are the ones showing the most important declines due to high interest rates.

Wholesale Outlook Gratifying.

With the single exception of the cloud cast on the business sky by the labor difficulties the outlook in wholesale lines during the last week was most gratifying. The prevalence of strikes and the possibility of interruption to industrial activity during next month had a somewhat discouraging effect, but the actual volume of business was much in excess of the corresponding period of last year.

The annual rush of retail buying for Easter had its stimulating effect on wholesale and jobbing business, and, extending generally throughout the country, caused a large augmentation of trade above the normal. Prices as a rule held firm with few exceptions, and in some lines an inclination towards advance was maintained.

From all sections came rush orders for dry goods, mainly for the Easter week demand. Kid gloves, novelty and jewelry lines were so far above normal as to keep the local houses busy in filling the requests arriving by every mail. Silk and white goods were also largely called for, the latter showing an unprecedented sale. Prices were but little changed, with the exception of a slight stiffening of several cotton lines.

The position of manufacturers was strengthened by the strikes prevailing in several of the large cotton mills, the immediate effect being realized by an advance in dress linings, union crashes, and other of the heavier products of cotton. Fall orders continue to come in increased volume over other years, and many of the staple lines are having a heavier advance sale than ever before.

Lumber Trade Is Improved.

The lumber trade of the last week was in an extremely healthy condition. Throughout the south the weather improved to an extent that caused an increase in output far above expectations, and business long delayed moved with surprising alacrity. Some indications point to a possibility of an improvement in the hardwood situation during the coming summer, but prices, demand, and stock retain their accustomed relations and there is small hope that the production will at all equal the calls that come from all sections with unabated regularity.

There was a tightening in the hemlock situation, Michigan manufacturers asking higher prices, and an excellent demand continues regardless of the advance. The call for poplar in this market is unprecedentedly large and values range abnormally high. The trade in cypress was heavy, this article being largely used to replace the higher grades of white pine. The local wholesale yards are having a trade fully as heavy as they can conveniently take care of, with no weak items on the list and no indications of breaks in present values. On the contrary all tendencies are for higher prices.

Difficulties in Coal Trade.

Regarding the situation in the coal market during the week the Black Diamond says:

"In the anthracite branch of the coal industry trouble seems to occur with alarming frequency. No sooner was the strike difficulty in the anthracite region arbitrated than there were other sources of annoyance. In the western trade business is almost at a standstill this week, owing to the strike of the firemen and oilers employed by the vessels in the great lakes trade. Every preparation had been made for an early start in the movement of coal westward by water, and it was predicted two weeks ago that the tonnage moving by this time would assume considerable importance. On the first of the month the oilers and firemen went on strike and the situation has been deadlocked ever since. There are constant rumors at the lake ports that the strike will soon be settled and that movement for the year will commence in earnest, but these apparently have no foundation, and until the vessel owners' association and the unions can get closer together than they are at present, it is probable that no tonnage of any consequence will be moved.

"Coal operators are not involved in this struggle except that they suffer by reason of it. Coal is carried by vessel owners independent of the railroad companies in most instances, and the owners of these vessels are united in an association which has decided to fight the matter to the end. This being the case, the coal road companies and the anthracite coal operators cannot bring about a settlement even though they are disposed to do so.

Anthracite Prices Steady.

"Prices on anthracite hold steady without change from the circular basis announced last week. The principal selling agents at important points, however, are chafing at their continued helplessness and feel that they are losing precious time, which could be used to advantage. Retailers are also more or less disappointed as a result of this unexpected delay. In many instances they had taken orders much earlier than usual and had planned to fill them during the spring months, when business was slack and prices were the lowest.

"In the bituminous trade, the most important feature of the trade has been the announcement of new Hocking coal prices in the all rail trade. With the April discount deducted, which amounts to 90 cents a ton for the payment of bills on or before the 15th of the following month, the circular basis is as follows:

Lump, f. o. b. at the mine	$2.10
Steam lump, at the mine	2.00
Mine run, at the mine	1.85
Domestic nut, at the mine	1.85
Steam nut, at the mine	1.85
Pea, at the mine	1.85
Nut, pea, and slack, at the mine	1.60
Coarse slack, at the mine	1.35
Fine slack, at the mine	.90
Washed stove, at the mine	2.10
Washed chestnut, at the mine	2.10

"This is an advance over the opening prices a year ago. Freight rates have also advanced from the mines to the distributing points. For instance, the rate a year ago from the Hocking field to Chicago was $1.50 a ton, and this year it will be $1.65 a ton. Rates to other points have advanced in proportion."

Vigor in Iron and Steel Trade.

The spring opening of the iron and steel business in the west was marked by rush and vigor, and reports show a uniformity in the excellence of the trade. In some instances prices were advanced during the last week, and in all cases steadily maintained, not a break being recorded. Steady specification on old contracts by buyers in the larger scopes of the market was a feature.

The stability of prices is considered problematical, owing to the weakness in the price of southern pig iron, and the buying ardor of consumers was checked by this condition, which was the only lapse from previous levels. The market, however, presents an unrelenting front, no really important influence being exerted by the status of southern pig iron quotations.

Uncertainty as to labor matters is an element of disquietude in many directions, and the coming of May 1 is looked forward to with the hope that understandings will be reached by that time. The transportation problem is in rapid process of solution, indeed, in many important centers the situation is almost normal.

Manufacturers, wholesalers, and jobbers of paints and colors unite in declaring the outlook for spring activity never better than it is at present. The business of March exceeded that of the same month last year, and current sales are largely in excess of those of a year ago. As in other lines of business, there is apprehension of trouble on account of the labor situation. If this element does not prove a drawback to trade and favorable weather prevails all records for volume of business transacted will no doubt be broken.

The drug market was in excellent condition during the week and sales ran much ahead of expectations of dealers, based on the corresponding period of other years. Prices held firm, in some cases showing a shade of advance. The fears relative to a shortage in codliver oil are disappearing and new oil is reported sold for future delivery at $90.00.

Armour in Wheat Again.

There was a great wheat market last week, the result of the appearance of the Armour house in the pit again as a large buyer of both the May and July futures after a few feints on the selling side at the close of the previous week. The activity of this interest was more than enough to make up for the loss of two business days. On the first of the three days that remained there was Armour buying of possibly 4,000,000 bu to 5,000,000 bu of May wheat and 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 bu July wheat.

The buying began on a day when unexpectedly heavy world's shipments of nearly 12,000,000 bu and an increase in the amounts on passage of nearly 4,000,000 bu made nearly every local and outside holder feel bearish and precipitated a break of 1c. The buying continued steadily, permitting no reaction until at the opening Saturday alarm on the part of scattered shorts forced the May price up to 77⅝c, an advance of 3⅝c for the week and of 5⅛c from the low point of a fortnight ago, and put July to 72⅝c, a gain of 2½c for the week and of 3⅝c from the low point.

But on this excited bulge there was an effort to market some of the July holdings and a sharp break in prices of 2½c in that delivery and 3c in May. There was a recovery of about 1c from the bottom, closing prices 2c under the top, but 1⅛c higher for the week for May, ½c higher for July, and unchanged for September.

If it was the intention to sell most of the July holdings for a quick scalp the market broke too quickly for the plan to be carried out and the big holding is still nearly intact.

Big Yield Promised.

The Armour bullishness might have been tempered by the government crop report showing a condition of 97.3 April 1 on an area of 34,000,000 acres, indicating a yield of 577,000,000 bu, taking 17.5 bu as par, a figure none too high, as shown by the experience of the last few years. The present prospect is for an early harvest, in which event great quantities of wheat might be attracted to this market if a bull campaign in July should be in progress. The high condition is not likely to be maintained till harvest, however, and any accidents would favor the bull. This market has been largely oversold, and it is more than likely the intention was for a quick campaign in July to drive in the shorts. The way the market broke yesterday showed it would not take Armour selling well. More bull effort will be necessary, and it will doubtless be made. With the general sentiment bearish it would be easy to accumulate a line much larger than any amount of contract wheat which would be likely to be delivered here from the new crop. How profitable the deal would be would depend on many things which the future will have to disclose.

The May deal rests on a different basis. Contract stocks will be under 3,000,000 bu this week, and there is no certainty that much more contract grade can be brought here or made here. The Armour holding of May is probably larger than the contract stock, but could not be greatly increased without making a sharp advance in prices. If a July deal is contemplated it would be a help to secure control of all the contract stocks in May.

Foreign supplies are light and there are complaints of unpromising crop conditions in Russia, Roumania, and France. French markets are strong and there has been French buying of futures and of cash wheat in this country on a good scale. The export demand has been surprisingly good lately in the face of big Russian and Argentine shipments. If it continues it will make the bull position a strong one.

Coarse Grains and Provisions.

The May corn price at the close on Saturday stood exactly where it did the previous week—42¾c. The July was ¼c lower, at 43¼c. To a large extent speculative interest has gone out of this market since the recent liquidation of the big holdings in the May, and, while there are still some large July holdings, at least one of the leading July longs has been getting out of the market. The export and cash demand has been poor, but receipts have been small enough to be a steadying factor.

Oats prices are substantially 1c lower than a week ago, the tendency downward, as the result of the improved weather for seeding, larger receipts, and a falling off in the cash demand. The small contract stocks still make manipulation in the May possible, but for a week it has seemed in a friendless condition.

The provision list, in a speculative way, did fairly well during the week, July pork making an advance of 7½c, lard an upturn of 20c, and ribs a gain of 20@22½c. All products closed on Saturday at the best points of the week.

PRICES LIKELY TO RISE.

TONE OF LONDON MARKETS MUCH MORE HOPEFUL.

All Departments Show Promise Except American—Balkan Situation Does Not Have Much Effect and Capel Court Believes Trouble Will Be Localized—Holland Strike and Riots in Spain Have Depressing Influence—Transvaal Loan Held Back.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1903: By the New York Herald.]

LONDON, April 12.—Despite the fact that the stock exchange was open for business only four days last week, it is possible to write of the financial situation in much more hopeful terms than for some time past. The holidays, of course, restricted business, but the tone in all departments but the American was good.

Prices were firm, with a rising tendency. Consols made a good recovery, which toned up the market to a marked degree. Easier money conditions and the success of the London county council loan helped to stiffen the investment market.

The Balkan situation did not affect prices to any extent. Capel court believes that the trouble will be localized and the peace of Europe preserved. The strikes in Holland and the riots in Spain weighed upon the market but slightly. Had the holidays not come it is the opinion of many that the week would have witnessed a substantial increase in prices and business. It is now generally understood that the coming Transvaal loan will not be brought out until May. At that time money ought to be moderately easy. No doubt the loan will be marked with a success that will give encouragement to investors just as the success of the county council loan this week has made a favorable impression on the city. If the government exercises judgment the Transvaal loan will likewise be a success, which will improve the markets.

One other favorable influence that acted on the market last week was Lord Milner's speech in laying the foundation stone of the new stock exchange at Johannesburg, in which he said that he believed that the people would settle their labor question on sensible lines and that if they were unable to get labor from one country they would obtain it from another. This was taken to mean that the government will be guided by public feeling in the matter, and that so far as the authorities are concerned if it is found that there is not enough native labor in south Africa then there will be no objection to drawing from Asiatic labor. The opinion is gaining ground that it will eventually become necessary to import Chinese.

The market for Kaffirs is quiet, although there is a noticeable increase of buying orders from the continent. Johannesburg and London appear to have run riot over the new reef discoveries west, north, east, and south of the Rand, with which is associated the name of Coronation reef. During the recent months several companies, syndicates, and subsidiaries have been formed at Johannesburg, and one or two also in London, to take up options or to acquire properties, with respect to which the assertion is made that they all of them have more or less chance of containing the so-called Coronation reef.

The decision in the Northern Securities case was read with great interest here. In financial circles one hears the opinion expressed that these trust litigations will tend still further to keep English investors and speculators from dealing in American rails. The Pall Mall Gazette, in discussing the decision, says: "The law has erected a barrier between the great capitalists and the goal of monopoly to which, under Morgan's leadership, they have strenuously been forcing their way. The gage of battle has been thrown down, and the issue will decide what real limits there are to the power of money in a country where few measures can be taken except for its enhancement and with its support."

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Receipts Light and Trade Too Small to Bring Any Fluctuations of Importance.

Saturday's trade in live stock was not of sufficient consequence to warrant any fluctuation in prices from the standards of Friday. Receipts included only 200 cattle, 7,000 hogs, and 500 sheep, both sheep and hogs being in much lighter supply than usual on a closing day of the week.

Stockyard talent is looking for around 27,000 cattle, 28,000 hogs, and 18,000 sheep for Monday.

Compared with a week ago closing prices on fat cattle show an advance of 15c to 25c, hogs are about the same, and sheep 25c to 35c lower.

The following is a statement of the movement of live stock at the Chicago stockyards for the period indicated with comparative figures:

Cattle.

A little run of only 200 cattle did not afford sufficient attraction to entice buyers from their offices. Business was of a peddling, clean up character, without change from Friday prices, when fat steers closed strong at the midweek advances of 15@25c. Stock cattle are slow and a trifle easier and butcher cattle steady to 10c lower.

Hogs.

Packers are evidently restricting their operations to supplying their immediate fresh meat trade and avoiding any attempt to put stocks of products into store on current prices of live hogs. On this theory alone can dragging and indifferent markets on less than normal receipts of hogs be accounted for, and a return to anything like liberal receipts will, from present appearances, be followed by a raid to force prices down. Small Saturday receipts were met by an utterly indifferent demand at around Friday's prices, 10c lower than high point of the week, and about the same as closing market of the previous week.

STOCKS ARE AT A LOW POINT.

Nearly All Shares Show Drop in Quotations During Last Week, Partly Due to Merger Decision.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, April 12.—The stock exchange resumes business tomorrow under the influence of last week's chief event—the Northern Securities decision. Upon last week's business fifty-three stocks and thirty-three bonds fell a full point or more, and only twenty stocks and six bonds made a similar advance.

If this showing leaves something to be desired in the way of encouragement to nervous investors and operators, it may be found in the stability shown under the severe test of the unexpected announcement of an event of such actual importance and far reaching possibilities for harm.

Whatever the course of the market it cannot alter these facts—that the market has had a long decline, the bad news seems to be all out, the monetary situation is improving, business is good and ought to be better, if that be possible, with fresh wealth to be taken from the soil to a total promising to exceed last year's $5,000,000,000. This ought to absorb the surplus, which should so absorb the undigested securities which are fit to be absorbed, and less apprehension might be felt.

The market showed stability under the shock it received and even Northern Securities ranged within less than 4 points and recovered nearly half its decline. The general market fell about 2 points. Industrials, which previously had made a low record, the year average as computed by the Wall street Journal being 62.09, actually advanced a little after the announcement, although obviously in spite of it, and not because of it. The average railways declined nearly half a point, but the low of March 30 of 108.76 remains the year's record.

This tale of gloom has little to do with events outside of Wall street, as in any recent period. The government reports tell of an almost perfect condition in winter wheat upon an unprecedented acreage. The usual deterioration due to the progress of the season might easily reduce the excess of 173,000,000 bu indicated above last year by a larger percentage than usual and still leave a record breaking harvest. Until then the railway traffic managers say that it is all they can do to carry the traffic in sight and by that time the improvements in equipment may suffice to prevent such a congestion as now operates to make the unprecedented gross earnings scarcely more profitable than the smaller volume of other years.

The Financial Chronicle makes the increase in the gross for March $8,021,817, or 14.42 per cent, against 9.40 for January. April opened with the production of pig iron 1,626,205 tons, with indications of capacity of 20,000,000 in the near future. These are record figures, but are less significant than that there is no piling up of stocks.

LETTER CHUTES ROBBED BY AN INVENTIVE CROOK.

Ingenious Contrivance of Wire, Found in Tube in Stock Exchange Building, Starts Search for Operator.

Some inventive crook is stealing letters from the mail chutes in the big office buildings of Chicago, and so far the efforts of the postoffice department to catch him have failed, though they found his invention in the big mail box at the bottom of the chute in the Stock Exchange building.

The invention is a wire "letter trap." It is about five feet long, and is composed of two slender steel wires which are connected at top and bottom. A contrivance with two jaws is set on a pivot at the bottom of the two parallel wires, while at the top the two wires are bent out in "Y" shape.

This device is dropped into a mail chute, usually on the third or fourth floor. The arms of the "Y" spring outward and catch the sides of the metal box, and the "trap" stops just below the floor level. The contrivance is then ready for business. Despite the fact that the fronts of the chutes are of glass, the machine is hidden, the "Y" being inside the metal box, the parallel wires invisible against the sides, and the trap proper concealed below the floor.

Letters dropped from the floors above are caught in the trap, which, when it has stopped several letters, is "tripped" by their weight and turns downward, the jaws being clamped tightly on the letters by the spring which is released when the "trap" turns over. The crook then watches his opportunity, and when no one is looking inserts a grappler into the letter box and pulls out the machine with the letters.

The machine does not interfere with the passage of letters after the "trap" is full, so it can be left in the chute for an indefinite time, but a few days ago a letter was torn from its fastenings, and landed in the mail box in the Stock Exchange building, giving the postoffice officials proof that robberies were being perpetrated.

DREDGEMEN VOTE TO STRIKE TODAY

Ignore Advice of Labor Leaders and Decide to Call Out Union Members.

TIES UP BIG CONTRACTS.

Employers Declare That to Grant Demands Would Be to Invite Bankruptcy.

After two hours' debate, and in opposition to the council of labor leaders, the dredgemed yesterday voted to strike. Less than 1/3 of the men to be affected were present, but their action will throw 600 workmen out of employment, and the dredges will be towed to dock today.

Grand President Charles McCarle of the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association regarded as the personal representative of President Daniel J. Keefe of the Longshoremen's association, advised the dredgemen not to strike.

McCarle accompanied their grievance committee at its last interview with President W. A. Lydon of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company, against which company the strike is aimed, and urged caution on the part of the employés.

Tie Up Big Contracts.

In spite of this advice from President McCarle the strike was ordered and the consequences can be summarized as follows:

Work on the pumping station for the Thirty-ninth street intercepting sewer will cease. A dredge has for two months been busy there preparing the foundation for the big pumps. Two acres of ground must be prepared before the dredging work is completed.

At Jackson park a dredge has for months been busy covering the ruins of part of the World's Fair buildings in preparations for making lawns. This work, half completed, will be stopped.

In the harbors at Chicago and South Chicago $2,000,000 is being spent in procuring deep anchorage for boats. Four dredges will be drawn from this work.

Ten tugs and fifteen pile drivers, used in connection with the dredges, will be put out of service until the strike is ended.

Government Work Stopped.

Dredging contracts with the government, providing for deepening harbors at Waukegan, Michigan City, St. Joseph, Grand Haven, and other Lake Michigan ports, cannot be carried out until there is peace. Part of this work was done last year, but there still remains many thousand dollars to be expended before completion.

The strike is caused by a difference of 25 per cent in wages between work in Chicago and outside ports. The men demand the high wages at all places. The contracting firm declares contracts were taken on too small a margin to allow the high wages outside Chicago. The struggle was precipitated when the company sent a dredge to Waukegan and attempted to operate it, refusing Chicago wages. Pickets guard the shore there to prevent nonunion men from boarding the craft.

Company Refuses to Yield.

Word that work must stop was given President Lydon by T. J. Dolan, business agent of the dredgemen.

"We are powerless in the matter," was Mr. Lydon's answer. "To grant your demands means ruin for us no less certain than a strike lasting years. Our contracts were taken on a margin too small to admit Chicago wages all over the lakes. If we pay them bankruptcy will follow."

"We have no plans for resumption of work," said Lydon later. "Everything will stop now. Some settlement may be made, but the strikers' demands cannot be granted."

Although affiliated with the Longshoremen's association, the strikers, it is believed, will be given no support by the longshoremen, whose constitution provides that strikes such as the present one, must be called by the executive board of the association. The association is not bound by the action of the independent unions composing it.

Wage Scale for Freightmen.

The interior warehouse men and freight handlers are drawing up a new wage scale. The organization has doubled since it tied up the railroads a year ago, and believes there will be no trouble when it again approaches the local managers. President L. J. Curran has prepared for any possible struggle by organizing a joint council of the Chicago locals, which will have charge of the negotiations.

Labor leaders who are trying to force a strike by the employés of the People's Gas-light and Coke company have decided to confine their efforts to the plants at Division street and Elston avenue, at Thirty-first street and Pitney court, and at Center avenue and Twenty-second street. Several employés have been roughly treated by the agitators when they refused to strike.

CRITICISES LINCOLN STATUE.

B. F. Shaw of Dixon Says the Mulligan Model in Art Institute Is Not True to Life.

Dixon, Ill., April 12.—[Special.]—B. F. Shaw, who was personally acquainted with Abraham Lincoln, has taken occasion to seriously criticise the Mulligan statue of Lincoln, which is on exhibition at the Chicago Art Institute.

"My attention has been called to an illustration in THE TRIBUNE of Mr. Mulligan's model for a proposed bronze heroic statue of Abraham Lincoln on exhibition at the Art Institute in Chicago," said Mr. Shaw. "In my opinion the attitude represented by the model is one that Lincoln never assumed when speaking, however earnest he may have been in impressing his thoughts upon his audience. About the only physical effort he made when speaking was that of an earnest movement of the head as if bowing to his audience. His arms were, I may say, quite at rest. He spoke with a calm dignity, after the manner of Gladstone. A statue of the latter with right arm extended heavenward would be considered especially in England as absurdity from an artistic point of view. Of Gladstone I may only speak of what I learn from others, but, having heard Lincoln deliver several of his greatest speeches, I am free to state that no person acquainted with him would like to see a statue of the latter so foreign to any pose that he ever assumed when speaking. No physical demonstration was in harmony with his manner or required in emphasizing his plain language and wonderful logic.

"Is it not, by the way, the consensus of opinion among art critics that a statue or painting of a statesman should be in repose? Indeed, the statue of Napoleon Bonaparte in the Corcoran Art gallery at Washington represents that great warrior—who was strenuously heroic—reclining as if the subject were in a low backed easy chair; the most expressive work of art in its line ever produced, recalling the familiar words, 'Grand, gloomy, and peculiar.'

"Any person who was acquainted with Lincoln, or who has heard him speak, would see, I am certain, wish to see him represented with that long right arm extended above his head as if reaching for something too high for him to grasp. It is not the 'counterfeit presentment' of a man whose fame rests upon great common sense, supreme, unselfish goodness, purity of heart, and profound statesmanship."

EMBROIDERED MUSLIN AND CHIFFON.

This beautiful white costume is composed of embroidered bands in bow knot design of white muslin. Between these bands the accordion plaited chiffon with its appliques of embroidered lace are displayed. The shoulder cape is of applique lace with small pendants of pearls. Long silk lace mitts and an artistic white lace turban with a rich pompon of egret complete the costume.

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS.

MEMORIES OF THE JOCKEY CLUB.

Vicomte de Caze Writes of the Great Paris Racing Circle.

"The Souvenirs" of the vicomte de Caze, the doyen ainé of the Jockey club of Paris, will be published in England and the United States in 1904. The vicomte de Caze, like his cousin, the duke de Grammont, was much in evidence in the pleasanter days preceding the usurpation by Louis Philippe; and he is the eldest of the founding members for "the encouraging of equitation," afterwards "the Jockey club." "The Souvenirs" have been given into the hands of Mrs. Arthur Grey for translation for the British and American edition. She, with the countess de Caze, will also conduct the special Paris "Cercle," a first edition de luxe by subscription only. "The Memoirs" are rich in unprinted (hitherto) matter, grave and gay, for the De Caze family has been for many centuries in the royal annals of the history of France, and for the last century conspicuously allied to the last of the Bourbon.

The grandfather of the author of the memoirs was the leader of the Vendéau insurrection, and his grandmother was the bonne-camarade of the marquis de la Rochejaquelein—the former who was such a capital amateur actress that, dressed as a cowgirl on the home farm, in blue jeans, with yellow, matted hair, parleyed with the soldiers who were "out for the price" that Robespierre put on her head, and who declared her "too stupid a peasant to know the way to her mouth." The late count de Caze (De Villeneux l'Etang) was the friend and executor of the duchess of Angoulême, the only daughter of Marie Antoinette, and father to the author of these souvenirs.

Three chapters deal with the Paris Jockey club, and as the vicomte de Caze has been a member for sixty-seven years, these show a brilliant roll of names best known in social contemporary history and give a series of pictures, with at times a deep focus of shadow—as in the terrible days of the siege of Paris—when the pièce de résistance was rat friteuses à la jockey club. During that epoch the countess de Caze, who has acted as her brother's private secretary in his literary labors, was a volunteer sister of charity and hospital corps to the besieged Parisians, and in testimony of her devotion she is the only woman in the world that bears the royal order of Anne of Portugal.

THE ENJOYMENT OF ART.

By Carleton Noyes. Published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co.

Mr. Carleton Noyes has written a book that should be distinctly helpful and encouraging to the layman, and which should lead him to an enjoyment of the art there is about him, whether it be expressed by a picture, a statue, a rug, a candlestick, a tree, a flower, or a blade of grass. It is a compact little volume which gives in simple, untechnical terms the elements of the artistic. It is refreshing to read and may even bring a clearer understanding to the man who believes himself versed in the knowledge of the true and the beautiful. Perhaps the following extract is a good illustration of Mr. Noyes' way of expressing his ideas:

"What the artist aims to render is not the rose but the beauty of the rose, his sense of one chord in the universal harmony which the rose sounds for him, not that only, but the beauty of all roses that ever were or ever shall be; and inevitably he will select such colors and such lines as bring that special and interpreted beauty into relief and so make manifest to the beholder what was revealed to his own higher vision, by virtue of which, and not because of any exceptional technical skill, he is an artist."

TWO NEW COOK BOOKS.

Valuable Additions to the Literature of the Kitchen.

The demand for cook books must be insatiable, as nearly every publisher regards it his duty to issue one. The newest firm to offer one for sale is Doubleday, Page & Co., who have been fortunate in having their book prepared by Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

Her "Practical Cooking and Serving" is, as her subtitle says, "a complete manual of how to select, prepare, and serve food." Probably no one can criticise a cook book adequately until he has sampled some of the recipes offered by the author. However, Mrs. Hill's recipes sound well and seem more practical and less extravagant than are usually found in books of this kind. And the many illustrations show dishes that arouse the appetite of the person who glances over the book and make him regret that cook books are not accompanied by samples of the recommended dishes.

Another new cook book is Mary Ronald's "Luncheons" (Century company), which is a supplement to her "The Century Cook Book," which has won a place in the hearts of thousands of housewives. It is a book of illustrated recipes, the hundreds of different dishes being accompanied by half-tones showing their appearance when set before the lucky mortal for whom they may be destined.

FELIX ADLER'S SERMONS.

Extracts from the Discourses of the Ethical Leader.

A number of extracts from the lectures of Dr. Felix Adler have been collected by some unknown admirer and published in a small and attractive volume. These excerpts are chosen for their nobility, practicality, or loveliness, and are not, as the editor takes pains to explain, "to be regarded as in any sense an official presentation of the aims of the ethical societies." Nor do they, it is emphasized, completely represent the philosophy or the varied activities of their author.

The quotations are divided into eight groups—"The Meaning of Life," "Religion," "Immortality," "Moral Ideals," "Love and Marriage," "Higher Life," "Spiritual Progress," "Suffering and Consolation," "Ethical Outlook."

Here is one excellent example of the wise doctor's philosophy: "An exalted type of morality is achieved by him who renounces in spirit the opportunities which he lacks who accepts his limitations, and who, under the most trying circumstances, does not remit his efforts, no matter how insignificant may be their result, to promote the good." (McClure, Phillips & Co.)

REBELLION OF A PRINCESS.

Miss M. Imlay Taylor Writes Another Russian Romance.

The intrigues and political disturbances at the Russian court have always furnished plenty of material for historians, and in later days for novelists. McClure, Phillips & Co. are about to bring out a novel by Miss Imlay Taylor, which treats of what is probably the most interesting and exciting period of Rusian history.

It is entitled "The Rebellion of the Princess." The scene is laid in Moscow, and the story passes during the stirring times immediately preceding and following the election of "Peter the Great," when the plottings of rival parties overthrew the government, and the meeting of the national guard made the city the scene of a hideous riot. A galaxy of interesting and attractive historical personages crowd the stage.

The book is primarily a story, brimming with adventure. Those who have read Miss Taylor's earlier successes in the same field, "The House of the Wizard" and "On the Red Staircase," will find her more than at her best in this new novel.

"Right Princess" Sells Well.

A twelfth edition of "The Right Princess" is announced. The popularity of Mrs. Burnham's story is made only the more pronounced by the appearance of other novels in the field of Christian Science. It is in its twenty-first thousand. Mr. Alfred Farlow, one of the most prominent Christian Scientists, says: "'The Right Princess' is the most Christian story, in fiction, it has ever been my pleasure to read. It sets forth the pure ethics of Christian Science in a most emphatic manner and is true to its logic and faithful to its principle and conclusions. Its leading character is crowned with an unbroken succession of spiritual triumphs, illustrating that God is indeed a present help in all times of trouble, and thereby affording its readers a great comfort. It came to me as a refreshing breeze wafted from the presence of divine love."

"Phillips Brooks: A Study."

Which was the greater or more influential preacher of the last half of the nineteenth century, Charles Spurgeon, Henry Ward Beecher, or Phillips Brooks? is one of the questions easier to ask than to answer. Spurgeon's sermons have been sold by the million, and more than 200,000 volumes of Phillips Brooks' sermons have already been sold, and that, too, among the various other denominations not less than in his own. In fact, he belongs to the English speaking people on both sides of the Atlantic. A little book published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., "Phillips Brooks: A Study," contains the thoughtful address by Bishop William Lawrence in Trinity church, Boston, at the recent tenth anniversary of his death.

LINING UP FOR TRACTION BILL.

Mueller Law to Come Up for Final Disposition in Legislature Tomorrow.

NEW FIGHT ON MERIT LAW

Compromise on the "Greater Chicago" Resolution May Be Reached This Week.

Springfield, Ill., April 12.—The chief matter of interest to come up in the general assembly this week is the question of traction legislation for the city of Chicago. The Mueller municipal ownership bill, which passed the senate last week, will be reported to the house Tuesday morning. Its friends will make an effort to have it considered at once and sent to the order of second reading without reference to a committee.

Under the rules the bill would go to the committee on municipal corporations, and it is understood that Speaker Miller favors this course. The followers of former Speaker Sherman have caucused on the matter and have agreed to oppose the reference of the bill. They insist that the measure should be considered by the house sitting as a committee of the whole.

Mayor Harrison Expected.

It is announced from Chicago that Mayor Harrison will come to Springfield at the head of a select committee of fifteen to urge the immediate consideration of the bill. Representatives of a number of other civic organizations will also be here in the interest of the measure. It is likely that they will urge the adoption of the Sherman plan for the consideration of the bill in order to have the matter disposed of early.

Representative Lindly, who is chairman of the committee of municipal corporations, says he will neither ask for nor oppose reference of the bill to his committee. To insist on having the bill sent to his committee, he says, might be construed as an effort on his part to block or impede the passage of the measure. On the other hand, opposition to its reference would look like an attempt to shirk responsibility. For these reasons he will remain silent on the subject unless his committee is assailed during the discussion of the matter.

Civil Service Prospects.

The coming of prominent Chicago people who are interested in traction legislation will revive the agitation over the civil service bill. That measure is new in the senate. By the action of the civil service committee of that body the bill has been stripped of the house amendments, which were so objectionable to the advocates of civil service reform. This leaves it substantially in the condition in which it was sent to the house by Gov. Yates.

The friends of the bill hope to be able to get it through the senate in this shape. If they do, the house will then be asked to recede from its amendments. Those who are interested in the measure say that if the senate will take this stand there is good reason to believe the bill will become a law as originally drafted. They think the house can be induced to bury its amendments if the senate gives its sanction to the bill as sent from its civil service committee.

Those who have been urging the passage of the civil service bill practically gave up all hope for the measure after it had been amended in the house. The amendments were obnoxious to them, and they regarded the bill as having been made worthless, so far as its utility as a civil service reform measure was concerned. This feeling prevailed until the bill was acted upon by the senate civil service committee. That body's action in striking out the house amendments has greatly encouraged the civil service people. They are now ready to make another fight for the bill.

Greater Chicago Resolution.

The "greater Chicago" joint resolution is a special order for consideration in the house on Wednesday. An amendment limiting Chicago's representation in the legislature is pending. A number of the southern Illinois members have been fighting the greater Chicago resolution, because of Chicago's opposition to a bill changing the basis for assessment from one-fifth to one-third.

Representative Tippit has a plan for compromising the differences between Chicago and the southern Illinois people, and if it is adopted the greater Chicago resolution will be removed. He proposes to increase the basis of assessment from one-fifth to one-fourth, and amend the Juul tax limit law by making the limit one-fourth, instead of one-fifth.

Merchants from all over the World are Constantly Visiting this Great Store

Since the opening of our new premises last October this store has received visits of merchants from all over the world. Every week brings parties of men from foreign countries and from distant and near-by cities of this country—men who are at the head of great businesses of their respective districts, and we are pleased to note that their universal criticism is that "Chicago contains the most thoroughly complete and perfect store in the world."

We often feel that while Chicago people know this store's various floors and sections very well, still it is so enormous and so varied in its many ramifications that perhaps they hardly appreciate to the full degree what it daily offers in its constantly changing, always beautiful displays, unusual features, attractive points, and novel productions.

We much desire that the whole great public look upon this institution as partly theirs—as one in which they are personally interested. They are quick to criticise, and we always receive criticisms with thanks; they are quick to commend, and their commendations encourage our organization (of about 8,000 people) to try harder and still harder to do this business better and better.

This great store, which if leveled to one floor would cover one-third of the space inside the loop, is the down-town HOME for all Chicago. Every man, woman, and child is welcome; everyone is and always will be treated with the utmost courtesy and consideration. It gives great pleasure to our army of employees to demonstrate their ability to be polite and considerate; and, as one of our Chicago papers recently said editorially in referring to "Commercial Courtesies," to show that "One even encounters something better than mere politeness; one meets with the kind of courtesy that is supposed to be found in drawing rooms, but which may go with the selling of Dry Goods as well as the dispensing of afternoon teas."

May we refer again to that thoroughly recognized quality named: Our Lowest Prices: This is not only the down-town home, but the supply center for nearly every man, woman and child in Chicago. The prices which you are asked to pay for goods in this store are and must be the lowest; we will see to that, and if for any reason we err in this important point, please quickly call our attention to the error. We cannot afford to ask more than anyone else for our goods, and in many, very many instances—as is proven every day, every hour—we sell goods at decidedly lower prices than are asked elsewhere.

We therefore offer you the best and the largest store building in the world, the greatest open stock in America, the most thoroughly complete varieties to be found anywhere, including the very lowest priced dependable grades, and from these up to the very finest and rarest; we offer you the co-operation of the best selling organization in the world, and we prove in every instance that we name to you the very lowest price on each and every grade of all goods sold. Is it therefore surprising that this is the shopping headquarters for nearly everyone in Chicago and vicinity?

These are valued because of their beautiful soft colorings which time alone can produce. They are artistic and effective for couch covers, draperies, etc.

ANATOLIAN SILK RUGS—Average size 4 feet x5 feet 6 inches. Our collection of these is very reasonably priced. The subdued richness of these beautiful Rugs, their glossy silken surface, together with the designs and colorings employed, give them an artistic value for decorative purposes. Fifth Floor South Room.
